

Registration Explained By Haffner

By CAROL KUNKLEMAN
Registration under the four-term plan will be conducted with some of the same procedures used in previous years, but new processes have been added, Warren R. Haffner, assistant registrar, said yesterday.

The student entering Recreation Hall for registration will still pick up his No. 6 (course) cards at the various department stations on the main floor, Haffner said. Students will again be scheduled to enter Recreation Hall at 15-minute intervals as in previous registrations, he said.

Haffner said the main difference in registering will be that the student and his adviser will plan for all three terms — fall, winter and spring — at the beginning of the fall term.

After the planning stage, he said, the student will take both the fall and winter term schedules with him to registration.

Although he will only register for the fall courses at this time, the student will also submit in his winter term schedule, Haffner said.

These winter schedule cards will then be key-punched by the registrar's office and will be used to compile estimates on the approximate number of students who will be taking various courses during the winter term, he said.

Under the present system, accurate predictions of students enrolling in a course cannot be made but the new program will enable the departments to plan ahead, Haffner said.

He said that there may be two exits from Recreation Hall for the checking of course cards. The whole idea is to speed up the registration process, he said.

At the end of registration, the student will probably receive his new identification card and a separate registration receipt with activity numbers which will be punched for activities like the numbers now on matriculation cards, Haffner said.

When the student goes through registration for the winter term, he will take along his schedule for the spring term and probably go through a plan similar to the one to be used this fall, he said.
