

Merchants Pledge Funds for Parking

By DOTI DRASHER

The downtown parking problem in State College received financial support from local merchants recently when $11,000 was given in cash and pledges to the parking fund, Paul Mazza, president of the Chamber of Commerce, said yesterday.

The $11,000 fund will be used by the State College Parking Authority toward planning for better parking facilities, he said.

A proposal several weeks ago to help create more off-street parking facilities was not well received, he said. At a recent chamber luncheon meeting Mazza challenged the merchants to support the parking plan and 22 businessmen responded. About 80 or 90 merchants must be contacted yet, he added.

He said that the problem, as yet, was not that the shopping centers were drawing business from the downtown area but that people were finding parking areas scarce.

The long range view of the parking proposal is to plan for the future needs of the community, Mazza said.

Mazza outlined the four basic problems of downtown parking:

- The downtown area is already suffering from a lack of adequate parking facilities.
- Downtown parking is a problem for the community and downtown merchants and property owners in particular.
- The problem must be solved by a cooperative effort between the community and the downtown businessmen and property owners.
- The community has created a Parking Authority with the power to borrow money, acquire land and operate parking facilities, and merchants and property owners must demonstrate support for worthwhile parking programs.

Mazza said that the "decline of property values and loss of business can never be fully recovered once the customer acquires the habit of shopping elsewhere."

2 Students Hurt While Scootering

Two students were injured Tuesday night when their motor scooter went out of control on a turn.

The operator of the motor scooter, Stephen L. Goodman, a sophomore in industrial engineering from Philadelphia, and his passenger, Nancy Smith, a freshman in arts and letters from Jacksonville Beach, Fla., received injuries on Route 550 at Matternville, on the road to Bellefonte.

They were taken to the University Health Center.

Dr. Herbert R. Glenn, director of the Center, said the couple was not hurt seriously.

Claremont Group Gives 2nd Concert

A concert of chamber music by Beethoven, Mendelssohn and the contemporary Gustavo Bercerra was presented Tuesday night by the Claremont String Quartet, an internationally known recital group, in the second of a series of eight concerts on campus this summer.

The group will present the next concert—a lecture recital at 8 p.m. tomorrow in the Hetzel Union assembly room.

The quartet has toured the United States, New Zealand, Australia, Israel, Holland, and France during the last year and this is their fourth summer to return to the University.

The quartet members are Marc Gottlieb and Vladimir Weisman, violin, William Schoen, viola, and Irving Klein, cello. The group has been playing together for eight years but all of them have been studying music since early childhood.

The quartet will alternate between Harvard University and this University during July and August to present their concerts and lecture recitals. The entire cycle of Beethoven string quartets will be presented at Harvard.

At a recent concert in San Francisco a reviewer said of the quartet's performance: "For balance of ensemble, keenness and aptness of expression, vitality and warmth, the Claremont Quartet has few equals in the world."

Duplicate Bridge

Duplicate Bridge games will be played at 7 p.m. Mondays in the Hetzel Union cardroom under the direction of Dr. Roger Saylor, professor of business statistics. Summer term memberships will be 50 cents.

Student, Alumnus To Train For Peace Corps Projects

Two University students have been selected to train for the first Peace Corps projects—a road building project in Tanganyika and a development program in Colombia.

William Grubb, sophomore in counseling from Westport, Conn., and Arthur Young, a graduate in forestry of the class of '55, from Schwenksville began intensive Peace Corps training Monday at Texas Western College in El Paso and Rutgers University in New Jersey.

Sixty hours a week will be spent by the volunteers in classes, laboratory-language work, athletic training and tests. The classes will include the study of the history of the country they will visit, United States history, community development, and technical problems which the volunteers will face.

The formal agreements for the work that the 28 Peace Corps members will do in Tanganyika include surveying, mapping and road building which will especially aid farmers in getting produce to the markets.

The Colombian volunteers will work in the villages on projects such as well drilling, school construction, malaria control, and road building. Care Inc. will be in charge of the Colombian project under an agreement with the Peace Corps.

Another examination for persons interested in volunteering for the Peace Corps will be given about the middle of July at a date which will be announced soon.

Persons interested in taking the examination do not have to have an application on file at Peace Corps headquarters but may fill out one at the examination.

The first train to come over the newly built Bellefonte Central Railroad arrived at the campus's station in 1891, where Engineering Unit D now stands.

Ex-President To Address Boy Scouts

General Dwight D. Eisenhower returns to the University next Thursday to address a regional encampment of Explorer scouts. It will be his sixth visit to Penn State since 1950.

The former President will fly from Gettysburg to speak at a luncheon meeting of 1,000 Region III Explorers, convened for a three-day educational and vocational conference.

He then will spend several hours touring sports clinics set up for the Explorers and featuring Penn State coaches—Charlie Speidel, George Harvey, John Egli, Gene Wettstone, Ken Hosterman, and Joe Boyle.

General Eisenhower will fly back to his Gettysburg farm at about 3:30 p.m., using the private plane of Roger Firestone, an official of Firestone Tire and Rubber Co. and a scouting enthusiast. Firestone is committee chairman of Region III, which includes Pennsylvania, Maryland, Delaware, Virginia, West Virginia, and the District of Columbia.

General Eisenhower last visited the campus in September, 1956, to participate in the dedication of the Helen Eakin Eisenhower Memorial Chapel.
