

Student Arrested Sunday Morning; Admits Shooting Danville Police Chief After Attempt to Pass Forged Check

By WINNIE BOYLE

A University student was arrested early Sunday morning after he called State College police headquarters and admitted shooting and wounding the Danville chief of police.

The shooting occurred when Thomas J. Maxwell, senior in pre-med from Hazelton, tried to purchase some goods in a Danville clothing store with a check, according to State College Police Chief John R. Juba.

The clerk became suspicious and checked the identification that Maxwell had given him, Juba said. Finding the identification false, Juba said, the clerk notified the Danville Chief of Police Robert Burke, who approached Maxwell in the store.

While escaping, Maxwell shot Burke in the left foot and hurried from the store, according to police reports. Burke said that before fleeing Maxwell threatened to shoot him again or anyone else who tried to get in his way.

Burke was admitted to the Geisinger Memorial Hospital, treated and released. The pistol that was used in the shooting is believed to have been taken from Metzger's April 20, Juba said.

Maxwell called State College Police to surrender from a telephone booth in the parking lot of the campus shopping center, police reports said. The police apprehended him in that area shortly after the call.

Following his apprehension, Maxwell was admitted under guard to the University Hospital for observation, police said. Maxwell had taken an overdose of medication, police said.

But it is not known whether or not he had taken the medication before or after the shooting, they added.

Maxwell has been returned to the custody of Danville authorities on charges of aggravated assault and battery.

After facing charges there, police said, he will be returned to State College and charged with burglary, shoplifting and possession of approximately $3,000 worth of stolen property.

The stolen property found in Maxwell's apartment included luggage, portable radios, hi-fi speakers, furniture, clothing, jewelry, fireplace tools and various other items, police reports showed.

Wet, Wintery Weather Due Here Tonight

Warm moist air covered Pennsylvania and most of the eastern third of the United States yesterday.

A storm system that is moving towards Pennsylvania from the mid-west caused considerable shower and thunderstorm activity in the Ohio and Tennessee Valleys yesterday and last night.

Some of these thunderstorms were locally severe and were attended by strong winds, heavy rain, hail and vigorous lightening displays.

As the storm moves northeastward across Ohio this morning, showers and thunderstorms should continue in this area; but with the passage of this storm late today, cloudy, windy and cooler weather will spread through Central Pennsylvania.

Mostly cloudy, windy and mild weather is predicted for today and showers and thunderstorms are forecast for this morning.

Tonight should be mostly cloudy, breezy and cooler. A low of 43 is expected.

Mostly cloudy, windy and colder weather is predicted for tomorrow and a high of only 52 degrees is expected.

A Senior Week supplement is carried on pages 5 through 8 of this issue.

University Designs New Matric Cards

By CARMEN ZETLER

The University will issue a new type of matriculation card beginning in the fall term, Robert M. Koser, Jr., associate registrar, said yesterday. One part of the card will be used for permanent identification and the other part will be a certificate renewed at each registration, he said.

The official student identification card will be laminated plastic printed in dark blue and white, Koser said. It will be used by the student during the entire time that he is enrolled, he added.

The plastic card will have the student's name, student number and date of birth embossed on the front. Koser said that the card will be used as a print for various forms and documents.

"It's like a charge account plate. The library, the men's physical education classes and the people at registration will use the card to print forms," he said.

The back of the permanent card will have a picture of the student and will list the regulations for use of the card. Koser said that the pictures used on this year's matriculation cards will be used again next year. Incoming freshmen will have their pictures taken at the summer counseling program, he said.

The second part of the new identification card will be a certificate of registration issued each time the student registers for classes. It will also include the student's name, birth date and student number and will be used as an activity card, Koser said. He added that the certificate will be good from the day of registration until the last day of classes.

At registration each student will be given a double-sectioned plastic carrying case in which to carry his identification card and his current certificate of registration, Koser said.

He said that one of the reasons that the University is switching to the new matriculation cards is that it would simplify keeping records. He said that the cards would also be much more difficult for a student to duplicate or change.

Moran May Be Finished In Track

By JIM KARL
Collegian Sports Editor

Ed Moran, Penn State's greatest miler, is quitting track.

Moran said yesterday that he has been bothered by a back ailment since last fall and that he won't resume running unless the condition clears up.

The 23-year-old Moran starred on Lion track teams in 1957, 1958, and 1959. He's currently doing graduate work at the University and had been running for the New York Athletic Club.

Moran said that lately his back ailment has prevented him from finishing races with a strong burst of speed.

"It started to bother me last fall," he said. "It didn't pain me—I just couldn't move my legs fast enough."

