

Bikes--

 were buying bicycles or bicycle parts, that he has been so busy that he hasn't tried to keep track of the number of bikes he has sold. But, he said, he has been reordering by the hundreds.

Another reported that he had already sold over 100 bicycles and had another 75 on order which he expected to sell.

Only one thing does not seem to fit into this bicycle-buying frenzy. The police have been excluded in the great rush. The State College police require that all bicycles in town and on campus be licensed with them, but since the last licensing period began in April only 1,600 bikes have been registered with them.

So, those thousands of you who have not gotten your bicycles licensed yet, had better hurry down to the police licensing station in front of the Borough Building on S. Frazier St. this Saturday between the hours of 9 a.m. and 12 noon or 1 p.m. and 4 p.m. and 'settle up' with the law

Artist Series--

 present Sean O'Casey's "Pictures in the Hallway" Jan. 27.

February 4 begins a series of many different kinds of music when the Modern Jazz Quartet comes to the University.

Next, Felix de Nobel will conduct the Netherlands Chamber Choir Feb. 28, and closing the winter series on March 10 will be a concert by Pierrette Alarie, soprano, and Leopold Simoneau, tenor.

In the spring term, on March 31, the Pittsburgh Symphony Orchestra conducted by William Steinberg will arrive and finally, violinist Issac Stern will appear in Schwab on April 27.

Tickets are available at the Hetzel Union desk immediately preceding each performance.
