

Walker Will Hold Peace Corps Report

President Eric A. Walker will not release the results of the Senate Committee on the Peace Corps' report on the implementation of a training program at the University until he receives the report's complete 60 pages.

The statement was made yesterday by Wilber E. Kenworthy, executive assistant to the president, who said that Walker now has only 12 pages of the report.

He said that Walker took these with him to a meeting of the Peace Corps Committee of the American Council on Education in Washington last week.

Kenworthy said last week the purpose of the meeting was "to see how the committee members can help the Peace Corps and how the Peace Corps in return can contribute to an educational program."

Because the 12 members on the committee were educators representative of the total number of colleges and universities throughout the country belonging to the council, it did not necessarily mean that they would set up a Peace Corps program at their schools, Kenworthy said.

He added yesterday that Walker will use results of the discussions held at the Washington meeting to gain perspective implementation for making his final decision on the implementation of a training program at the University.

Initially, the Peace Corps was established by executive order of President John F. Kennedy in March. It is now operating on a temporary basis under R. Sargent Shriver, director of the executive staff.

Financial backing for the Peace Corps is coming from Kennedy's reserve funds and the initial cost of the program will be about $5 million, Sen. Hugh Scott, R-Pa., said last month.

Under the program, volunteers will be sent to foreign countries to aid in developing agriculture, education and other areas, according to the Peace Corps information service.

Test dates for volunteers were recently announced as May 27 and June 5. The University was named as a interviewing center.

After the testing is completed, the Peace Corps will hold interviews before finally selecting the volunteers.

According to the information service, projects in Colombia and Tanganyika will begin in September.

Twelve SGA Scholarships Presented

The 12 winners of the scholarships for outstanding contributions to SGA were announced at the last SGA Assembly meeting.

The winners are Benjamin Bronstein, Joan Cavanagh, Eugene Chaiken, Jack Crosby, Walter Darran, Earl Gershenow, Marilee Grabill, Frank Milus, Dean Murray, James Sloane, Robert Umstead and Dean Wharton.

"In the past years," Susan Sherman, past SGA secretary-treasurer and chairman of the SGA Scholarship Committee, said, "The SGA budget has provided compensations for certain student leaders who, by their positions on campus, made contributions to student government."

"When the budget deleted these compensations," Miss Sherman said, "SGA decided to give a $50 scholarship as a special compensation to the 12 people judged to have done outstanding work for SGA during the year."

A seven member committee selected the winners from 21 applicants.

Scholarship winners may pick up their awards in 203 Hetzel Union Building any time after today, she said.

83 Students to Study Abroad

By BARB BROWN
Eighty-three students have been tentatively selected to study in French and German universities under the elective plan of the Study Abroad Program of the College of the Liberal Arts, Dr. Dagobert de Levie, program director, said.

The Study Abroad Program is divided into two plans, an elective plan and a specialized plan. The elective plan allows students to study at a foreign university for one 10-week term as registered University students.

Under the specialized plan, a student may study at a foreign university with a leave of absence from the University.

"No one was recommended by the Liberal Arts Committee on Study Abroad to participate in the specialized plan," de Levie said.

Those students chosen for the study will file final applications in the next few weeks, after conferring with their advisers about course selection, de Levie said.

Any students who cannot be accommodated in the 1962 spring term will automatically be considered for the 1963 spring term," he said.

"Students are very enthusiastic about the program. I seems to have brought about an incentive to either obtain or maintain at least the required 2.5 All-University average," de Levie said.

"The selected students are urged to continue study in French or German and prospective students should schedule History 18 or 19 (modern European history) to furnish a background of the territory that they will visit, he added.
