Tribunals Recommend Penalties

By DAVE RUNKEL

(This is the first of a series of articles discussing the men's disciplinary system at the University. Today the student tribunal system will be outlined.)

Men's tribunals hear student conduct problems referred to them by a member of the dean of men's staff, Daniel R. Leasure, assistant to the dean of men in charge of disciplinary counseling, said last present the dean of men in charge of disciplinary counseling, said last present the dean of men in charge of the dean of

The tribunals, after hearing the cases, recommend to the dean of men's office specific action to be taken against the offender, Leasure said.

Tribunals do not judge the guilt or innocence of a student, he explained. A student appearing before a tribunal is assumed to be guilty since all of the facts of the case are checked by a member of the dean's staff before the tribunal hearing, he

After appearing before a tribunal, a student's case is reviewed by either the assistant dean of men or by the Senate Sub-Committee on Discipline, Leasure said.

"This year's tribunal system will be as flexible as possible,' Leasure said, "Complete consist ency, for its own sake, is not a goal," he added. It is necessary to weigh extenuating circumstances in many cases, he explained.

Personal factors such as a student's system of values, previous living practices and differing preception and understanding of an event, must be recognized in disciplinary administration, he said.

In addition to the flexibility in discipline, the structure for handling disciplinary cases itself will be flexible. This structure might even be altered during the present year, Leasure said.

He suggested no specific changes under consideration, but stated that more alternates will be selected for the tribunals this year. In addition, these alternates will be more active in the tribunals than in previous years.

At the present time there are six men's tribunals. There is one for each men's living area on campus and one to handle all cases involving men living off campus whether in fraternities or independent men.

Members have been selected and training programs carried out for the West Halls and the Off-Campus Tribunals, Leasure said. He added that he hoped to have the remaining four tribunals selected and trained by the end of next

STATE OF THE STATE CONTROL SYSTEMS: ORDERS FROM A COMPUTER NOW CONTROL GIANT OIL REFINERY UNIT OO!

Every 24 hours, the world's largest distillation unit separates crude oil into ten different categories which end up as six million gallons of finished products.

This involves continual monitoring of 250 instruments, followed by precise balancing of controls. To operate at peak efficiency, control directions are changed many times daily to compensate for a multitude of variables.

The IBM computer that took over this job now reads the instruments, makes the calculations, and issues the orders for the control changes. It is guided in its work by over 75,000 instructions stored in its electronic memory.

Just a few years ago electronic control of such a complex industrial process would have been impossible. But such is the progress in computer systems that in the sixties it will become commonplace.

This dramatic progress means exciting and important jobs at IBM for the college graduate, whether in research, development, manufacturing, or programming.

If you want to find out about opportunities in any one of these areas, you are invited to talk with the IBM representative. He will be interviewing on your campus this year. Your placement office can make an appointment. All qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to race. creed, color or national origin. Write, outlining your background and interests, to: Mgr. of Technical Employment, Dept. 898, IBM Corporation, 590 Madison Avenue, N.Y. 22, N.Y.

You naturally have a better chance to grow with a growth company.

IBM will interview Nov. 7, Nov. 8.
