Great banks of lights in the ball park do more than light up a game.

They symbolize the tremendous abundance of electric power that gives America more time for enjoyment . . . and more time for accomplishment.

Most of this power comes from the investorowned electric light and power companies.

They have made America the world's greatest electric nation, with so much electricity that we almost take it for granted, like the air we breathe.

The investor-owned electric companies serve 4 out of 5 homes and businesses ... double their supply of power each 10 years... always stay ahead of needs.

By 1970, for example, America will need twice as much power for new jobs, homes and businesses -and investor-owned companies like this one will be prepared to supply it.

They have experience and capability that the nation can rely on to Keep America Powerful.
