

Opposition Swept Aside As Junta Gets Support Of South Korean Forces

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — Military rule settled firmly on South Korea today with the government of Premier John M. Chang and U.S. opposition swept aside.

American authorities here took strong stands against the military coup within hours after it broke Tuesday. But the junta leaders won the vital backing of all South Korea's armed forces and the 61-year-old premier formally resigned yesterday.

A 30-man committee was named to run the country. It is made up of military men headed by Lt. Gen. Chang Do-young, 38, army chief of staff.

Although the U.S. Embassy here and the American chief of the United Nations Command, Gen. Carter B. Magruder, publicly opposed the military takeover, U.S. sources said American recognition of the new regime is assured.

By getting Chang's formal resignation and keeping President Yun Po-sun on as chief of state, they said, the military junta resolved any issue of recognition. Official diplomatic links are with the chief of state, even though in South Korea this post is chiefly ceremonial.

Despite this apparent settling of the problem on the surface, there was no question that American authorities here were left in the position of having backed the wrong side.

Magruder's call for Korean military leaders to support the legally constituted government of Premier Chang was supported firmly by the U.S. charge d'affaires, Marshall Green. The words of both were ignored by the coup leaders.

Officially Washington did not take sides. But the outcome — a month after the Cuban invasion fiasco — was viewed by some as entailing a loss of face for Americans.

There were indications the United States, which has earmarked $253 million for South Korea's 1961 budget, would press for an early return to civil control. Its long-standing policy has been to stress the development of dem-

Mt. Alto Selected For Encampment

By ANN PALMER

The SGA Assembly last night voted to hold Encampment at the University's Mt. Alto campus rather than at this campus as proposed by SGA President Dennis Foianini and Encampment chairman Nancy Williams.

The Assembly, which had a quorum for the first time in the last three meetings, took this action after approving Miss Williams' appointment as Encampment chairman.

Eugene Grumer, Foianini's choice for Encampment business manager, was not approved by the Assembly.

John Witmer, U-Jr., advocated holding Encampment at Mt. Alto because of a more informal and secluded atmosphere.

"If Encampment were held at the University, people would go to special meetings but after hours they would go their own ways," Witmer said.

"At Mt. Alto we are forced to be together, and therefore to work together," he said.

Miss Williams and Foianini favored holding Encampment at the University because they felt that "resource people" would be more easily contacted and that facilities would be better than at Mt. Alto.

It was also reported by Miss Williams that holding Encampment on campus would cost three-fourths as much as at Mt. Alto.

The cost difference was pointed out in a recent survey by The Daily Collegian in which an official of the Food Services Department stated that Encampment people could be fed in a residence dining hall, thus reducing the food cost for the three day period.

Miss Williams reported that Encampment will tentatively be held Sept. 14, 15 and 16.

"This may have to be changed as those were the days planned for holding Encampment on this campus," she said.

In other business, the Assembly voted to ask the classes of 1948, '49, '50 and '52 to redesignate their unused class gift funds for either a beach at Stone Valley Recreation Area or to purchase books for the library.

Duane Alexander originated this action by asking the Assembly, last Thursday, to sup-

Housing Allows Men To Reject Rooms

By DAVE RUNKEL

The Department of Housing made a sharp about-face yesterday when it announced that men students can now reject their residence hall room assignments.

Earlier this week the department announced that men students were required to accept the room assignment given to them.

Otto E. Mueller, head of the housing department, said last night that the change had been made partially because of the misunderstanding of men who thought they would have a 10 day period to decide if they wanted the room.

Formerly it was a common practice among men who were unsure of where they were going to live the following year to apply for a residence hall room and take the 10 day period to decide whether to accept or reject it.

An announcement posted on the bulletin boards in all men's residence halls late yesterday afternoon told of the change in room assignment policy.

Men students can now reject their room assignments by submitting in writing to the housing department a request for the cancellation of their contracts, the announcement said.

This request for cancellation of residence hall room contracts must be filed with the Department of Housing in the basement of the Pollock Dining Hall before 5 p.m. May 31, James S. Kline, head of the assignment section of housing said yesterday.

The only reason for the former 10 day period between the notification of room assignment and the acceptance or rejection of the contract, Kline said, was to provide time for men to pay the $10 deposit which was necessary to reserve a room.

Since this deposit has been absorbed by a general $25 deposit required of all students, it is no longer necessary to have the 10 day grace period, Kline said.

Class Gift Fund Use Suggested

Robert G. Bernreuter, special assistant to the President for student affairs, said yesterday that he thinks improvement of the Stone Valley Recreation Area is an appropriate use for old class gift money.

