

Golwas May Challenge Brown in 100-Yard Dash

By JIM KARL
Last Saturday Bob Brown ran .94 yards every second for 10 seconds to obliterate Hi Henry's (class of '07) record in the 100-yard dash.

If Brown decides to run any faster, he'd better check his landing gear before taking off.

The Lion sprinter's next flight is scheduled for tomorrow on Beaver Field. Navy's Pete Golwas will also be in the blocks at take-off time, and if the Midshipman performs again, State as he did in a triangular meet last week, he may push Brown all the way.

The little-known Golwas rolled to a 9.6 victory against Quantico and Morgan State, defeating Morgan State's Lawson Smart in the process.

Although Brown is off to an excellent start this year, he can't afford to let up against Navy.

The 100 is a race decided in fractions of seconds. One slip could mean the difference between victory and defeat — or a world record.

George Metzgar, Penn State's star quartermiler, caught Brown sleeping in the Navy meet last year and beat his teammate in both the 100 (9.8) and 200 (21.9).

"If Bob isn't right on his toes he could get licked," Coach Chick Werner said. "Metzgar, who we call a 9.7 sprinter, caught Brownie off guard, maybe Gol-was can too." Metzgar, won't run the 100 this year. He's proved himself more valuable in the 220 and 440 and as the anchor man on the mile relay.

Besides the sprints (Golwas also runs the 220) Navy is strong in the shot put, 120-yard high hurdles, 220-yard low hurdles and javelin.

Werner said that the javelin and discus should be two of the most interesting events tomorrow "because both schools have good competitors in each event."

Jim Schwab, who set the Penn State record in the javelin in 1959 with a toss of 223-11½, will face Navy's Steve Curtice (210-2 two weeks ago).

Discus thrower Jon Musser will compete against Navy's Jim Hart and Dick Brown, both of whom have thrown over 150 this year.

Nittany Stickmen To Face Quakers

Coach Earnie Baer pretty well summed up his feelings on tomorrow's lacrosse game with Penn when he said, "There's nothing worse than losing to another Pennsylvania team."

Penn has a 3-1 record, but its wins have been over weak opponents.

The Quakers ripped Lafayette, 14-0, and Drexel, 9-2, but lost to Yale, 12-5, and just managed to beat Swarthmore, 11-7.

Coach Avery Blake's stickmen are the defending Penn-Del champions. State also is a member of the Penn-Del league and Baer believes a win tomorrow would give State a good shot at the title.

Thomas May Be Traded

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Frank Thomas, slugging outfielder-first baseman for the Chicago Cubs, may be on the trading block.

If the Cubs could get somebody good in return they would deal Thomas today, several Chicago observers point out.

Durbin Scheduled To Hurl Tomorrow

Penn State's baseball team (1-1) is beginning to thaw out now, just in time to meet a team with 11 games under its belt.

The Lions, snowed out of scheduled games with Lehigh, Army and Ithaca in the last ten days, host Lafayette (5-5-1) on Beaver Field tomorrow afternoon at 2:30.

Joe Bedenk will try to sneak lefty Tom Durbin out on the mound before the weatherman spots him.

Durbin was scheduled to be the starter in the three games the Lions had snowed out.

Lafayette Coach Charley Gilbert, a Gas Houser with the old St. Louis Cards, started this season with a young, inexperienced team.

But the Leopards have come along under Gilbert's guidance and figure to play an aggressive game.

don't produce as much electric power as you and other Americans have at your fingertips.

This electric "muscle" is a big reason for our nation's leadership. It makes possible our high standard of living, our industrial progress, and our defense of the Free World.

In this country, most of our electric power comes from investor-owned electric light and power companies, who make it from coal, oil, gas, falling water and atomic energy.

These companies—more than 300 companies like yours—welcome the full responsibility of making sure America is always the strongest electric nation in the world.
