

Most Penalties on Men Imposed by Dean's Office

By DAVE RUNKEL

(This is the sixth of a series of articles discussing the men's disciplinary system. Today the position occupied by the office of the dean of men in that system will be explained.)

The dean of men's office is the main cog in the men's disciplinary machinery. The office instigates all action, investigates all incidents and has the final say in most penalties imposed on men students.

Only the Senate Sub-Committee on Discipline has more authority on discipline cases than does the dean of men's office. This sub-committee reviews all men's cases which involve penalties of suspended suspension or those more severe. The sub-committee will be discussed in a later article.

All men's disciplinary cases begin with an investigation of an incident by a member of the dean of men's staff, Daniel R. Leasure, assistant dean of men said.

If a student, living in a residence hall, is caught breaking a University regulation; he is referred to his counselor. The counselor, after he investigates the case, hands all information concerning it to the counselor coordinator in that area.

The coordinator can then either refer the case to the area tribunal for its recommendation, Leasure explained, or make a decision on the case himself, after consultation with the dean's office.

The procedure is similar for a student living off campus, he said, except that the dean of men's office makes the investigation.

All tribunal recommendations

Taylor Will Participate In National Workshop

Bernard P. Taylor, executive director of the Penn State Foundation, will participate in a special workshop on "The Big Gift," sponsored by the American College Public Relations Association and scheduled for Nov. 5 and 6 in Chicago, Ill.

are reviewed by the dean's office. Although the office may change any tribunal decision, only about five per cent of the recommendations in the last few years have been changed, Leasure said.

Further contact with students who have been penalized is usually made by the dean of men's office, he explained.

Appeals from students desiring a more lenient penalty are also heard by the office of the dean of men. The office will review the case again, paying particular attention to the reasons given by the student for a more lenient penalty, he explained.

AUSA to Meet Tonight For Convention Report

The Association of the United States Army will hold its first meeting of the year at 6:30 tonight in 214 Hetzel Union Building. The meeting is open to all sophomore and advanced Army Cadets.

The purpose of the AUSA is to provide for the military security of the country and give further training to cadets enrolled in the Army ROTC program.

Approximately 65 cadets of the association recently returned from the annual convention in Washington, D.C., where they attended a luncheon with Gen. L. L. Lemmitzer, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

IFC Sing--

(Continued from page one) State College music teacher; Miss Dolores Sell, Bellefonte music teacher and Robert Koser, assistant registrar.

Last night, the fraternity group and sorority quartet competition took place. The required song for fraternities is "Do You Fear the Voice of the Wind?" and, like the sororities, the second one was a fraternity or school song of their choice.

The three finalists definitely named are Acacia which sang, "We're All Good Brothers"; Alpha Chi Rho which chose "The Dream Girl of Alpha Chi Rho"; and Pi Kappa Phi which sang "Pi Kappa Phi Girl."

The fourth-place finalist will be determined tonight when a run-off between three fraternities is held. They are: Alpha Kappa Lambda, which sang "Alpha Kappa Lambda Sweetheart Song"; Sigma Phi Epsilon, which chose "Sig Ep Girl"; and Theta Xi which sang "Theta Xi Sweetheart."

Sorority quartet finalists are Alpha Kappa Alpha which chose "I'd Enter Your Garden" and "Elijah Rock"; Alpha Omicron Pi, which sang "Once in a While" and "Basin Street Blues"; Delta Delta Delta which sang "Sam" and "Cindy"; and Delta Sigma Theta which chose "Swing Low Sweet Chariot" and "Sweet and Low."

Last night's judges were the Penn Statesmen, Mrs. Neil McNall, State College music teacher; and Koser.

Final judging will be held at 8 p.m. in Schwab. Anyone may attend for a 25 cents admission fee.

Newman--

(Continued from page one) nominations, Nov. 5.

Campus party had the largest registration at the first meeting with 166 new members. University party was second with 117 and Liberal party registered 29 new members.

The three parties will hold registration meetings again Sunday evening.

Students Described As Active in Senate

By SARALEE ORTON

Students can and do play an active role in the operation of the University Senate and the Senate committees, Robert G. Bernreuter, special assistant to the president for student affairs, said recently.

Although there are no student members of the Senate, student members of the committees and subcommittees are allowed the "privilege of the floor" at the monthly meetings to suggest recommendations for action, Bernreuter said. These students cannot make motions or vote, he said, but in being allowed to present proposals they are accorded a right not granted to faculty members who do not sit on the Senate.

Students also have the right to appear before any Senate committee to present a proposal or a complaint concerning the University, Bernreuter said.

In addition, students serve as both voting and advisory members of various senate committees, he said. For instance, two students act in an advisory capacity on the senate committee on Calendar and Class Schedule to bring the student viewpoint on the calendar to the committee. Although the recent proposal for a Thanksgiving recess did not pass the committee, Bernreuter said there was not a failure in communications.

Students also serve on several subcommittees under the Senate committee on Student Affairs, he added. He explained that students are voting members on the academic honesty subcommittee, the organizational control committee, which charters new student activities, and the discipline subcommittee.

Laurence H. Lattman, chairman of the Senate committee on Student Affairs, said that the president and vice-president of the Student Government Association and the president of the Association of Women Students are full voting members of his committee.

Students may also bring complaints or recommendations concerning student affairs to the committee and are automatically granted the privilege of presenting their case, Lattman said.

Promotion Staff Tonight

Room 124 Sackett

Old Members 6:30

New Members 7:00

STILL TIME TO JOIN

Froth

Circulation Staff

MEETING TONIGHT

7:00 P.M. - 215, 216 HUB

Froth Out Tomorrow