

FIRST SNOW OF THE YEAR: The State College area awoke this morning to see the first snow of the year. A total of 2.5 inches fell during the night making many picturesque scenes. This one is the east side of the Mall shortly after 8 a.m.

Cloudy Skies, Snow Flurries Due

Cold weather should continue today in the wake of the first measurable snowfall of the season, which deposited 2.5 inches of snow on campus Sunday night and yesterday morning.

Snow was measured throughout the Commonwealth, with the heaviest amounts falling in the central and southeastern portions of the state.

Harrisburg reported four inches and north Philadelphia and Wilmington, Del. both had three inches.

The storm system that was responsible for the snow continued northeastward along the coast last night, and heavy snow fell in

New England. Up to 10 inches of snow is expected in parts of central New England by this morning.

A brisk flow of cold, unstable air should maintain cloudy skies in this area today, and occasional snow flurries are likely. A high temperature of 37 degrees is expected.

Tonight should be clear and colder and the low will be near 23 degrees.

Partly cloudy and slightly milder weather is indicated for tomorrow, and showers are possible tomorrow night.

Tomorrow's high will be about 44.

Pattee Will Stay Open For Holiday

Contrary to a previous announcement, the Pattee Library will be open on Thanksgiving Day with full services available from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m., Ralph W. McComb, University librarian, said yesterday.

Reading room service will remain open until 11 p.m. as on usual weekdays, he added. The Engineering-Architecture and Home Economics libraries are the only branches which have scheduled hours for Thursday, McComb said, but if the need arises the others will also be open. Hours are 2 to 11 p.m. for the Eng-Arch library and 7 to 10 p.m. for Home Economics.

McComb said the reverse in decision was due to "the expression of interest on the part of the President."

"However," he noted, "we should not give the false impression that we would not have done anything about it if the President had not recommended it."

McComb added that he had previously considered reversing his decision because the students expressed a desire to have the library open.

There are many personnel problems since employees had already planned their vacations, McComb said.

"But," he added, "we are doing our best to get people to change their plans and work."

Rockefeller Still Missing

HOLLANDIA, New Guinea (AP) — Dutch naval vessels and planes hopefully searched for Michael Rockefeller after rescuing a Dutch companion yesterday morning off a swampy, jungle coast of savage-inhabited New Guinea.

Dutch officials said there was reason to hope that the 23-year-old Rockefeller, youngest son of New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, also was safe.

The governor, flying 10,000 miles to help in the search for his son, said he hoped "they find him before I get there." He said he had complete confidence in Michael's resourcefulness and stamina.

President Kennedy offered the governor all possible aid in finding Michael, last seen Sunday afloat on a makeshift raft.

Young Rockefeller's Dutch companion, Dr. R. W. Wassing, 34, was picked up by a Dutch warship 22 miles offshore.

He said he last saw Rockefeller about 14 miles off the coast trying to reach the shore on a makeshift raft of two empty cans that could keep him afloat.

Wassing and Rockefeller were in the swampy mouth of the Eilenden River Thursday when the outboard engine fell out of their prau, a small native boat. The boat was swept by the current into Flamingo Bay, where it capsized in rough seas.

Two tribesmen from the prau swam ashore and told Dutch authorities Saturday what had happened.

The Dutch navy began a search of the area and a naval plane spotted the capsized boat Sunday. Wassing was clinging to it.

His condition was described as satisfactory, despite three days and nights of exposure to rough seas and scorching sun. He is due to arrive in Hollandia today by plane.

Rockefeller and Wassing set out Nov. 1 on an expedition to the Asmat area on New Guinea's south coast to collect primitive art and sculpture for the New York Museum of Primitive Art and for a national museum to be built in Hollandia.

Young Rockefeller had come to New Guinea last March to join a Harvard anthropological expedition. After the team broke up, he stayed on in search of the primitive artifacts.

Collegian Staff Photos

Collegian pictures for La Vie will be taken at 6:30 tonight at Infinity Enterprises. All members of the Board of Editors, advanced reporters on the editorial staff and junior and senior board members of the business staff are expected to report.

