Library Gets $100,000 From Special 1961 Grant

A special grant of $100,000 has been made to the library for the purpose of strengthening the present library collections, Ralph W. McComb, director of the library, said yesterday.

"President Walker has made this special grant available," he said, "which is to be spent as the grant last year."

"It will be used to take care of the requests made last year, but not completed." This money will not be used to start any new projects, he added, but to continue the projects started under last year's grant of $100,000.

McComb said that 10 per cent of the total of this non-recurring grant will be distributed for books on Commonwealth Campuses.

A large portion of this money will be spent to strengthen the library's incomplete liberal arts collection. The needs of such departments explains the unequal distribution of the grant money, he said.

McComb said that another special project to be continued from last year is additions to the microfilm collection, which consists of newspapers and historically important manuscripts.

Also, the library plans to fill in the collection of publications of European scientific academies, especially in non-scientific areas.

The library wants to acquire some seventeenth century English literature bibliographies as another project, he explained.

In addition, McComb commented on how much more the library space is needed. He explained has been used as compared to last year. Even though the library was adequate to accommodate the overloaded last year, he said, the number of students seeking study increase in the use of facilities places.

"The use has been such that there is never any slack," McComb added.

"The library work load seems heavier," he said, "and as we have been keeping up at the circulation desk, it has meant a loss of efficiency in other areas."

However, the library cannot afford to increase its staff, he said.

The library is trying to please the students in other ways, he added. Plans to extend library hours Saturday nights and to open earlier Sundays are being considered.

McComb said more study hall space is needed. He explained that library facilities are not adequate to accommodate the number of students seeking study places.

State's 1st Half TD's Result in 20-6 Win

By JIM KARL

Each day last week before practice, Mountaineer half-back Jim Moss paused at the bulletin board in the West Virginia dressing room.

Tacked on the board was an eight-column picture clipped from the Centre Daily Times of Roger Kochman catching a 36-yard touchdown pass against California.

Written across the top of the picture in black letters was: "This won't happen Saturday."

It may have been Galen Hall's beautiful fake, Moss' mental error, or simply Kochman's blinding speed, but it did happen again Saturday.

Close to 30,000 homecoming fans at Morgantown watched Kochman get behind Moss, caress Hall's perfect aerial, and then outrace the speedy Mountaineer junior to the end zone.

The play covered 66 yards and got the Lions off to a 20-point first half and an ultimate 20-6 victory over the fast-closing West Virginians.

The win gave State a 5-3 record and kept the Lions' faint bowl hopes alive. State plays Holy Cross at home Saturday and closes out the season at Pitt Nov. 25.

The Lions overwhelmed West Virginia in the first half, racking up 20 points in less than 20 minutes.

Kochman got State's first TD at 6:30 of the first quarter, and (Continued on page nine)

Cooling Trend Expected, Clouds, Rain to Continue

Very mild air covers the eastern third of the nation and until it is displaced by cooler and drier air, clouds and intermittent precipitation will prevail in this area.

It appears that cold air will reach this area late tomorrow, so cloudy skies and occasional rain is expected to continue until then.

High temperatures of 60 degrees are expected today and tomorrow, and a minimum of 53 degrees is indicated for tonight.

Party Chairmen Favor Campaigning for Parties

Chairmen of Campus, Liberal and University parties last night expressed a desire to campaign for the use of political parties in Assembly elections prior to the referendum which will determine student opinion on the use of parties.

Nancy Williams, elections commission chairman, said in answer that there is no reason why campaigning for or against parties cannot be held at the same time as the elections campaign is going on.

If interested students decide to campaign on this issue, they would be subject to the same campaign regulations that govern the assembly and class officer elections, she added.

Regulations governing elections are stated in the by-laws of the SGA constitution written last spring.

The by-laws state that personal campaigning may be held in the residence areas, University buildings and off campus so long as it doesn't interfere with the authority in each area.

The use of loudspeakers, bands, etc. is restricted to certain hours and the method of campaigning during elections is also limited.

Elliot Newman, University party chairman, said he is in favor of campaigning for the party referendum.

The Campus party plans to campaign in support of the use of political parties in SGA nominations and elections, Dennis Eisman, Campus party chairman, said yesterday.

"The Liberal party will do as much campaigning as possible in support of political parties in the coming referendum," Albert Sharp, acting Liberal party chairman, said.

"A lot of work went into the party plans for the election," Eisman said. "The action of the joint Senate committee on student affairs and organizational control, not allowing us to nominate, came as a great disappointment to many people."

Newman said, "I think the elections should be carried out under the old party system until students decide whether or not they want political parties."

Sharp expressed disappointment in the way the elections procedure turned out for this fall. He said, "I am extremely disappointed that Dennis Foinani who is supposed to represent student opinion, has done so little to back political parties."

Dennis Foinani, SGA president, countered Sharp's remarks by saying, "I have fought tooth and nail for political parties."

"In the beginning the joint Senate committee was completely opposed to the use of parties in student government elections, now they have agreed to a student referendum to decide the issue," Foinani said.

Bernreuter Sets Up Talks With Students

By CAROL KUNKLEMAN
 Dr. Robert G. Bernreuter, special assistant to the president for student affairs, announced yesterday that he will be available to discuss any "matters of common interest" to the students and administration at 7 p.m. tonight in the Hetzel Union Reading Room.

In a letter to The Daily Collegian, Bernreuter said he would like to do his part "in making communications easier" between the students and the administration.

"In several recent letters to the editor of The Daily Collegian, students have expressed the opinion that communication between students and the members of the administration of the University should be easier," Bernreuter stated.

"In view of letters printed in the paper, there seems to be a breakdown on the part of students, the faculty and the administration to understand each other and communicate freely," he said, in an interview yesterday.

Bernreuter also said in the letter that he would like to use the occasion to seek information from students on a number of topics that are of concern to him.

The idea for a discussion period was suggested by a University student in a personal note, Bernreuter said.

'Invitation to Dinner'

Facilities exist to accommodate "quite a few" members of the administration in the University dining halls for Thanksgiving Day dinner, Robert G. Proffitt, associate director of food services, said this week.

He said the suggestion of inviting administrators to dinner for that day has not been made directly to him, but they are "certainly privileged to use the dining halls Thanksgiving Day."

Guest meal tickets would have to be bought in advance for anyone other than students who wishes to eat a meal in the residence hall dining rooms, he said.

The cost for the Thanksgiving Day meal would be the same as for any other meal, although a special menu has been planned.

Since a fairly high rate of student absenteeism is expected for Thanksgiving Day, Proffitt said, there will be more room for members of the administration who want to eat in the dining halls that day.

When asked if he thought it was a good idea to invite the administration and faculty members for Thanksgiving Day, he said that "it depends on what you think will be accomplished."

Test Talks Urged

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States and Britain urged the Soviet Union yesterday to return to the Geneva conference table and resume the nuclear test ban talks which ran aground nearly two months ago.

There was little, if any, hope that Moscow will accept the invitation. That the chances are slim was indicated last week by Valerian Zorin, chief Soviet delegate to the United Nations, who said a test ban treaty must be worked out within the framework of general disarmament.

The U.S. note said the world organization has completed its debate by adopting a resolution calling for resumption of the talks.

Therefore, the note went on, the United States proposes that the discussions should continue starting Nov. 28, or on any other date agreeable to the Soviets.

The Geneva talks became stalled when the Russians resumed testing in the atmosphere on Sept. 1.

Since then Russia has exploded more than 30 nuclear devices in what the State Department called "the single most intensive testing program in history." It included 25 and 55-to-60 megaton super-bombs.