Moran recently returned from a State Department-sponsored tour of South Africa where he and three other American athletes participated in 12 track clinics and competed in seven meets.

His best times on the tour were 4:09 in the mile and 1:51 in the half mile. He listed poor competition and having to run at a high altitude for his sub-par times in the mile.

"We had to run at 4000 feet and it's very hard to run at that height," he said.

The former Lion great said he isn't sure whether he will ever return to track.

"I'm just going to quit until my back gets better. I won't run if I don't run respectably. If everything isn't perfect I'm

U.S. Salutes Astronauts

WASHINGTON (AP) — A proud, grateful nation paid its fullest homage yesterday to the first American to breach the barriers of space.

President Kennedy lauded astronaut Alan B. Shepard, Jr. and pinned a medal on the man who ventured 115 miles into the heavens Friday on a giant stride across the space frontier.

Congress praised Shepard with personal greetings and a formal resolution. And from perhaps 250,000 ordinary folk jammed along the curbs, a warm, roaring, continuous salute rolled with the astronaut along historic Pennsylvania Avenue as he drove to the Capitol.

Humbly and modestly Shepard accepted the accolades. And almost from the first to the last moment of a day of glory he insisted on sharing every honor with the six fellow astronauts who were left behind during his flight and with the hundreds of scientists and artisans who put years of sweat and worry and brain power into the man-in-space program.

At his first full-fledged news conference since his exploit, Shepard put all the emphasis not on what he did but on what "we" did.

There was emphasis, too, not only on the flight into space but on the challenges and tasks ahead of a nation still lagging behind the Soviet Union in some areas in space.

Shepard voiced pleasure and encouragement at the results of his journey into space and added: "We plan to press ahead with the best possible speed."

Yes, he said, he felt some apprehension ahead of time because there was always the possibility of partial success or even failure. He took a long look at the missile which hurled him aloft, he confessed, because he thought it might be the last time he would see it.

But on the flight itself: "I don't think we had any bad moments at all."

The five minutes of weightlessness he experienced was "quite a pleasant sensation," he said. He added there is "no difficulty in maneuvering ourselves, in controlling ourselves . . . and it has given us no difficulty at all."

What were his feelings at the

Coed Hurt Friday In 100-foot Fall Near Bellefonte

A coed was injured at about 10 p.m. Friday when she fell 100 feet from a cliff near Fishermen's Paradise south of Bellefonte, Patrolman Michael A. Mutch, of the State Police Barracks at Rockview, said yesterday.

Marilyn Weiss, sophomore in art education from Boiling Springs was admitted to the Centre County Hospital early Saturday morning. Hospital authorities reported her in "satisfactory" condition yesterday.

The accident occurred when Miss Weiss accompanied by Whick Carpenter, junior in arts and letters from Fayetteville, N.Y., and five other couples were having a private picnic near the cliff.

All the males in the party were members of Beta Theta Pi fraternity, Paul Kemmerer, president of the fraternity, said, but, he added, the picnic was not fraternity sponsored.

He said that Miss Weiss' companions "assumed that she did not know how close she was to the edge of the cliff since it was dark."

When questioned about the incident, Wilmer E. Wise, assistant to the dean of men in charge of fraternity affairs, said that the "IFC Board of Control was investigating the accident to see if it called for any action."

Foianini Suggests Encampment Change

By ROCHELLE MICHAELS

Dennis Foianini, president-elect of SGA, said last night that he will recommend to the Assembly that next year's student Encampment be held on campus before the fall term begins.

He said that this would lessen expenditures for the program, and that the money could be more useful elsewhere.

In previous years, Encampment has been held before Orientation week at the Mont Alto Center for all student government leaders.

"Encampment can serve no real purpose this year because we are still not sure who will be in student government next year," Foianini said. "Therefore, it would be a waste of money," he added.

Foianini explained that next year's Assembly members will probably not be elected until the fall term. Previously, all but freshmen Assemblymen were chosen in the spring elections.

However, all present assemblymen and leaders of SGA will be invited to attend Encampment, according to Foianini. He added that any interested student will also be encouraged to participate. Another recommendation which Foianini said he will make to Assembly is that the revised SGA constitution not be passed this week.

He stated that his reason for this is that Thursday night will be the first time many people will see the whole constitution put together.

"One more week of careful investigation will avoid the possibility of making a serious error," Foianini said.

"However," he continued, "I want to see reorganization settled by the end of the semester so we can come back in the fall and start to work right away."

Foianini added that he is going to use the next three weeks to "set the house in order and make the new student government an effective organization."