Gridders Win, 34-14; Thinclads Lose

Ground Game Ruins Crusaders; Torris Stars

By JIM KARL

Collegian Sports Editor

With Buddy Torris and Roger Kochman doing most of the damage, Penn State's devastating ground attack went to work on Holy Cross at Beaver Stadium Saturday for a convincing 34-14 victory.

At least it was convincing to the 28,500 spectators (including over 5,000 Band Day guests) who sat through snow flurries and a biting wind that reached gusts of 30 miles per hour to watch the Nittanians close out their home season.

State now has a 6-3 record going into the traditional game with Pitt in the Smoky City Saturday.

And it looks as if Pittsburgh may be the end of the line for the Lions this year. There were no bowl scouts in the stands Saturday when Torris and Kochman, behind some awe-inspiring blocking up front, ripped off huge gains against the game but outmanned Crusaders.

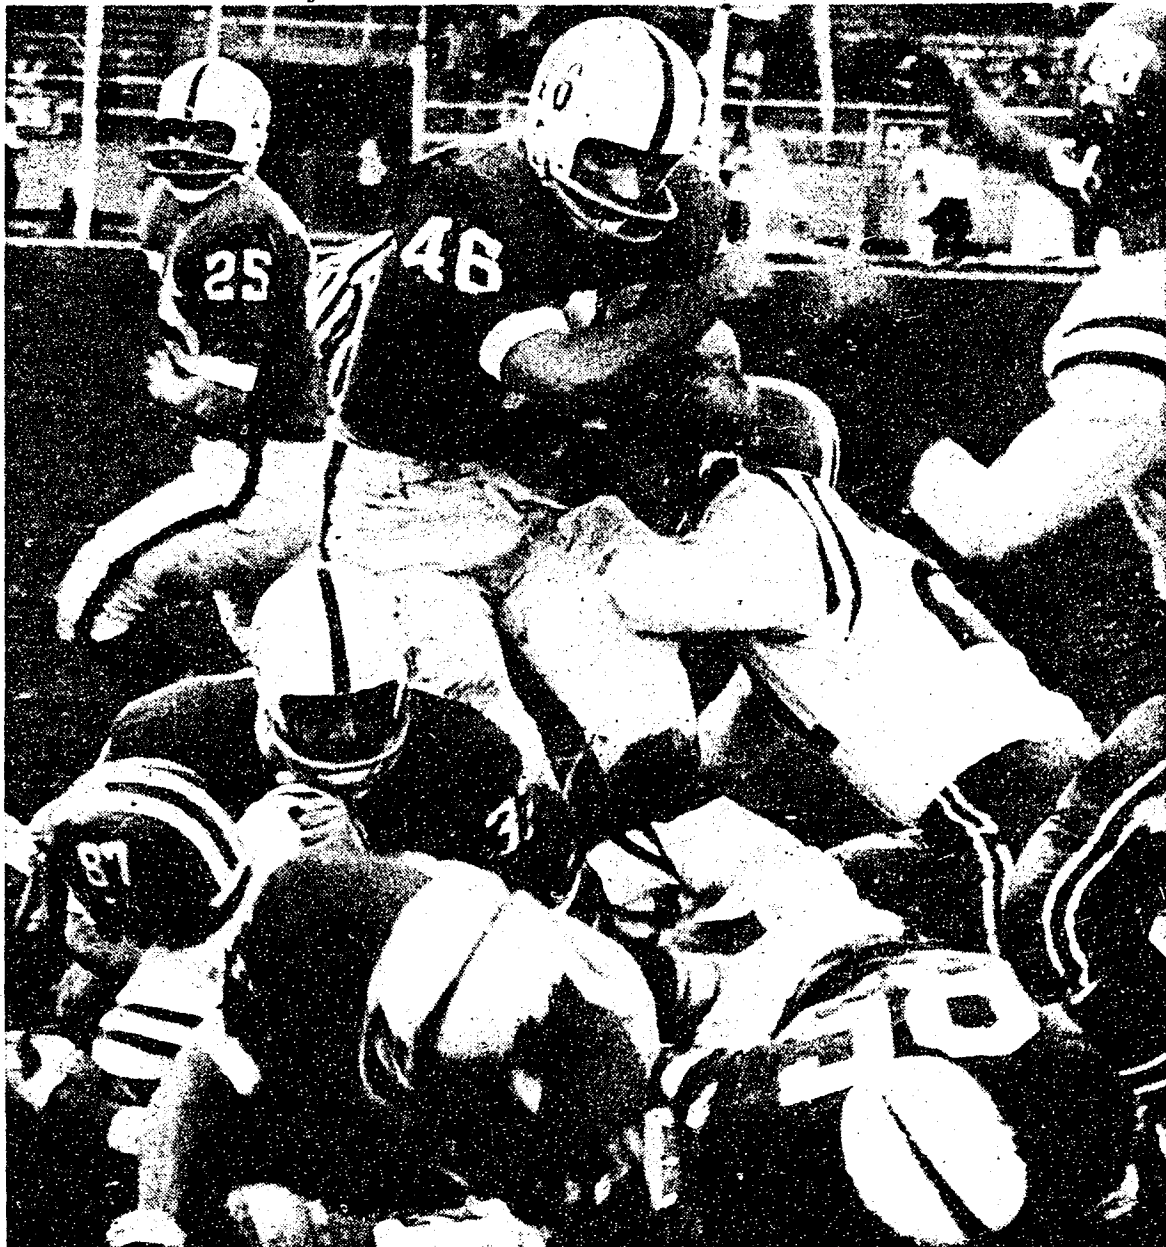

With only one major Saturday of football left, the bowl picture is being drawn into focus.

In the over-all picture it's easy to pick out a Baylor Tiger, a Texas Longhorn, and a Maryland Terrapin, but no Nittany Lion.

The turning point of the season for State could have been the 21-17 loss to Maryland three weeks ago. The Lions staged a brilliant second half comeback but couldn't push across the deciding score with a first and goal to go on the three and time running out.

The Liberty Bowl will probably announce today that it has offered

(Continued on page nine)

