

Judicial Workshop Asks Co-ed Board

A co-ed judicial board which would handle cases involving both men and women was proposed at the Judicial Workshop held last Friday and Saturday.

The board might replace the present SGA Supreme Court, Edgar Dowling, workshop spokesman and member of North Halls Tribunal, said.

The workshop, composed of representatives from all student judicial boards, decided that seven people should sit on the co-ed group. Dowling said. The men would be represented by a member of the Off-campus Tribunal, one from the On-campus Tribunals, and a member of the Interfraternity Council Board of Control, he explained.

Dowling added that two members of the Association of Women Students and one from the Panhellenic Council would represent the women's organizations. The head of the Traffic Court would also sit on the co-ed judicial to insure that there would be no voting ties, he said.

An advantage of a co-ed judicial committee, Dowling said, is that it would improve communications between the offices of the Dean of Women and the Dean of Men and between the various judicial groups.

Dowling, who represented the workshop led by Gary Robinson of the IFC Board of Control said that there were also several disadvantages to a co-ed judicial committee. He said that the differences in the handling of cases brought before men and women's courts would be a disadvantage of the plan. Drinking cases involving women are handled by the dean of women, but those for men are handled by the men's tribunals, he explained.

Both the dean of men and the dean of women may be hesitant to accept a decision made by a co-ed group, he said. Another disadvantage he listed was that women students may hesitate to appear before a co-ed group because "they may want to withhold information that would embarrass them in front of men."

Gandel Announces Deadline For He-Man, Queen of Hearts

Thursday is the last day that groups participating in Spring Week may submit applications for the He-Man and Queen of Hearts contests, Robert Gandel, He-Man chairman, announced yesterday.

Applications and post cards have been mailed to all Greek groups, Gandel said. Independent groups may pick up their forms at the Hetzel Union desk.

Gandel said that forms should be mailed to him or to Susan First, Queen of Hearts chairman.

The He-Man preliminaries will be held at 6:30 p.m., Thursday, April 27, at Old Beaver Field. The events will include a 100-yard dash, bench press and broad jump.

Preliminaries for Queen of Let Collegian Classified WORK FOR YOU

Hearts will be held at 3 p.m. on the same day. Events will take place in White Hall and will include basketball foul shooting, volleyball serves, bowling and swimming.

Five places will be awarded in both contests with the winner receiving 15 points toward the overall Spring Week trophy. The other winners will receive 10, 7, 5 and 3 points respectively.

The finals will be held Sunday afternoon, April 30, Gandel said.

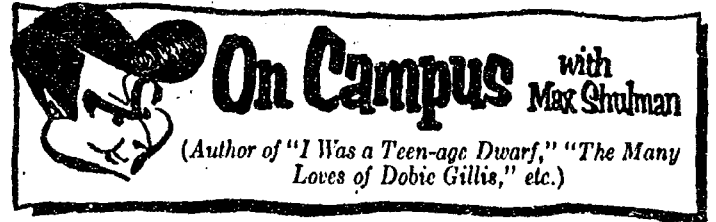

Blue Band Performs At Concert in Juniata

The Penn State Blue Band presented a public concert at Juniata Joint High School last night. This was the latest in a series of off-campus programs presented by the Blue Band, under the direction of James Dunlop, professor of Music Education.

The band made a concert tour last week, presenting programs at Freeport High School, Freeport, N.Y. and at Burnet Junior High School, Union, N.J.

Correction

The name of Nancy Hughes was omitted from the list of Chimes members published in The Daily Collegian last Friday.

SPRING TIME IS DANCE TIME!

Now is the time to let Campus Cleaners fix your dress or "tired" tux

Open 7:30 every morning so you can drop your cleaning off on your way to class and pick it up on your way home.

Complete Alterations

Laundry Service

CAMPUS CLEANERS

Next Door to the Post Office

110 E. Beaver Ave.

State College

A ROBE BY ANY OTHER NAME

As Commencement Day draws near, the question on everyone's lips is: "How did the different disciplines come to be marked by academic robes with hoods of different colors?" Everybody—but everybody—is asking it. I mean I haven't been able to walk ten feet on any campus in America without somebody grabs my elbow and says, "How did the different disciplines come to be marked by academic robes with hoods of different colors, hey?"

This, I must say, is not the usual question asked by collegians who grab my elbow. Usually they say, "Hey, Shorty, got a Marlboro?" And this is right and proper. After all, are they not collegians, and, therefore, the nation's leaders in intelligence and discernment? And do not intelligence and discernment demand the tastiest in tobacco flavor and smoking pleasure? And does not Marlboro deliver a flavor that is uniquely mellow, a selectrate filter that is easy drawing, a pack that is soft, a box that is hard? You know it!

But I digress. Back to the colored hoods of academic robes. A doctor of philosophy wears blue, a doctor of medicine wears green, a master of arts wears white, a doctor of humanities wears crimson, a master of library science wears lemon yellow. Why? Why, for example, should a master of library science wear lemon yellow?

Well sir, to answer this vexing question, we must go back to March 29, 1844. On that date the first public library in the United States was established by Ulric Sigafos. All of Mr. Sigafos's neighbors were of course wildly grateful—all, that is, except Wrex Todhunter.

Mr. Todhunter had hated Mr. Sigafos since 1822 when both men had wooed the beautiful Melanie Zitt and Melanie had chosen Mr. Sigafos because she was mad for dancing and Mr. Sigafos knew all the latest steps, like the Missouri Compromise Mambo, the Shay's Rebellion Schottische, and the James K. Polk Polka, while Mr. Todhunter, alas, could not dance at all owing to a wound he had received at the Battle of New Orleans. (He was struck by a falling praline.)

Consumed with jealousy at the success of Mr. Sigafos's library, Mr. Todhunter resolved to open a competing library. This he did, but he lured not a single patron away from Mr. Sigafos. "What has Mr. Sigafos got that I haven't got?" Mr. Todhunter kept asking himself, and finally the answer came to him: books.

So Mr. Todhunter stocked his library with lots of dandy books and soon he was doing more business than his hated rival. But Mr. Sigafos struck back. To regain his clientele, he began serving tea free of charge at his library every afternoon. Thereupon, Mr. Todhunter, not to be outdone, began serving tea with sugar. Thereupon, Mr. Sigafos began serving tea with sugar and cream. Thereupon, Mr. Todhunter began serving tea with sugar and cream and lemon.

This, of course, clinched the victory for Mr. Todhunter because he had the only lemon tree in town—in fact, in the entire state of North Dakota—and since that day lemon yellow has of course been the color on the academic robes of library science.

(Incidentally, the defeated Mr. Sigafos packed up his library and moved to California where, alas, he failed once more. There were, to be sure, plenty of lemons to serve with his tea, but, alas, there was no cream because the cow was not introduced to California until 1931 by John Wayne.)

© 1961 Max Shulman

* * *

And today Californians, happy among their Guernseys and Holsteins, are discovering a great new cigarette—the unfiltered, king-size Philip Morris Commander—and so are Americans in all fifty states. Welcome aboard!

P.S. OUTING CLUB ELECTIONS

April 18 — 7 P.M.

Main Club Meeting
HUB Assembly

--- VOTE ALSO ---

April 19-20 2-4 P.M.

Where: Near HUB Desk

SHOW MEMBERSHIP CARD TO VOTE ●