

'Corps' to Consider Domestic Expansion

Both the Peace Corps and the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare are interested in the idea of a "domestic corps" to work on projects in this country, Sally Bowles, assistant to the associate director of the Corps, said last week.

The expansion of the Peace Corps into these areas is still a future plan, but there is "interest and response" in Washington to the suggestion, Miss Bowles said at a four-state Peace Corps conference in Philadelphia last week. The domestic projects would probably involve urban renewal and work in the depressed areas of the country, she said. The programs would be a "contribution to our own country," she added.

Miss Bowles has been working with the Peace Corps since its establishment last March. Recently she was appointed as administrative assistant to Lawrence E. Dennis, associate director of the Peace Corps and former vice-president for academic affairs at the University. At the present time, manpower for Peace Corps projects in other countries comes chiefly from surveyors, teachers, and engineers. However, the Peace Corps

Westmoreland Will Review ROTC Cadets

Inspection of a tri-service honor guard of 150 University ROTC cadets will highlight a visit by Maj. Gen. William C. Westmoreland, superintendent of the U. S. Military Academy at West Point, to the campus Saturday for the Penn State-Army football game.

Westmoreland will accompany President Eric A. Walker on an inspection of the honor guard at 10:30 a.m. on the lawn in front of Old Main.

The 50-piece Army ROTC band, a color guard and platoons from the Army, Navy and Air Force units will make up the complement to be inspected.

Some 1,100 cadets from the Academy will pass in review for Westmoreland and Walker at 12:45 p.m., just before the football game.

Walker will also hold a luncheon prior to the game for Westmoreland and his party. The General's party will include Brig Gen. Richard G. Stillwill, commandant of cadets at the Academy; Brig. Gen. William W. Bessell Jr., assistant superintendent of the Academy; and Maj. Gen. Rinaldo Van Brunt, deputy commander of the U. S. 2nd Army at Ft. Meade, Md.

Following the game, a reception and dinner party will be held at the Nittany Lion Inn for Westmoreland and his party. The General will conclude his visit Sunday morning, returning to the Academy by plane.

AWS Grants Two 2 A.M.'s For Jr. Prom

The Association of Women Students Senate last night authorized 2 a.m. permissions for all women on the Friday and Saturday evenings of Junior Prom weekend, Oct. 20-21.

The Senate defeated a proposal that coeds be granted one 2 a.m. permission that weekend.

Earlier in the meeting the president and treasurer of each community council were installed by Patricia Dyer, chairman of the central judicial board. These officers plus the AWS executives and representatives from other women's governing bodies compose the AWS Senate.

The Senate also began discussions on a proposed permanent constitution embodying the concept of representation on the community level.

AWS has been operating under a temporary constitution which includes the community councils, Janis Somerville, chairman of the constitution committee, said.

AWS last functioned under a permanent constitution in 1959, with representation on class rather than community level, she said.

The Senate also decided to hold its spring election of officers on Feb. 13 and 15 in connection with other women's governing bodies.

will soon need many volunteers from the resources of American labor, Peace Corps officials said.

The volunteers now in training serving abroad are all college graduates or have had some college training. However, this week the first non-college person began training at the University of Michigan for the project in Thailand.

The non-college volunteer, Donald Short, has worked as a telephone repairman and metal worker for 11-years. His future assignment in Thailand will be as a metal-working instructor.
