

Committee Sets Policy On Calendar

By SARALEE ORTON

This is the second article in a series explaining the constitution and functions of the University Senate and the major Senate committees.

The Senate Committee most concerned with the proposed Thanksgiving recess is the calendar and class schedule committee which voted last week not to recommend the proposal at the Senate's next meeting.

The calendar committee is responsible for the policy on which the year's calendar is based, not for the actual calendar, chairman Harold Read said.

However, the policy adopted for the four-term system at the Senate's June meeting last year states that Thanksgiving Day shall be the only day allowed for Thanksgiving vacation and that this day shall be made up on the Monday after the 10 weeks is over.

This year's calendar differs in a few details from the policy. However, when the policy was approved, it was with the amendment that any changes in this year's calendar would be in the direction of conformance with the stated policy, Read said.

At the committee's meeting last week it was decided that there was not sufficient reason to change the present policy to allow for a longer recess, Read said.

The calendar committee, one of the 15 Senate standing committees, is charged with recommending policies to the Senate and dealing with problems which arise concerning the calendar.

The committee also has the right to originate material, Read said, and place it in the form of a motion for approval by the Senate.

The committee has five members: G. Kenneth Nelson, head of the Department of Accounting and Business Statistics; Miss Helen Snyder, assistant professor of psychology; Vernon V. Aspaturian, associate professor of political science; Thomas Wartik, head of the Department of Chemistry; and Read, professor of physical metallurgy.

Commonwealth Campus News

By ROBERT FISHER

UNIVERSITY PARK — All 13 commonwealth campuses have announced their delegates for the meeting of the Organization of Student Government Associations to be held here next week.

Those who will be representing their respective campuses are:

Allentown, Robert Krause and Thomas Herman; Altoona, George Kelchner, Faith Szuhaj and Sandra Gutshall; DuBois, James Welz and Robert Blakeslee; Erie, Alan McAllister and Dale Black.

Hazleton, Richard Bertolini, Paul Miller and Edward Soltis; McKeesport, John Chuhanic and Judith Downs; New Kensington, G. Lynn Adams and Albert Chelko; Ogontz, Louis Huber III and Phyllis Merion; Pottsville, John Schutz and Joseph Mesch.

Scranton, Willard Griffiths, Theresa Sardo and Robert Ryan; Wilkes-Barre, Joseph Berton and Harry Karafonda; Wyomissing, Stanley Love and W. Donald Brooke; and York, John Fasick and Barry Shearer.

SGA President Dennis Foianini will open the meeting Friday evening with a talk on "Student Government at University Park."

NEW KENSINGTON — One hundred students, including the campus' first coed, have enrolled at the New Kensington Center. Included in the figure are 58 drafting and design technology majors, and 41 in the electrical technology curriculum. Both are 2-year curricula and lead to associate degrees.

WILKES-BARRE — Students at Wilkes-Barre Center will be able to see select motion pictures, under a program called the Great Film Series. Already shown was "Grapes of Wrath," with "The Wild One" scheduled for Nov. 14 and "From Here to Eternity" set for Nov. 28.

DUBOIS — Six industrial scholarships have been awarded to students at the DuBois Campus. Winners are Joanne Allen, sophomore in secondary education; Timothy Stine, sophomore in business administration; William Mikelonis, sophomore in electrical engineering; John Halstead, sophomore in electrical technology; Donald Corp, sophomore in drafting and design technology; and Ross Kester, freshman in drafting and design technology.

All the students live in the DuBois area.

The Congress of Pennsylvania Junior Colleges will convene at DuBois Campus Nov. 17 for their fall meeting. Robin Blakeslee, of the host campus, is president of the organization.

MT. ALTO — Michael Taylor, of Lansdowne, has been elected president of the class at the University's Forestry School at Mt. Alto. Serving as vice president will be Donald Travitz, of Pottsville, while James Lauderbaugh, of Brentwood, will perform the duties of secretary-treasurer.

Both the bowling and football leagues enter the fourth week of intramural competition on Monday.

Parties May Not Merge--

Those who want Liberal party to dissolve and become part of University party must be a little "self-sacrificing," Sharp said. If this move is approved, he said, some people will be without a party for a year. But, he added, this can be rectified next year.

"Also, Sharp said, nowhere in the SGA constitution does it say that students cannot work for the party of their choice without being a member."

Walker Requests Meeting With Fry

President Eric A. Walker requested a meeting with Robert Fry, president of TIM, which will take place at 3:15 p.m. today.

"I was given to understand that the meeting will be concerning a letter written at the request of the TIM council to President Walker favoring the extension of the Thanksgiving vacation," Fry said.

"I also understand that the meeting will concern the TIM committee which wrote the letter and the reply that was sent by Walker," he said.

Fry said that Wilmer E. Kenworthy, executive assistant to the president, called him yesterday requesting the interview for Walker.

The TIM letter was drafted by the committee on student welfare after the council passed a resolution favoring the extension of the Thanksgiving vacation, Fry said.

The reply by Walker indicated that it was a misunderstanding (Continued on page five)