THE HARD WAY: Penn State halfback Roger Kochman powers through the Holy Cross defenses for two yards behind some stout blocking by Buddy Torris (31), Dick Anderson (85) and an unidentified Penn Stater on the ground. Holy Cross defenders in the picture are Al Snyder (38), Tom Maney (diving toward Kochman) and Jack Fellin (87). Lion quarterback Galen Hall fakes a bootleg on the play. State won 34-14 before 28,500 in the Band Day finale at Beaver Stadium.

—Collegian Photo by John Beauge

Spartans New IC4A Champs; Norman Second

Special to The Collegian
NEW YORK, N.Y., Nov. 20—Michigan State's harriers dethroned Penn State's defending title-holders in the 53rd annual IC4A cross country championships at New York's Van Cortlandt Park today.

The Spartans' winning score of 82 points was eight less than State's total of 90.

Coach Chick Werner's harriers had the meet sewed up at the four-mile mark with Gerry Norman running in 2nd place, Howie Deardorff in 3rd, Steve Moorhead in 14th, Ernie Noll in 25th and Lionel Bassett in 29th.

Then disaster struck. Deardorff developed a cramp and was forced to stop to recuperate. The game Lion tried to keep up his previous pace, but found it impossible and finally finished far back in 48th place.

Norman ran an excellent race, coming in second to Cornell's Steve Machooka, the pre-meet favorite.

Machooka had a comfortable 100-yard lead with a half-mile to go, but quickly saw it disappear when Norman moved up on the African. Machooka held on to win by 30 yards in 26:03 over the 5-mile course.

Machooka's time was remarkable considering the weather conditions. At times the snow obliterated any view and the grass looked like a shallow swimming pool.

Kevin Quinn of St. Johns finished third followed by Michigan State's Gerry Young.

Before the meet Young expressed confidence that the Spartans were going to win.

(Continued on page ten)