

Kenworthy Views Budget Chances

By CAROL KUNKLEMAN

The University will keep trying to get its requested $23 million appropriation, Wilmer E. Kenworthy, executive assistant to the president, said yesterday.

"We haven't given up hope, we'll keep trying," Kenworthy said in commenting on the chances for passage of the University's appropriation.

The University budget is considered non-preferred legislation and is still in committee in the state House of Representatives.

Gov. David L. Lawrence's $899 million budget, which provides funds for the operation of state agencies, was passed yesterday by the House. However, this does not include education appropriations.

Sen. Jo Hays, D-Centre, explained yesterday that such appropriations, when considered separately as non-preferred legislation, require a two-thirds vote to be passed.

Because of this, the University's appropriation in its original form of $18.5 million may not have as "good a chance" in being raised as it would under a large bill for general welfare, he said.

Bills which include welfare for all the state are considered preferred legislation, Hays said, and may have a "slightly bigger advantage" in being changed.

President Eric A. Walker requested that the University appropriation be increased to $23 million.

In commenting on Hays' statement, Kenworthy said that in the past University appropriations have been changed, sometimes as an increase and sometimes as a decrease.

Kenworthy said it has been the practice of University presidents to speak to the legislature in behalf of the University. This was carried out by Dr. Walker this year in requesting the increase in the appropriations, he said.

"We also let the legislators know the services the University has performed for the state and the needs it has by working with legislators and committees," Kenworthy said.

The SGA Back the Budget Committee is an innovation this year and may also have a good effect in getting the additional appropriation, Kenworthy said.

A report is scheduled to be given by Edward Kotchi, chairman of the SGA Transportation Committee, on his progress in obtaining low-rate chartered buses to transport students to and from the University at vacation times.

Nell Hughes, election commission member, is also scheduled to give a summary of the past spring elections.

Coeds Will Hear Peace Corps Exec

Sally Bowles, a member of the executive staff of the Peace Corps program, will tell coeds about their opportunities in the program at 7:30 p.m. tomorrow in Dining Room A of the Hetzel Union Building.

Miss Bowles, daughter of Undersecretary of State Chester A. Bowles, will discuss the woman's role in the corps as part of the AWS lecture program being conducted during Women's Week.

She is a graduate of Smith College and was president of the student body while an undergraduate student there. Her brother is presently in Nigeria working on a project as part of the Peace Corps program.

According to the dean of women's office, 94 women have obtained Peace Corps applications, while the dean of men's office reported that 47 men have gotten forms.

The purpose of the forms, according to Peace Corps headquarters report, is to enable the Corps to obtain information about the number and qualifications of men and women now prepared to volunteer for service.

Filing the form does not obligate the volunteer or the Peace Corps, the report explained. Applicants are selected on the basis of tests and interviews and a training period in the United States.

Applicants completing the questionnaires must be at least 18 years of age and if under 21, must have parental approval. The completed questionnaire should be mailed to Peace Corps Headquarters, Washington 25, D.C.

Broadway Play 'Roots' To Be Given by Hillel

The Broadway play "Roots" by Arnold Wesker will be presented at 8:30 p.m. Saturday in the Hillel Foundation.

The play describes the human problems resulting from interfaith marriage. Tickets, priced at $1.50, are available at the Hetzel Union desk and the Hillel Foundation.

Senior Receives Award

The Outstanding Senior Award for scholastic excellence was awarded to Dorothy Baker from Pottsville by Iota Sigma Pi, women's honorary chemistry society.

A silver bowl and a $25 check were presented to Miss Baker at a recent meeting.

New officers elected at the meeting are Jayne Kimlim, president; Martha Young, vice president; Sara McLanahan, recording secretary-treasurer; and Carolyn Barton, corresponding secretary.

PENN STATE CHEERLEADER hopefuls, Bonnie Fehelcy, freshman in education from Eldred, and Paul Seltzer, freshman in liberal arts from Villanova, give an exhibition of their skills on the front lawn of Old Main.

9 Seats Remain For SGA Flight Set for June 11

Nine seats are still available on the SGA chartered flight to Europe scheduled for a June 11 departure, Mrs. Macklin John, of the Penn State Travel Agency, said last night.

"No definite deadline has been set for late applications, but I recommend that those planning to sign up for the flight do so within the next two weeks," she said.

Applications may be made at the SGA office in the Hetzel Union building or at the Penn State Travel Agency in the Metzger building.

The flight will be made via the KLM Royal Dutch Airlines, the oldest in the world, according to Mrs. John. Hot meals and 44 pounds free baggage allowance are included in the flight.

All non-citizens of the United States taking the flight and those not yet informed of passport and vaccination procedures should obtain special information from the Travel Agency, Mrs. John said.

"We are planning to charter a bus to transport people from State College to Idlewild Airport," she said. Final information will be sent directly to all those who have signed up for the flight.

Along with the SGA Flight, students may also sign up for a tour of 11 countries. Eleven persons, to date, have registered for the tour and transportation accommodations have been made for them, Mrs. John said.

"However," she said, "if more students wish to take this tour, we will modify our present arrangements."

Rain Expected Tonight; Cool Weather to Remain

Considerably cooler and drier air brought pleasant weather to Pennsylvania yesterday.

Today should be cloudy and cool with occasional rain beginning in the afternoon. A high temperature of 56 degrees is forecast for the afternoon.

Rain, possibly moderate to heavy at times, and cool weather is predicted for tonight, and a low of 45 degrees is expected.

The rain should diminish tomorrow but skies will remain mostly cloudy and temperatures should continue cool. A high of 57 is expected.

Local Talent Presentation Will Highlight Jazz Week

The Kenny Kuhn Quartet, the Swingtet and Frieda Lee will provide "jazz under the stars" on the Hetzel Union patio May 18 at 7:30 p.m.

This outdoor jazz show, to be broadcast on WDFM from 8 to 9 p.m., will be the highlight of Jazz Week which will begin Sunday, Al Pollon, Jazz Club president, said Tuesday.

The Don Krebs quartet and Frieda Lee are among the local artists who will be featured in "Jazz Speaks," a show to be televised May 19 by WFBG-TV, Altoona. The show will be presented in conjunction with the University Department of Public Information and will be taped for future televising across the state.

WDFM is scheduled to broadcast contemporary jazz on Monday night and "older" jazz on Tuesday night of Jazz Week. At 8:30 p.m. Wednesday, the recorded performances of all jazz artists who appeared on campus this year will be presented over WDFM. "Big Bands" will be highlighted at 9 p.m. Saturday on the same station.

Jazz week will begin and end with midnight jazz shows over WMAJ, Pollon said.

These programs will summarize the year in jazz at the University, recall the past, and look into the future, he said.

The purpose of Jazz Week, Pollon said, is not only to provide jazz for local fans and to end the season on a "good note," but also to commemorate the founding of SOJAC, the Society of Jazz Clubs. He said that Jazz Week will spread jazz through the area as SOJAC has spread jazz across the country.
