

Tax Bill May Determine University's $17.1 Million

Unless an $8 million tax bill is passed by the state Senate, Governor David L. Lawrence's recommendation of $17.1 million for Penn State may be further reduced, Sen. Jo Hays, D-Centre, said last night.

The bill, eliminating the commission paid to merchants

AWS Set To Begin Coed Week

The first Women's Week, sponsored by the Association of Women Students, is scheduled to begin Monday and end on Mothers' Day, May 14.

The purpose of women's week is to further acquaint Penn State women with the expanding role of AWS, Ruth Rilling, AWS president, said.

The Women's Student Government Association was mainly a governing body, setting up rules and regulations for women students, Miss Rilling said. AWS has increased its scope of activities to include cultural, religious, social and recreational affairs, she added.

Women's Week activities are designed to emphasize these aspects of reorganized women's student government, she said.

The week's events include guest speakers in the community council residence areas, a dress-up dinner Tuesday night in the women's dining halls and an AWS banquet for the installation of the newly elected officers Friday night.

Mothers' Day weekend includes a fashion show Saturday afternoon and teas, brunches and open-houses next Sunday morning. Leonides will also sponsor a breakfast on the same morning in McElwain lounge, in conjunction with Women's Week.

Krauss--

"The Russians are outsmarting us in trade because they realize this," Krauss said.

Americans have poured billions of dollars into countries to erase poverty and disease, but we expect them to adopt our philosophy of life in return, Krauss said. "We must realize that money can't keep pace with population and development," he added.

In his original article, Krauss said "we must mobilize a cultural army of men and women who will make a career of studying the background and traditions of these peoples, who will live with them under their social, economic and political circumstances."

President Kennedy's Peace Corps plan may have weaknesses because members will go with the intention of having two or three year "jaunts" and not take their mission earnestly, Krauss said.

Krauss also pointed out that corpsmen should be chosen on "character, intelligence and capacity for understanding" rather than the "interests now stipulated as a Peace Corps requirement."

The language study momentum was enormous following World War II, Krauss said. If the Peace Corps can now associate the knowledge of a country's language with its environment, it will be successful, he said.

for collecting the state's four per cent sales tax, is the final part of a revenue package asked by the governor to balance his budget.

The bill passed the House Jan. 26, but Senate Democrats have been unable to get the necessary majority to get the bill through the upper house.

Hays said that if the recommendation for the University's budget is cut, it will be by "one or two hundred thousand dollars." He said that the bill's passage is necessary to support the governor's original recommendation of $17.1 million.

An additional tax measure would have to be voted on to determine whether the University will receive its requested additional $6 million in funds, Hays said. President Eric A. Walker has requested $23.1 million in state aid for 1961-62.

Presently a 25-25 party split prevents the Democrats from passing the bill on their own because 26 votes are needed for passage and all 50 senators were not present when the bill was brought up.

The Associated Press yesterday reported a "reliable source" as saying that one Republican vote might be available to pass the long-stalled bill. The source said he did not know the name of the Republican.

The AP reported Majority leader Charles R. Weiner as denying any knowledge of the report. "I don't know anything about it, but I hope it's true," Weiner said.

Hays also said he had "no idea" who the Republican is. "Rumors have been going around the Senate for two months," Hays said, "but no one has any idea where the vote is coming from."

Hays clarified a report that Thomas A. Ehrgood, R-Lebanon, had said he would vote for the bill.

Ehrgood said he would support a greater corporation tax, Hays reported, but did not say he would vote for this tax bill.

Doorley Receives Journalism Award

Lauren Doorley, senior in advertising from Pittsburgh, has been awarded $200 for her essay "The Role of Communications in Industry."

The Associated Editors Society of Pittsburgh gave Miss Doorley the award at a luncheon last week in Pittsburgh.

Her essay, an entry in the 1961 AESOP Industrial Journalism Award Competition, was judged on the basis of presentation and planning, writing ability, research and background synopsis.

Miss Doorley was one of two entrants from Penn State. The competition was also open to journalism students of Duquesne University.

HARMONY OF SIGHT AND SOUND surrounded dancing couples at the Senior Ball last night. Approximately 400 couples danced to the music of Sammy Kaye on the HUB ballroom and terrace from 9 p.m. until 1 a.m. The announcement of the winners of the Outstanding Senior Awards highlighted the evening.

400 Couples Swing with Kaye

By PHYLLIS HUTTON

A take-off on the song Mack, The Knife—"Sammy Kaye Is Back In Town" was contrasted with the melodious "Fascination" as approximately 400 couples danced to the music of Sammy Kaye at the Senior Ball last night.

The Senior Ball which was held in the HUB ballroom was the first major formal to be held there. Couples danced in a true ballroom atmosphere as the soft lights, shining dance floor and green drapes blended with white dinner jackets and pastel dresses.

The adjacent terrace was bordered by lighted floor lamps, which added to the "romantic atmosphere" of the spring night. Many couples drifted out onto the terrace to dance under the stars or to sit at tables lighted by electric candles.

The acoustics of the ballroom were excellent as the soothing sound of traditional Sammy Kaye music filled the room.

The music of Sammy Kaye—calm and smooth—is like Sammy Kaye, the person, who in a private interview related that he prefers to play in a quiet and beautiful atmosphere.

Kaye, who is arranger, orchestra leader and clarinet player has had his own group ever since attending Ohio University. He was graduated in 1933 as a Civil Engineer, but never worked as an engineer since he immediately organized a dance band.

Kaye said he believes a person must be a civil engineer in order to be an orchestra leader.

The famous phrase "swing and sway with Sammy Kaye" began in his early broadcasting days, he said.

Unmarried, Kaye said he has never regretted his choice of music over civil engineering. He enjoys traveling and the changing work scene and says that his vocation is often as much vacation as work.

During the winter the Sammy

Kaye Orchestra works for several months in Florida, and this summer he is booked for an 8 week engagement at the Riviera in Las Vegas.

Over the years, Kaye has sold thousands of records and has had his own radio and television shows. He said that he might get a new television show next year.

A new album of old big hits entitled Golden Favorites is to be released soon. Many famous vocalists such as Don Cornell have sung with his orchestra.

He said the greatest thrill and honor of his life occurred when the Library of Congress chose to photostat his musical arrangements to represent dance bands in the time capsule which was buried by the Library.
