

Leasure Explains Supportive Penalties

By DAVE RUNKEL

(This is the fifth in a series of articles discussing the men's disciplinary system. Today the supportive penalties which a student may receive will be discussed.)

Supportive penalties occur in conjunction with one of the main—probationary or suspensionary—penalties discussed in Wednesday's article.

A majority of these supportive penalties pertain only to men living in the residence halls, Daniel R. Leasure, assistant dean of men said. Restriction to the living unit, a change of rooms and a ban from the living unit are three supportive penalties which can affect only students living in the residence halls.

A student placed under restriction must "sign in" with the duty counselor in his area several times during the period for which he is restricted. Restriction is usually for a weekend, Leasure said. It normally is imposed to reduce undesirable behavior, such as weekend drinking, he explained.

A student living in a residence hall who becomes incompatible with the other members in his residence hall unit may be moved out of the unit. This room change must be approved by the director of residence hall counseling, Leasure said.

The third supportive penalty affecting only students living in the residence halls is banning a student from his living area. This ban, for certain hours, usually 7 to 12 p.m., is desirable if the student is noisy in his living area but can be encouraged to study elsewhere, Leasure said.

Two additional supportive penalties may affect all men at the University. These are a letter to the home of the student and restitution for stolen items.

A letter to the student's home is to inform his parents of his behavior while at the University, Leasure said. This letter is usually written by the counselor coordinator.

The last supportive penalty listed by Leasure is restitution. This is usually financial restitution for items a student has stolen, he explained.

Soph Board to Collect Class Gift Fund Pledges

Dean Wharton, last year's sophomore class president, announced that during the next three weeks the Sophomore Class Advisory Board will be collecting class gift pledges totaling $157 which were made during the fall registration. The class gift total was brought up to $6,488.35 with the $1,456.27 which was collected during registration.

Commonwealth Campus News

By ROBERT FISHER

This is the first of a weekly column of news from the University's 14 Commonwealth Campuses.

PHILADELPHIA — Ogontz Campus has announced the largest enrollment in campus history, with 954 students having taken the long trek through the registration line. In addition, a number of student nurses will again be taking courses at the campus, which is located in Abington, in the suburbs of Pennsylvania's largest city.

Soon in operation at Ogontz will be the campus' own full-time radio station, WOG. Rock 'n' roll has already been banned.

Close to 50 per cent of the student body participated in last week's Student Government Association election, which produced one sophomore and six freshman SGA representatives.

SGA President Louis Huber and Vice president Phyllis Merion will be Ogontz's delegates to the November 3-4 meeting of Organization of Student Government Associations at University Park.

Frosh Party Victorious

DUBOIS — Freshman Roman Marciniak, Jr. led his Fighting Frosh party to a landslide victory in the fall election of this Western Pennsylvania campus.

Marciniak was elected president of the freshman class, while Michael Gillespie won the vice president's spot and Bobbie Jean McIntosh was successful in her bid for secretary-treasurer.

Schultz Wins SGA Presidency

POTTSVILLE — John Schultz has been elected SGA president at the Pottsville Center. The sophomore from Minersville has as his fellow-officers Joseph Carr, vice president; Carol Pridokas, recording secretary; Joseph Mesch, treasurer, and Maryann Snesavage, secretary.

Frederick M. Ciletti, assistant director of the Center, is running for a seat on Pottsville's City Council. Ciletti received the Democratic Party nomination in the spring primaries.

Allentown Customs End

ALLENTOWN — Freshman customs ended October 9 at the Allentown Center, culminating two weeks of doffing dinks, providing change and chewing gum, and wearing white shirts and ties.

Allentown, like many of the Commonwealth Campuses, has adopted freshman customs this year as a means of strengthening school spirit.

Radio Series to Feature Overseas Experiences

A new radio series titled "Passport," wherein faculty members describe overseas experiences, has been released to Pennsylvania radio stations.

The five-minute news-type segments already are being carried by a dozen of the state's larger radio stations. Some 50 faculty members are represented.

Chem-Phys Council To Hold Banquet

The Chem-Phys Student Council decided Wednesday to hold its banquet with the executive committee of the College of Chemistry and Physics next Wednesday evening.

The banquet is intended to bring about closer relations between the council and the college administration and also to discuss academic problems under the four-term plan.

In other business, the council decided to conduct three tours of the University's nuclear reactor, October 28.

The tours, which will last an hour and will be open to the public, will be conducted at 9, 10 and 11 a.m.

Jazz Workshop Will Feature Local Groups

The Penn State Jazz Club will hold its first workshop of the year at 1:30 p.m. Sunday in the Hetzel Union ballroom.

Freida Lee and Kenny Kuhn Quartet will be featured. In the quartet are Kuhn on drums, Doug Fish, tenor saxophone; Mike Goberman, string bass; and Jerry Withans, piano.

A discussion will follow in which the members may ask questions concerning the Jazz Club or jazz itself, Al Pollen, president, said yesterday.

Tickets for the October 28th concert in Schwab Auditorium featuring the Jazztet will be on sale to members only at the workshop. Tickets for the public will go on sale Monday.

Pollen said that memberships for the club will be sold only at the workshop from now on, instead of being sold at the club's booth outside the Lion's den as has been the custom.

The workshop is open to all members and to whomever else may be interested, he added.

Block 'S'--

Block "S" officials have requested that all members of the club wear white shirts or blouses for the half-time stunts tomorrow. This, he explained, is to insure color-uniformity for the television audience. It was emphasized that coats and jackets may be worn throughout the game and that the only time the white shirts and blouses must be seen is during the club's stunt performance.
