Registrar Comments On Pre-registration

If pre-registration goes into effect for the winter term, students who have to make changes in their winter term number 2 card schedule will have to make them during winter registration or during the drop-add period, Robert G. Bernreuter, registrar, said yesterday.

During fall registration students who had to make schedule changes that would affect their winter term schedules should have seen representatives from their colleges before these changes were made, he said. At this time the representatives were instructed to have these students fill out new number 2 cards for the winter term, Bernreuter said.

Item G on the registration envelope which outlines registration procedures reads, "In case some major change must be made in your schedule, see the representative of the dean of your college in the center of the main floor."

If students had followed the regular registration procedures, they would have filled out new winter term number 2 cards at registration, if necessary," Bernreuter said.

"If students broke the registration rule and did not see their dean's representatives when making changes, then they will have to wait until winter registration or the drop-add period to make schedule changes," he said.

"We can only assume the students have followed the correct registration procedure in the fall," Bernreuter added.

Pre-registration is an experiment at the University, he said, and it is impossible, at this time, to know if it will be put into effect.

During the term, members of the registration staff have been pulling the class cards for students on the basis of their winter number 2 card schedule requests.

The final pulling of cards will take place today, Bernreuter said. "Then we go into the next step of presenting scheduling difficulties to the department heads to see if adjustments are possible," he added.

"At present out of about 17,000 students, we have pre-registered 13,000 efficiently and have about 4,000 problems," he said.

Va. Riot--

(Continued from page three) demonstration got more rowdy, when the police broke it up, students were sitting in the middle of the street." He said that the students were obstructing a through street in front of the campus.

An administrative spokesman said that the damage from the demonstration was slight from small fires, rocks and bottles that were thrown.

The University is under the semester-system, Sunderland said. This is the first year that the University has had a one-day Thanksgiving vacation.

Filipinos 'Pleased' With Peace Corps

The Filipinos are surprised and pleased that young American Peace Corps volunteers want to come to their country to learn, Dr. Paul W. Bixby, director of the Philippine training program here, said yesterday.

Bixby has just returned from five weeks in the Philippines where he continued directing the training program for the 128 volunteers who trained here this summer.

Dr. George M. Guthrie, associate professor of psychology, was acting director of the program here in his absence.

Bixby, in his first talk with the volunteers here, said that "too often Americans have gone abroad with the 'we know and we can show you attitude'."

He told the volunteers that they shouldn't feel as if they are going to work, but rather to be helpful. He said when they return to this country after two years they will feel they have been useful.

The volunteers' assignment will be to serve as teacher's-aides in English and science in the rural elementary schools of the central islands.

"The volunteers are not going to a downtrodden people who need to be saved," he said, adding that the Filipino culture is highly developed and in some ways more sophisticated than the American culture.

At present the volunteers are undergoing an intensive study of descriptive linguistics. Bixby said this will give them the background needed to more easily learn Tagalog - the national language of the Philippines.

Tagalog will be learned by the volunteers in several months of concentrated study when they arrive in the Philippines.

The several dialects spoken in the rural areas will be learned when the volunteers actually get there. The background training they have will enable them to learn it more quickly. Bixby said.

More Help Needed For Project Joey

About 20 more students are needed to help with the Independent Students Association's Project Joey from 1 to 5 p.m. Saturday at the St. Mary's and St. Joseph's Children's Homes in Cresson, Donald Fies, Project Joey chairman, said.

Fies said that interested students should sign a list at the Hetzel Union desk and should attend a meeting at 7 p.m. Thursday in 203 Hetzel Union. He added that the students planning to attend the Project Joey party should meet at 12:45 p.m. Saturday at the Hetzel Union desk.

Project Joey is held annually. The committee plans and gives a party for children living in a children's home. The party usually is in celebration of Christmas, but because the University's Christmas recess is starting earlier this year, the ISA voted to hold the party in November.
