

Candidates Give Views On Planks

The three candidates for student body president defined some of their planks at The Daily Collegian Press Conference Wednesday night.

In order to carry out the University party promise to give student government a "solid foundation for dynamic action" Robert Harrison, that party's candidate for student body president, has called for an expansion in the leadership training course.

He said he would like to see graduates of his proposed 8-week course be incorporated into the committee system of the SGA Assembly.

This, said Harrison, would enable only qualified personnel to carry out the work of the committees.

When asked to define his plank calling for an appeal to a "higher authority" should the views of the students not be given "proper consideration," Dennis Foianini, Campus party candidate for student body president, said that he was thinking specifically of President Walker and the Board of Trustees.

Later, Foianini was asked if he did not think his referendum on the effectiveness of his performance in office would not create more chaos if the vote were against him.

He answered that there is adequate provision in the SGA constitution for the president pro-tempore of assembly to call new elections.

"However," he said, "I have a fresh and different attitude toward student government. If it fails then there is no use continuing it."

Duane Alexander, independent candidate for student body president, said that he supports a community living system of representation on SGA assembly.

He said he would like to see one representative for each 500 students. He also said that he felt the class presidents should sit on Assembly.

Grads May Apply For British Grants

June graduates will be eligible to win scholarships for study at a British university, according to Ralph N. Kreckler, director of student aid.

These scholarships are awarded by the British government each year in appreciation of the American aid received under the Marshall Plan.

The 24 scholarships are open to any U.S. citizen under 26 who will be a graduate of an accredited college or university at the time the award is made.

The awards are made for two years and may be extended for a third year, Kreckler said. They provide 550 pounds ($1650) a year. The scholarships also include grants for tuition, books, local travel and fares from the student's home to the English university, he said.

They may be used at 17 universities, including Cambridge and Oxford.

The awards will be based on "distinction of intellect and character as evidenced both by scholastic attainment and by other activities and achievements," according to the scholarship announcements. Preference will be given to those candidates who appear to have the capacity to play an active part in the United Kingdom university to which they go.

He explained that the awards will be made to graduates who wish to earn a second bachelor's degree. Anyone who will have a degree by Oct. 1, 1962, is eligible.

Applications in this region can be made by writing to the British Consulate General, 99 Park Avenue, New York 16, N.Y.

Both Dean Lipp and Simes refused to comment when asked what action would be taken. "We will see what action the town contemplates taking before we do anything," Simes said. Simes added, however, that he had warned the two students who wrote the letter that disciplinary action could be taken if they participated in the demonstration.

Mostly Cloudy, Cool Weather Expected Today

A strong cold front, which marked the leading edge of unseasonably cold air, passed across Pennsylvania yesterday proceeded and attended by showers and thunderstorms.

These showers produced brief periods of heavy rain and strong gusty winds. Some sections of the commonwealth had hail up to one-half inch in diameter.

Snow flurries developed in the cold air behind the front and some of the higher mountain regions of Western Pennsylvania and West Virginia were expected to get 1 to 3 inches of snow by this morning.

However, no snow accumulation was expected in this area.

Mostly cloudy, windy and cooler weather is indicated for today and a high temperature of 50 degrees is expected.

A killing frost is expected tonight as clear skies and diminishing winds allow mercury readings to skid below the freezing mark. Minimum temperatures will range from 15 degrees in the well exposed areas to about 30 degrees in the center of town and on campus.

Tomorrow should be partly cloudy and pleasantly cool, a high of 55 expected.
