

Court Orders Soph To Pay for Repairs

A student who admitted breaking the windows of a State College church has been ordered to pay for the damages by the Centre County court.

William T. Masyn, sophomore in division of counseling from Mount Holly, N.J., was tried in the county court house in Bellefonte by Judge Paul R. Campbell. Masyn was ordered to pay all costs of repairing the windows which he admitted breaking with a sling shot.

The repairs which were recently completed came to a total expense of $724. In addition, Masyn was ordered to pay all court costs.

George K. Beebe and Richard J. Kolb, both freshmen in liberal arts from Point Pleasant, were also brought before Judge Campbell, tried and sentenced.

They were committed to jail for a period of one to twelve months on charges of burglary. The two admitted taking $235 from the Temple Laundromat on W. Beaver Ave. April 21. The judge ordered the defendants each to make restitution of $117.50 and to pay the expenses incurred by the owner of the business in changing the locks on change machines and washers.

In testimony presented to the court it was established that Carl E. Temple, the owner made the changes before the youths were apprehended because 17 keys had been stolen. They were also ordered to pay court costs.

Two students have been brought before Justice of the Peace William P. Bell in State College on charges of disorderly conduct.

Hospitality Group For Internationals To Meet Tonight

The Provisional Community Hospitality Committee for International Visitors will meet at 7:30 tonight, in the Westminster Hall of the Presbyterian Church.

This group has been studying ways in which the citizens of State College and student organizations of the University can provide hospitality for international students.

A representative of the SGA Committee for the Orientation of Foreign Students, Joyce Whitehead, will attend the meeting. She said that the committee hopes that all interested students will also attend.

Dr. Roy D. Anthony, State College burgess, and Dr. W. H. Gray, director of the international student affairs, are scheduled to speak before the meeting. Both speakers are representatives of the Provisional Committee.

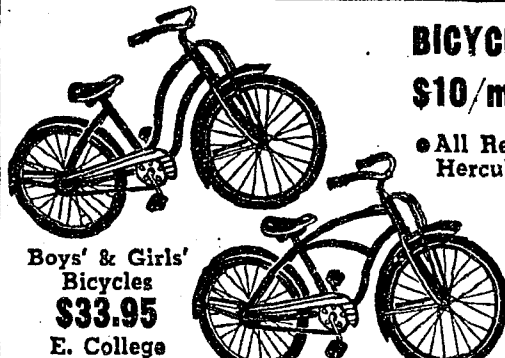

The Provisional Community Hospitality Committee was formed in October 1960 by a small group of interested State College residents headed by Anthony. The committee duties have been designed to make a study of the hospitality and service carried on within State College and the University for international students studying on campus.

Pollon Organizes Jazz Association

The Society of Jazz Clubs, was officially established on campus recently according to Alan Pollon, president of the Penn State Jazz Club.

James DePriest, Philadelphia director of the Contemporary Music Guild, and Phil Brooks, president of Jazz Horizons Unlimited, of Pittsburgh, met with Pollon on campus to organize the society.

SOJAC provides for an exchange of ideas on various phases of jazz group organizations, such as the promotion of concerts and the organization of jazz workshops. It is a service organization that will be used at present primarily for informational purposes.

The society which will operate on a national basis, hopes to act as a coordination device in helping to start new clubs in many universities and cities.
