

Corter Compares U.S. Losses, Gains

(This is the fourth of a series of articles presenting the views of political science faculty members on the first 100 days of the Kennedy Administration.)

By JO ANNE MARK

Lee E. Corter, assistant professor of political science, said yesterday that President Kennedy's partial reverses in Cuba and Laos should be laid side by side with his partial successes in the Congo and the United Nations.

er functions and did not exert undue influence on student government or activities.

In the week and one-half that I have been in LP, plans have already been started for promoting school spirit next fall. As for any other phase of student life, an LP meeting is a bull-session where any member can discuss his problems with other members. Any influence could only be that that one person imparts to another through discussion, as is the case in any bull-session.

If ever I feel that Lion's Paw is deviating from its proper role and exercising undue influence or control, I would, just as any right-thinking man, resign from the organization and take up the crusade through Collegian to eradicate such harmful action to the student body.

No student can isolate himself from the wellspring of University life, but can only try in his small way to contribute to the betterment of his University.

Grads May Register For Language Exams

Graduate students planning to take the written foreign language reading examination July 3, who have not previously taken the preliminary oral test may arrange to take the oral tests.

All other students who have previously passed the preliminary oral tests but failed the written examination may register for the regular written examination by no later than June 15.

"Khrushchev is dedicated to the destruction of this alliance and all of his zigs and zags elsewhere are calculated to this end," Corter said.

"If the Western Alliance goes down the drain then the United States and all western civilization have had it," he said.

Corter said that he thinks the president has had a real jolt in the Cuban and Laos affairs.

"I think it is good that Kennedy has had this jolt. It is his nature to learn fast and he will be able to do the things which he now knows are necessary in the field of foreign affairs," Corter said.

In discussing the administration's congressional record, he said about 10 per cent of Kennedy's domestic program has been enacted so far. This constitutes a fairly good average at this stage of the game, Corter said.

About another 10 per cent such as federal aid to education is in the position to be enacted soon, he said.

"This record is a tribute to Kennedy's political skill," he said.

Two Employees Hurt in Crash

Two employees of the Department of Housing were injured yesterday morning when their car collided with a tractor trailer at the intersection of routes 53 and 45, Rockview State Police said yesterday.

Both Frank J. Snavelly, the driver of the car, and Lawrence Horner, a passenger, were taken to Centre County Hospital, police said. Snavelly was treated and released, while Horner suffered a head injury and minor cuts. The hospital reported his condition as satisfactory.

The accident occurred when Snavelly's car, traveling on route 45, failed to stop for the red blinker light at the intersection and ran in front of a tractor trailer which was traveling south on route 53, police explained.

Damages were estimated at $200 to the car and $1,500 to the tractor-trailer, police said.

Both Snavelly and Horner are employed as housemen. Otto E. Mueller, director of housing, said. Snavelly works in McElwain Hall and Horner in North Halls, he added.

Public To Finance Stone Valley

The Stone Valley Recreation Area will be supported and improved with money paid by people using the area; not with state funds, Tim Nelligan, senior class gift chairman, said yesterday.

The area was built with money from the Alumni Fund and the Senior Class Gift, Nelligan said. It is owned by the University, but is not a State Park, he said.

Because the University has too many other projects of greater academic significance than financing Stone Valley improvements, students and others who use Stone Valley facilities will be charged, he said.

The class of 1961 has contributed $5,000 toward the construction of a dock, boat landings and dressing rooms, Nelligan said, and all other money for the project has come from the Alumni Fund, which consists of private donations. Neither the state nor the University has contributed money directly to the project, he said.

Nelligan explained that students are not charged for merely visiting the area, but for the use of parking facilities and boats. The 25 cent parking fee will go toward maintenance of the newly constructed parking area and the construction of a proposed road around the lake.

In addition, students will only pay about half as much for the use of facilities as will others who use the area, Nelligan said.
