

Students Comment On Corps Success

By CARMEN ZETLER

The success of President Kennedy's Peace Corps will depend on the type of people sent as representatives from the United States to other countries, several international students said last week.

They agreed that the program had many drawbacks but that it was a good idea.

Mario Andrade, sophomore in the division of counseling from Bolivia, said that the Peace Corps was a good idea for foreign policy.

He said that since the human element would be present in the program, there would be better understanding between the countries involved.

Andrade said that there would be a lot of drawbacks to the plan. "The Peace Corps might become just a political toy," he said, "and it might get bogged down in red tape."

He added that another drawback was that it would be impossible to train people properly to live in other countries.

Andrade said that a Peace

Women's Week Speaker Tells Of African Trip

Miss Lornc Jochem, senior in home economics from Pompton Lakes, New Jersey, spoke on her summer in Africa at a Women's Week program sponsored by Atherton council Tuesday night.

Miss Jochem, one of a group of young people selected to go to Africa under the Operation Crossroads Africa program, described her experiences in Ghana.

The group arrived in Ghana in time for the independence celebration, she said.

From there the group went on to a small fishing village, she continued, where they spent two weeks building a school house with the aid of the Self-Help Project. Under this project, she explained, a group could apply to the government of Ghana for construction materials. The government would supply the materials and Operation Crossroads would supply the labor.

Commenting on the people's attitude toward the United States, she said that one part of American culture that has reached these people, is the "second-rate American films which present anything but a clear picture of American life."

Spending several weeks in Ghana was a wonderful experience, she said. "The people were friendly and considerate and went out of their way to make us feel at home."

Miss Jochem said she has applied to teach in East Africa after graduation but she said that she "doesn't know if anything will come of it."

Lipp Speaks On Future Of Coeds

Coed rules and regulations will be reduced in the future depending on "how fast we can help our women grow up," dean of women Dorothy J. Lipp said at an informal meeting last night.

Eventually women's residence halls will be divided into houses like those of North Halls. This will enable women students to take more responsibility in providing their own supervision, she said.

Dean Lipp's talk was the third in a series of five speeches being held as part of Women's Week, sponsored by AWS.

Pollock Community Council will present a talk on "Women in Professions" by Lillian Raycroft, attorney-at-law from Bellefonte, at 8 tonight in Pollock 1 lounge.

A fashion show, a student art show and various receptions on Mothers' Day, Sunday, will conclude Women's Week activities.

The fashion show, to be held from 1 until 2 Saturday in the HUB ballroom will feature clothes from the Charles Shop modeled by students.

A reception in the main lounge of the HUB sponsored by South Halls Community Council, will follow the show.

The student art show, sponsored by Pollock Community Council, opened today in the Pollock Halls recreation area.

Corps member must cease being an American and be a citizen of the world. He said that members should be prepared to meet the living conditions of the part of the world to which they will be sent.

Ranajit Datta, graduate in chemistry from India, said that the friendships built between a Peace Corps member and the people of the country he visits will be the main benefit of the program.

He said that his country would probably accept any Peace Corps member that the United States would send.

Said Ahmed, graduate student in electrical engineering from the United Arab Republic, and Farouk Fawzi, graduate in mineral economics from the United Arab Republic, said that there were not enough jobs for the Peace Corps members.

They said that their government might invite people with technical knowledge, but others would not be welcome.

Ahmed explained that he thought the Peace Corps would fail, but that the Peace Corps members would get a good idea of how the people in the various countries feel about the United States.

Tickets Available For Musical Show

Tickets for "Paint Your Wagon" are still available at the Hetzel Union desk for performances tonight, tomorrow night and Saturday night.

The Players production will be presented at 8 p.m. in Schwab.

"Paint Your Wagon" by Lerner and Loewe is set in the old west town of Rumson, founded by Ben Rumson who discovers gold there. His efforts to keep the town alive and the antics of the citizen miners and dance hall girls "make a rowdy and robust play," according to Ellis Grove, director.

The 35-member cast of "Paint Your Wagon" is one of the largest of any Players production.