"I think the money should be used for some undergraduate purpose," he said.

After reading the report of the Liberal Arts Faculty Library Committee, Bernreuter said, "it seems to me that the library deficiencies are mainly on the research level."

It is difficult for graduate students and faculty members to do the kind of research they want to do — especially in the liberal arts field — with the books available to them in Pattee, he said.

"It seems to me that it would be somewhat inappropriate to use money given by undergraduates to provide the library with research material," Bernreuter said.

Sunny Weather Due Tomorrow

Following the pattern established last weekend, more beautiful weather is expected tomorrow and Sunday.

Sunny skies and pleasant temperatures are expected both days.

Gradual clearing is expected today in the wake of a fast-moving storm system that dropped a quarter inch of rain in this area yesterday.

Mostly cloudy skies and cool temperatures are indicated for today, although some afternoon sunshine is likely. A high of 63 degrees is expected.

Tonight should be partly cloudy and cool, and a low of 46 is likely.

A high temperature of 70 degrees is indicated for tomorrow, and a high of 75 is expected Sunday.

Library Books Due

Mrs. Margaret K. Spangler, assistant librarian, requested yesterday that all students return library books before leaving for summer vacation. She especially asked that fraternity members search their houses for books.

Mazza to Prepare Housing Pamphlet

The State College Chamber of Commerce yesterday directed its president, Paul Mazza, to incorporate all of the information he has gathered on discriminatory housing into a pamphlet.

The pamphlet, which the group plans to distribute to all interested persons, will contain information gathered in the chamber's recently completed housing survey, Mazza said after the meeting.

The survey, in which 970 landlords were interviewed, revealed varying degrees of prejudice among landlords in State College. Jerome Weinstein, editor of the Centre Daily Times said last week.

Mazza said that he had promised the Chamber of Commerce that the pamphlet would be completed before the group's next meeting in mid-June.

The pamphlet, Mazza said, would be necessary before the Chamber of Commerce could decide on the feasibility of maintaining a list of all landlords not practicing discrimination.

Mazza said a housing list could be compiled in conjunction with the one presently being maintained by SGA. But, if that didn't work out, he continued, the Chamber of Commerce could maintain its own list.

SGA President, Dennis Fo-

iani said that SGA will work very closely with the Chamber of Commerce on the problem of discriminatory housing downtown next fall, but said he did not know of any plans for a joint SGA-Chamber of Commerce committee to compile a housing list.

Two students who have worked closely with the Chamber of Commerce on its housing survey have called for the organization to take over the housing list now being maintained by SGA.

Ruth Falk, chairman of the SGA Committee on Inter-Racial Problems, said that the housing list should be turned over to the Chamber of Commerce because students are not capable of discerning who is telling the truth about discrimination.

The situation is much too touchy for students to handle, she said.

Aaron Konstam, president of DARE, said that he would be happy to see the Chamber of Commerce set up a non-discriminatory housing list.

3 Parties to Hold Budget Pep Rally

By SARALEE ORTON

A "Back the Budget" pep rally will be held Sunday afternoon by the three political parties, Dale Harris, Liberal party chairman, said yesterday.

Plans are not yet definite, Michael Dzvovnik, University party chairman, said. He said the rally will probably be held on the steps of Old Main between the hours of 2 and 3 p.m. Cheerleaders have been asked to lead the rally and introduce "Back the Budget" chants, he said.

The three party chairmen, Miss Harris, Dzvovnik and Dennis Eisman, Campus party, met yesterday morning to plan the event, Miss Harris said. The parties have decided to forget their rivalry and cooperate in the budget campaign because it is important to everyone, she said.

A car caravan, probably starting in the fraternity district, will precede the pep rally, Miss Harris said. Plans have been made to have a band present, she added.

Eisman said that SGA President Dennis Foianini will speak at the rally. He added that the coalition of three political parties to hold the rally and a large demonstration by students should show "those people in Harrisburg" that students here are really concerned about the budget.

"Unless the budget President Walker requested is approved by the legislature, it is inevitable that there will be a tuition raise," Eisman said.

Miss Harris said the event will be covered by Harrisburg newspapers and the Associated Press. "The budget situation seems to be at a critical stage," she said, "and another manifestation of student interest would help greatly."

"Because of the administration's apparent lack of interest," Miss Harris said, "the students must take the initiative."

There will be a meeting for all those interested in working on the Summer Collegian (to be published weekly) at 6:45 tonight in 9 Carnegie. No journalistic experience is necessary. Anyone interested in working on the business staff of the Summer Collegian should contact Wayne Hilinski at UN 5-2531.
