

Rusk Arrives in Geneva To Attend Laos Talks

GENEVA (P) — Secretary of State Dean Rusk arrived yesterday for the 14-nation conference on Laos amid doubts that the sessions will get under way on schedule Friday.

Rusk said he would take part in the conference "if information from Laos permits it."

Rusk, as well as other Western officials, have declared they would refuse to take part unless there is a real cease-fire between Communist and anti-Communist forces.

Three leading members of an Indian-Canadian-Polish control commission, whose job is to certify that a cease-fire is in effect, finally left for headquarters of Communist and neutralist rebel headquarters at Xieng Khouang in Laos yesterday after being rebuffed on Tuesday.

Random fighting continued, but there has been no serious outbreak for a week.

Despite uncertainty as to when the conference may open, Rusk was the fourth delegate to arrive.

He was preceded by Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko, who said the Soviet Union would make "every effort to solve the Laotian problem justly and without procrastination and stamp out a hotbed of war danger."

Gromyko was followed by Chang Yen, secretary-general of the Red China delegation. Chinese Foreign Minister Chen Yi was expected later.

Another Communist leader, Ung Van Khiem, foreign minister of North Viet Nam, also arrived. In the same plane was a delegation headed by Information Minister Quinim Pholsena from the neutralist Laotian faction of Prince Souvanna Phouma.

Aside from the United States, Britain, France, the Soviet Union, Red China, North and South Viet Nam and Laos, these countries have been invited: Canada, Thailand, Poland, Burma, India and Cambodia.

A spokesman in London said Britain hopes for confirmation of the cease-fire in time for the conference to get under way on schedule.

"We are going ahead with plans to attend," he said.

Attendance of Thailand and Cambodia remained problematical.

Prince Norodom Sihanouk of Cambodia, who originally proposed the 14-nation conference, announced May 1 that he was washing his hands of the Laotian question because Laos' King Savang Vathana opposed the talks.

Nixon Blasts Kennedy's 'Frontier'

COLUMBUS, Ohio (P) — Richard M. Nixon wound up his first political tour since the presidential election yesterday with a blast at the Kennedy administration's domestic policies.

"The shape of the New Frontier is becoming clearer and clearer," the former vice president said in a speech prepared for a Republican fund-raising rally.

"With every new program and every new proposal, slogans aside, it turns out to be pretty familiar territory after all: a return to the depressing old frontier of the late '30s and to the inevitable failures of a policy of systematic government intervention into the American economy."

"It turns out to be the old worn-out country of government controls, pump-priming, high taxes, higher deficits and economic stagnation."

Indeed, Nixon doesn't like much of anything about the new administration, including the slogan it uses to describe itself.

As far as Nixon is concerned, he has said the words "New Frontier" for the last time.

While he was handing out texts of his speech he told reporters: "Some of my colleagues constantly deride and joke about 'New Frontiers.' This is a mistake. I'm only going to talk about old frontiers, starting today."

Nixon contends that because the election was so close, and because the House is so conservative, President Kennedy has had to tone down some of his economic programs.

"That is why the congressional elections of 1962 are so vitally important," Nixon said. Sizable Democratic gains, he said, will be followed by "increased spending, higher taxes and more federal government control in the lives of every American."

Here Nixon reverted to a theme he has been hammering away at ever since he began his tour, a week ago in Chicago.

He contends that at a time when extra money is needed for national security, Kennedy is asking for 15 billion extra, of which 11 billions are for health, education, welfare, housing and public works.

French Plane Crash Kills 79 in Sahara

ALGIERS (P)—A French airliner en route from the heart of Africa to Paris under ideal weather conditions crashed in the Sahara yesterday killing all 79 aboard.

The victims included five members of an American career diplomat's family and his unborn fourth child.

French-Algerian Talks Scheduled

PARIS (P) — The French government and the Algerian rebel regime agreed yesterday to meet at the conference table May 20 in hopes of ending 6½ years of bloody war in Algeria.

The agreement to begin talks at Evian-les-Bains is the third attempt in 11 months to settle the quarrel over the North African territory.

Talks last June broke down in the preliminary stages. A conference scheduled for April 7 in Evian-les-Bains never got started.

