

State Executes Schuck At Rockview Last Night

Special to The Collegian from WRSC News

The administration of capital punishment returned to Pennsylvania last night after an absence of two years, when convicted murderer Arthur G. Schuck was executed at Rockview penitentiary.

Schuck, 41, was electrocuted at 10 o'clock after the governor's office announced last week there were no legal grounds for a reprieve or stay of execution.

Schuck was sentenced to die January 30, but was granted a 9-month reprieve by Gov. Lawrence because the state legislature was considering two bills to abolish the death penalty.

After the legislature defeated this proposal, Lawrence set Schuck's execution for the week of October 23. This was the first execution performed in the commonwealth during the past two years.

Schuck, a resident of Baden (Beaver County), was convicted of slaying Vincent Quigley in a shooting spree in 1957 at Economy. He also killed William Engel and wounded Quigley's fiancée.

The state claimed Schuck was trying to shoot Mrs. Rose Rogozine, who reportedly broke off a romance with him. The car in which Engel, Quigley and his fiancée were riding, resembled a vehicle owned by Mrs. Rogozine. Schuck mistook the car and its occupants and opened fire from ambush with a hunting rifle.

Earlier yesterday before he was transferred to Rockview from Western Correctional Institution in Pittsburgh, Schuck slashed his wrists with part of a razor blade.

Finalists--

(Continued from page one)

To date, 18 fraternities and three living units have entered the Homecoming Display contest.

Fraternities must build their displays around the theme "California-Penn State Game." Final judging will be Friday evening from 6-9 p.m.

The judges are Frank Schlow, local merchant, William Fuller, head of the Associated Student Activities, and Mrs. Hadley Waters.

Participants are not to exceed a budget of $50 for their displays. Richard Moyer, chairman of IFC lawn displays said. The winning group will receive the Alumni Association Trophy and will be honored at an Alumni Association banquet Friday night. Alpha Chi Rho currently holds the trophy.

Entrants in the Homecoming Display contest are Alpha Chi Sigma, Alpha Gamma Rho, Delta Upsilon, Kappa Delta Rho, Phi Delta Theta, Phi Gamma Delta, Phi Kappa Theta, Phi Mu Delta, Phi Sigma Kappa, Pi Kappa Alpha, Sigma Nu, Sigma Pi, Theta Chi, Triangle, Theta Sigma and Zeta Beta Tau. Watts Hall, East Halls C and B have also entered the contest.

Credit Staff
4 P.M., Today
Compulsory
New Members
Collegian Office
6:45 —Thurs.

Club to Present Flower Show This Weekend

The Horticulture Club will present its 48th annual horticulture show from 9 a.m. to 7 p.m. this Saturday and Sunday at the livestock judging pavilion.

The show entitled "A Century Ago" will feature gardens of the North and South from the Civil War period. Other displays will include a functional water wheel which is to depict Northern industry while a mansion will characterize the beauty of the South. A Union and a Confederate flag will be displayed in red, white and blue flowers.

The Penn State marigold, named in honor of the College of Agriculture, will be exhibited for the first time during the show. The flower, which was developed by the W. Atlee Burpee Seed Co., commemorates the centennial of the founding of the Land-Grant College system in 1862.

Students will begin construction of the show tomorrow and will continue working until the opening of the show on Saturday morning. Featured will be exhibits in landscape architecture, plant breeding and food processing.

The first women students were admitted to Penn State in 1871.

The Penn State Alma Mater was written by Professor Pattee, after whom the library is named.

Student Describes Nigerian Summer

By PEGGY RUSH

Spending seven weeks in a small village in eastern Nigeria constructing a flight of steps leading to a water hole is regarded by Bernice Parr, junior in arts and letters from Pittsburgh, as one of the most rewarding experiences of her life.

Miss Parr, along with 13 American and 11 Nigerian students, spent ten weeks in Nigeria this summer working on an Operation Crossroads project. The project was the building of 275 cement steps down a steep slope to a stream which the people of the village of Achina use as their water supply.

Operation Crossroads is a program, founded and directed by the Rev. James Robinson of New York, which sends American students to Africa to work among the people. In this third project, there were 200 students comprising 18 groups in 14 different African countries.

Africa is not the kind of a country everyone usually thinks it is, Miss Parr said. There are no wild animals roaming around, the temperature is never more than 75 to 80 degrees, and although the people are very poor, they are not backwards, she said.

While they were in Achina, the students in the project were invited to other villages to watch tribal dancing. They also visited schools and talked with the native children.

"The children are very interested in America and want very much to come to school here," Miss Parr said. The problem of discrimination in America is magnified and of great concern everywhere in Nigeria, she added.

The majority of the natives are Moslems, although Christianity is becoming more widespread, Miss Parr said. She explained that these are also many pagans among the people. Miss Parr met one boy whose father was a polygamist with 18 wives and 171 children.

Besides working in Achina, the group also spent some time touring other parts of Nigeria and visited Ghana. "The people of Ghana seem to be moving ahead quite fast," Miss Parr said.

THE BELL TELEPHONE COMPANIES SALUTE CARL HORN

How many more people will need telephone service in Illinois by 1970? How many more telephone buildings should be built, how much more equipment ordered? Helping to find the right answers (because the wrong ones could be very expensive) is the job of Carl Horn, a telephone company economist who graduated from college just last year. His studies and estimates help management make important forecasting decisions. Decisions that will bring advanced communications to the nation.

Carl Horn of Illinois Bell Telephone Company, and other young men like him in Bell Telephone Companies, help make your telephone and communications service the finest in the world.

BELL TELEPHONE COMPANIES

