Soc Prof Writes Article

Dr. George A. Theodorson, assistant professor of sociology, has published an article, "The Religious Institutions in the Soviet Orbit," in the Journal of Human Relations.

Janis Beachler, AWS elections committee chairman, and Patricia Dyer, chairman of AWS Central Judicial Board, both called for a revision of the organization's elections code at the Senate meeting last night.

Miss Beachler asked that plans be made further in advance of elections than was done this year in order to facilitate the operations of both candidates and the supervisory committee.

Her other major recommendation was that members of Central Judicial act as impartial judges to check both primary and final election procedures.

Miss Dyer called for an Elections Recommendation Committee to study the operation of the past election and make suggestions for future improvement. This committee would also hear any complaints which students might have on the present system, she said.

After the senate accepted Miss Dyer's proposal, Margaret McPherson, AWS president, appointed Patricia Hagan, secretary of Central Judicial, chairman of the recommendation committee which will present a proposed elections code to Senate soon.

In other action, Paula Poyser, second vice president-elect, moved that the AWS constitution of Feb. 15 be rescinded so that a new and more suitable one can be written.

Her motion was passed, and Gage Peck, first vice president, was appointed chairman of a committee to draw up a new constitution and by-laws by the end of the academic year.

A report was also given by Ruth Rilling, president-elect, on the Intercollegiate AWS convention which she and nine others attended recently.

Miss Rilling said that she and those who accompanied her found the convention was "for our benefit to further benefit AWS."

Trustee Execs OK Alterations

Plans for the alteration of three buildings were approved by the Executive Committee of the Board of Trustees recently.

Carnegie will be converted into a journalism and communications center; the stock judging pavilion will be converted into an arena theatre and classroom building; and the ice skating rink (now known as the Pavilion) will be enclosed for year-round use.

Now that the plans have been approved by the University, the General Authority, which has authorized $480,000 for the projects, will conduct a pre-final review of the projects. Architects will then complete the final plans and bids will be requested.

Ed Dean Discusses Effect Of 4-Term Plan on College

Dean Abram W. Vandemeer spoke Tuesday night at the Education Student Council Coffee Hour on the effect the four-term plan will have on the College of Education.

Vandemeer explained that one of the major changes is that the "ed bloc" will be dissolved because education majors will student teach for an entire term.

He also said two number two cards will be issued.

One will be used as usual for fall registration. The other which will contain the student's winter schedule will be used to determine the number of classes needed for the winter term.

He continued by saying the four-term plan will also eliminate exam week. Exams will be given according to the individual courses, either at night or during regular class periods.

Vandemeer reassured freshman education majors in a curriculum that they will have advisors before summer term registration.

The student council met afterwards to plan for the Senior Banquet to be held in May. The next council meeting is scheduled for April 25.

Golf, Tennis Clubs to Meet

The Golf and Tennis Clubs of the Women's Recreation Association will hold their first meetings at 4:30 p.m. today in the game room at White Hall. The clubs are open to any woman student.