As news reached Algiers that another peace conference has been scheduled, Moslem informants said they are ready to demonstrate support for the Algerian rebel regime should the French try to minimize its influence.

The majority of European settlers appeared grimly reconciled to the idea of the conference.

De Gaulle has maintained since September 1959 that eventually there must be a free vote by the Algerians on their future.

NATO Guarantees--

Other actions by the NATO council:

• It accepted a pledge by President Kennedy's administration to deploy by 1963 at least five Polaris-carrying nuclear submarines in the Mediterranean area for the defense of Europe.

• It arranged for a three-man fact-finding mission to visit Greece and Turkey as the first step toward launching a massive economic aid program to ease the poverty that stalks those two NATO lands.

Freedom Academy Plan

WASHINGTON (P) — Rep. Richard S. Schweiker, R-Pa., introduced a bill yesterday to establish a Freedom Academy designed to train men to win the cold war against the Soviets.

Further Evidence Labels Eichmann Nazi Extremist

JERUSALEM (P) — Adolf Eichmann was portrayed yesterday as a man who surpassed Adolf Hitler in relentless pursuit of the Nazi goal to exterminate European Jews. But evidence introduced in his trial showed he met with a big failure in little Denmark.

Assistant prosecutor Gavriel Bach produced evidence that even Hitler and high-ranking army generals objected at one stage to Eichmann's single-minded hunt for Jews in Nazi-occupied Europe.

This was halfway through World War II when Eichmann advocated that Dutch half-Jews be considered full Jews for purposes of extermination.

Bach submitted documentary evidence that Hitler and the army opposed the suggestion on grounds that if carried through it eventually would mean that thousands of quarter-Jews serving in the German army would be lost to military service.

Bach said Eichmann's plan showed that "in certain points he was more extreme in his approach to the Jewish question than Hitler himself."

The story of Eichmann's failure in Denmark was told by a blond Danish Jew who came to Israel in 1946. It was in startling contrast to weeks of evidence that the Nazi campaign against Jews took its ghastly toll without resistance in country after country seized in the Nazi blitzkrieg.

Werner David Melchior, 35, a journalist and son of Copenhagen's chief rabbi, testified that the Danish people never gave up their interest in the fate of Jews deported from Denmark.

Melchior testified that arsonists who attempted to set fire to a Jewish synagogue were jailed by Danish authorities.

Laotian Cease-fire Questioned

VIENTIANE, Laos (P) — Three key executives of the once-rebuffed control commission sought an answer yesterday at the Communist-neutralist headquarters in Xieng Khouang to the big question: Is the Laotian cease-fire really effective?

"We are going up to make contact and find out how the situation is," said Samar Sen of India, the commission chairman, before departing aboard a French airline plane.

Time was running out. Upon the commission's findings — to be derived from surveys on both sides of the cease-fire line — may depend both the opening and composition of a projected 14-nation conference on Laos due to start in Geneva Friday.

The United States and some other Western powers, though already routing delegations to Geneva, have said they will not take part with Communists and neutrals in the conference until the commission confirms that the May 5 truce is on a firm footing.

Sen and Canadian and Polish commissioners flew to Xieng Khouang, on the rebel-held Plaine des Jarres 100 miles north-east of Vientiane, for a meeting with leaders of the pro-Communist Pathet Lao and ex-Premier Prince Souvanna Phouma's neutralist movement.

They expected to return Thursday to Vientiane, the administrative capital and seat of Premier Boun Oum's government. This is the second contact of the recently revived commission with the rebels. Rebel negotiators said they had no instructions and declined to recognize the commission in the initial contact at Hin Heup, the cease-fire negotiating site north of Vientiane.

Sen said before leaving that he has found the situation in Laos confused, but "there are encouraging signs." Shooting incidents have flared, although there have been no major battles.

Most officials in Vientiane tended to attribute random fighting to the usual Laotian confusion.

There was, however, concern over how the warring rightist government, the Pathet Lao and the neutralist camp will be able to subordinate political differences and form a coalition government. In the long run this was felt to be a danger point — one that may have to be settled at Geneva.
