

Honor Dorm Permitted To Admit Male Visitors

By SUE HOOLEY

The admittance of men into the private lounge of Runkle Hall's "honor" dorm was approved yesterday by the Dean of Women's Office. This action followed closely the election of officers by the Delaware House unit.

The lounge privilege, held by no other unit in the area, is the first of many expected by the experimental upperclass group. Coeds in the unit will be allowed to entertain men from 12 noon to 10 p.m. daily and from 12 noon to curfew Friday, Saturday and Sunday night.

It also provides for the installation of a telephone, curtains and a door to insure privacy for the women in adjoining rooms.

For the present, women will sign out in the same area used by other members of Runkle Hall, Dean of Women Dorothy J. Lipp said yesterday.

Linda Goodman, junior in elementary education from Lower Merion, was elected president at a meeting Monday night. Other officers elected by the group of 70 women include: Beverly Legum, junior in liberal arts from Annapolis, Md., judicial vice president and AWS representative;

Gloria Barton, senior in liberal arts from Elizabeth, N.J., public relations vice president; Pam Enander, senior in secondary education from Little Silver, N.J., general committee vice president; Susan Hooley, sophomore in liberal arts from Rochester, N.Y., secretary; and Judy Deopp, junior in liberal arts from West Chester, treasurer.

Executive meetings, held last week, set up working committees, notably a judicial board, made up of three permanent members, one floating member and the AWS representative. Also formed was a seven-woman rules committee to determine necessary laws, fines and policy.

Miss Goodman, commenting on the group's action, called it "very encouraging." She went on to say that "the group is spirited, interested and energetic enough to make the project a real success."

Fee Problems--

After this step, the amount deductible must be shown on the student's fee receipt if the deduction makes his deposit go below $15.

"All these problems and others that will be arising are not due to the inefficiency of the staff," Hogan said. "They are and will be caused by the constant decrease in working time under the four-term plan."

"I personally wonder how we will do it," he said.

C of C Reveals Frosh Winners In Local Contest

Twenty-six freshmen recently accomplished something few people ever do. They got something for nothing.

They are the winners of the State College Chamber of Commerce's annual "giveaway" for freshmen.

Susan Gilbert, Nancy Weilder and Peter Bockelmann all received gift subscriptions to The Daily Collegian.

Ronald Cooper won a reversible Penn State jacket, awarded by Bostonian Ltd. Centre County Film Lab's 8 mm movie camera went to Susan Roberts Edmunds.

A $10 gift certificate from Penn Whelan Drugs went to John S. Stefamb. Harriet Bissell, Clearfield's winner; Larry Bell, Kalin's Men's Store winner; and Elliot McLaughlin, the winner from Mac's Haberdashery, all received sweaters.

Crabtree's awarded a Parker pen and pencil set to Susan Wagner and Murs Jewelry awarded an expansion watch band to Marsha Fargotstein.

Several merchants gave away gift certificates. The winners of the certificates were Stephen March, Harper's Inc.; Susan Bartholomew and Charles Greiman, G. C. Murphy; Karen Weaver, Music Room; and Jane Todd and George Steigler, Keeler's University Book Store.

Peggy Potemba and Bill Underwood received "his and hers" shirts from Danks and Co. John Ibex Jr. received corduroy slacks and a bulky sweater from Hur's.

Kalin's Dress Shop's prize, a kilt, went to Bonnie Jones. Susan Thurber received a wrist watch from Rea & Derick.

Schlow's Quality Shop awarded a blazer to Susan Bruce and Levine Bros. gave David Porter a man's jacket.

La Vie Organizes For '62 Printing

Organization of the '62 La Vie got under way Thursday night as over 200 candidates filled out applications to work on the staff of the yearbook.

At the meeting Phillip Steinhauer, business manager of the publication, told the candidates the history of the La Vie which dates back to 1859.

Although there are no specific changes planned, Cynthia Hawkins, University editor, said, "Penn State is constantly changing and we (the board of editors) feel that the La Vie, as the school's yearbook, must be an even bigger and better book this year to meet the challenge."

There are six different sections in the yearbook and a separate staff for each. The sections are: University, organizations, activities, sports, arts and seniors.

The book will be published sometime in late May, Miss Hawkins said.

5 Positions Remain For Study Abroad

Five qualified students may still apply for the spring 1962 Study Abroad program in Germany, sponsored by the College of Liberal Arts faculty.

This announcement was made by Dagobert de Levie, director of the program, at the Liberal Arts faculty meeting Thursday.

All sophomores, juniors and seniors who have an all-University average of at least 2.50, who are in good standing and who show evidence of maturity, stability, self-discipline and strong academic motivation are eligible to apply, deLevie said.

Completion of at least the equivalent of four semesters of German is required, and proficiency in that language is desirable.

A total of 70 students have already been selected to go abroad this spring. Twenty will go to Cologne, Germany, and 45 to Strasbourg, France.

There are also 80 additional students on a waiting list for France. If they do not get the opportunity to go this spring, they may re-apply for the 1963 spring term.

A total of 202 students applied for the Study Abroad program, which is being offered for the first time this year. They were screened and evaluated by a selection committee with the aid of their academic advisers.

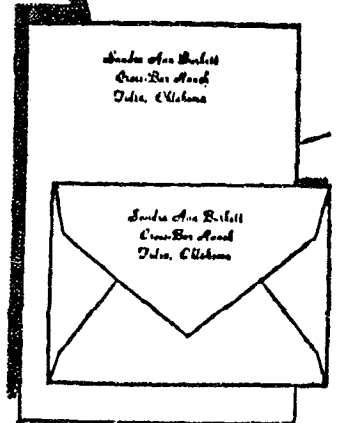

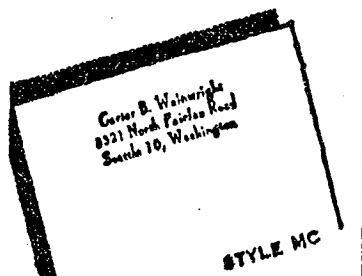

De Levie said that when the Committee on Study Abroad meets again next week, they will begin to consider the possibility of establishing the program in other countries.

Specifically, the committee is considering the Spanish-speaking areas and possibly England.
