

Fire Alarm Brings Crowd to Simmons

Where there's smoke there's fire, the old saying goes, and where there's fire there are people, but, the Alpha Fire Company would like to know, why so many?

Last night a small fire in Simmons Hall drew a capacity crowd of males to the dorm's front lawn.

Committee To Seek Store Action

The SGA Bookstore Committee last night decided to summarize the results of the recent student survey to determine the need for a University bookstore and recommend possible action to the Board of Trustees.

These recommendations will be presented to the board at its next meeting on June 2.

Meeting with the committee in an advisory capacity were Albert Diem, vice president for Business Administration and Leslie Greenhill, associate director of the Division of Academic Research and Services.

Diem said that he would investigate the physical aspects of creating such a bookstore and submit his own recommendation to the Board of Trustees along with the committee report.

Results of the bookstore committee's survey indicated that over 43.8 per cent of the 792 students questioned had trouble in obtaining textbooks this semester.

"I am concerned that the bookstores downtown haven't taken the initiative to better their services," Greenhill said.

In discussing alternative proposals the committee considered the possibility of releasing lists of required books earlier—both to the students and to the book stores.

Greenhill approved the committee's plan to make recommendations for action so that more than one possibility could be considered by the board.

If their committee presented only the one proposal—to create a student bookstore—a flat refusal, Greenhill said, would put the committee "back where it has been for many years."

Mazza Explains Housing Survey

Most housing vacancies in State College are for single rooms rather than for apartments Paul Mazza, Chamber of Commerce president said yesterday in a speech to the Faculty Luncheon Club.

Mazza said he received this information from the recently completed Chamber of Commerce Housing Survey. He said that the results are partially tabulated and should be compiled before the end of the semester.

The survey results can be very useful to the University and town in their planning for housing expansion, Mazza said. Students also should be interested in the number of vacancies, quality of housing and resident preference reported in the study.

Mazza said that houses were categorized according to type of residence, capacity, date constructed and other criterion.

Owners were asked if they had any preference to the age, sex, religion, color and nationality of tenants.

Graves to Give Poetry Reading

Robert Graves, distinguished poet, novelist, critic and historian, will present readings from his poetry at 8:30 p.m. May 17 in Schwab.

Graves' appearance here is co-sponsored by the College of the Liberal Arts and the Department of English.

Graves, who was recently named professor of poetry at Oxford University, is currently lecturing throughout the United States.

Born in London in 1895, Graves is the author of "Collected Poems," "Poems and Satires" and "Crowning Privilege." His latest work is a two volume translation of Greek mythology.

During the First World War, Graves served as a captain of infantry, after which he became professor of English Literature at Egyptian University, Cairo. Since 1929, he has lived on the island of Majorca.

The fire alarm brought all the girls in Simmons to the sidewalk, and the girls brought all the boys from Pollock running to see the girls.

The fire signal which summoned the volunteer fire department also brought students from all over campus to the scene of the fire. The brigade from North and West Halls arrived at the same time as the volunteers, and mass confusion resulted.

Coeds forced to remain in their dorms by the 11:30 p.m. curfew crowded to the windows, grabbing binoculars, telescopes, periscopes, or anything else they could find available to spy on the fire, or more accurately, the fire watchers.

The alarm was turned in by a boy who was walking his girl back to McElwain. The boy, it was reported, rushed into the dorm, much to the astonishment of his date. An unidentified observer commented that she had apparently not seen the fire.

Quick action by passers-by kept the fire from spreading, onlookers said.

A counselor from West Halls and a man identified only as "the guy in a black shirt" rushed into the women's residence hall, grabbed fire extinguishers and doused the flames, residents said.

Moran Quits Track--

Moran became internationally famous by running a 4:01.7 in a National AAU meet at Bakersfield, Calif., in 1958. That time still stands as the Penn State record for the mile.

Moran has flirted with a sub-four minute mile a number of times since then and had designs of becoming the first man to break the barrier indoors this year.

"I'm disappointed that I didn't break four minutes but you can't have everything," Moran said.

"I've gotten more out of track than most people have. I have no complaints, track has been good to me.

"Not everybody can get close to four minutes and I'm glad I was lucky enough to get as close as I did."

Moran, whose best times in high school in Kane, Pa., were 2:02 in the 880 and 4:36 in the mile, attributes much of his success to Lion Coaches Chick Werner and Norm Gordon.

"I feel the coaching here is the best in the country if not in the nation—at least for distance running."
