An Unpleasant Picture

By Sandy Padwa

"I was standing at the halftime of a game Friday night, talking to two ballplayers about the scandals. They were Jack Egan and Frank Majewski of St. Joseph's.

"It sickens you," said Egan. "We played against those Seton Hall guys twice. We just can't believe it."

—Sandy Grady, Philadelphia Bulletin March 19, 1961

This is a basketball scandal:

● A young wife lying in a hospital bed asking if her husband, a newly-acclaimed point shaver, had seen the newly-born twins.

● A father asking himself whether a point shaver should marry his daughter.

Those are just a few of the cases. There were many more last weekend and there will be many more heartbreaks as the present basketball scandal unravels.

In the meantime, college presidents and athletic directors continue to preach the value of intercollegiate sports and tell the public not to condemn the bunch for a rotten few.

This is the same line they've been using since the last basketball scandal shook the sports world in the early 1950's. It also is the same line they've used before alumni groups all over the country when they explain their athletic programs.

While this group is making its speeches, the NCAA is busy drafting token legislation to correct the situation and make things better. They, too, have been doing this since the early 1950's.

Meanwhile, around the sports desks of the country—whether it be a metropolitan daily or a campus weekly—sports scribblers are growing sicker and sicker with the world they once loved.

Everyone has his explanation for the troubles and everyone has his solution but no one knows which is best.

Some say legalize gambling, others say abolish big-time basketball and football. Still others feel that recruiting should be policed with a firm hand—not by the NCAA.

College sports recruiting is a rotten business. This is a well-known fact and has been exposed time and time again by national magazines and newspapers.

Proof of these accusations can be seen every weekend as coaches escort pimply-faced high schoolers around the nation's campuses while dollar-minded fathers and mothers hang on each arm.

The coaches, who would rather be at home with the wife and kids, turn on the charm and smiles for an afternoon and turn it off at night when the high-school phenom is on the way home evaluating State U. and its assets.

Coaches must do this to survive in their business. There is no alternative.

This terrible situation will not and can not change as long as some schools are willing to pay athletes under-the-table while the brass looks on and smiles.

What can you expect of an athlete who sees this and accepts it? You can't blame him if he's a little crooked too and accepts a gambler's offer to shave points—not lose games—for $1500. After all, the big wigs broke rules to get him so he can break a few himself if no one except the bookies will be hurt.

This is the collegiate sports world. There is only one way to regulate it and that's through a watchdog committee that could control and investigate recruiting and gambling practices.

Ex-CCNY coach Nat Holman first conceived the idea after his world was shattered following the 1950 fix.

His proposal was to have the top people in sports serve on such a committee. However, nothing was done 10 years ago but something needs to be done today.

Maybe Holman's committee could accomplish something if it were placed on the federal level.

Everything else has failed and since a school's primary objective is to produce better and honest citizens, a federally-controlled watchdog committee might help clean up the mess brought about by hypocritical coaches and educators.

Yankees Down Twins, 6-4

ST. PAUL-MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Mickey Mantle hit a home run with the bases loaded in the 10th inning yesterday, cracking a 2-2 tie and giving the New York Yankees a 6-4 victory over the Minnesota Twins. It was Mantle's eighth home run of the season.

A crowd of 16,669 turned out to watch the Yankee's first appearance in Metropolitan Stadium.

Camilo Pascual, the loser, had given up a double to Tony Kubek and walks to Hector Lopez and Roger Maris after two were out before Mantle, batting left-handed, hit his grand slammer.

The blow sent his season runs batted in total to 22, tops in the majors. He had knocked in another run with a single in the fourth inning.

CHICAGO (AP) — The San Francisco Giants' home run power oozed out in the ninth inning yesterday but the Chicago Cubs' lead built up in the first two innings prevailed for a 9-4 victory.

Willie McCovey's fifth homer of the season gave the Giants a total of 14 in three consecutive games to tie a major league record.
