

Campus DIGEST

VP's Appointed

New appointments to University administrative offices are Stanley H. Campbell, vice president for business administration; Dr. John R. Rackley, vice president for resident instruction; Dr. Abram W. VanderMeer, dean of the College of Education; Dr. Dagobert deLevie, assistant to the dean of the College of Liberal Arts in charge of the Study-Abroad program; and Dr. Russell E. Larson, associate dean of the College of Agriculture and director of agricultural and home economics extension services. (Story on page 1.)

Undergrad Registration Reaches 16,070 Total

The total number of undergraduate students registering for the winter and spring terms is 16,070.

The figure topped last spring semester's total of 14,643 undergraduate registrants. Nearly 60 per cent of the students completed the procedure without changes in their schedule. (Story page 6.)

Artists' Series

Student ticket distribution for the Artists' Series presentation of Janos Starker, cellist, and Janes Avery, pianist, begin at 1:30 p.m. today at the Hetzel Union desk.

Exam Period Considered

The possibility of setting aside a period for final exams is being considered by two University Senate committees. (Story page 1.)

Schedule Revisions

Robert M. Koscr, associate registrar, yesterday outlined the procedures and deadlines for filing revised schedules for the spring term. (Story page 1.)

Student Government

Student government officers Dennis Foianini, president; Jay Huffman, vice president; and Mary Swed, secretary-treasurer, decided late last night to submit to a vote of confidence.

Foianini said that they decided to ask the student body in a referendum if they should continue their term of office which normally would run until April. (Story page 1.)

Political parties are laying final plans for a campaign to preserve political parties on campus as the formal campaigning period nears. (Story page 1.)

Entertainment

The Penn State Thespians will hold final tryouts for their winter production of "The Bells Are Ringing" from 7 to 9 tonight in 100 Carnegie.

There are positions available for singers, dancers, actors, piano players and crew personnel.

Faculty members and administrators of the University will be interviewed daily on "Folio 15" at 9-9:15 a.m. on WFBG-TV, Channel 10, Altoona.

Lectures, Conferences

The economics faculty will hold a seminar at 12:30 p.m. today in Hetzel Union dining room A. Dr. Will E. Mason will speak on "The Disorientation of Monetary Theory."

The Penn State chapter of the American Society for Metals will meet at 7:30 p.m. today in the Mineral Industries Auditorium. Dr. Frank Garofola, U.S. Steel Corporation, will speak on "Resistance to Creep, Deformation, and Fracture in Metals and Alloys."

A meteorology seminar will be held at 3:55 p.m. tomorrow in 308 Willard. Dr. Charles L. Hosler will speak on "Removal of Radioactive Debris from the Atmosphere."

Twenty-two members of the agriculture faculty will address meetings at the 46th annual Pennsylvania Farm Show, which opened yesterday in Harrisburg. The exposition, which runs until Friday, is dedicated this year to the "Century of Progress," which was "made possible by the land grant universities of the nation."

The University, one of the first land grant institutions, will receive special honors at the show.

Sports

Penn State's injury plagued basketball team finally got back on the winning track defeating Pitt 74-62 at the Pitt Field House Saturday night. Gene Harris was high scorer for the Lions with 19 points. State hosts Bucknell in Rec Hall tonight at 8. (Story page 9.)

Galen Hall, Penn State quarterback, was named most valuable player in Sunday's U.S. Bowl. Hall completed 28 of 49 passes for 388 yards and three touchdowns. His performance opened the eyes of some pro football scouts who had ignored him in the draft selections. (Story page 9.)

Penn State's wrestling team gave mighty Lehigh a scare Saturday night before losing 15-12 in Lehigh's Grace Hall. Lehigh maintained its top national ranking with the win. State is now 2-1. (Story page 10.)

Three Sophs Plead Guilty To Burglaries

Lee Sebastian, Gerald Wardo, and Alan Weisman, three sophomores, were sentenced to 2 to 4-month jail terms yesterday after pleading guilty in Centre County Court on burglary charges last week.

Sebastian, a chemistry student from Sewickley; Wardo, a secondary education student from Houtzdale; and Weisman, a chemical engineering student from Medera, were involved in burglarizing the Weis Market on Dec. 7 and in taking books from Keeler's.

THEY ALSO ADMITTED shoplifting various articles from G. C. Murphy's and Woolworth's. In addition, they said they stole food from the kitchen of the Hetzel Union Building and soft drinks from the basement of Metzger Building.

The approximate value of the merchandise which the State College Police found in the three men's residence is $185. They were ordered to pay costs and make restitution.

Associate Dean of Men Leroy S. Austin said yesterday afternoon that, although the men are not registered at the University this term, a disciplinary committee will meet today to consider University action against them.

WFBG to Interview Staff

University faculty members and administrators will be interviewed daily on "Folio 15" at 9 a.m. on WFBG-TV, Channel 10, Altoona.

Trustees Approve LA Building Plans

By DAVE BOLBACH

Final plans for the proposed Arts and Humanities Building, a General State Authority project, were approved by the Board of Trustees of the University at their week-end meeting in Harrisburg.

The plans will now be returned to the GSA for final checking. Bids on the project are expected to be requested by the GSA in the spring, Walter H. Wiegand, director of the physical plant, said.

THE PROJECT, WHICH consists of three units, will be located north of the Helen Eakin Eisenhower Chapel. One of the units will include a large general purpose classroom with a capacity of 600, offices, classrooms and practice rooms for use of the department of music, Wiegand said. There is also a 2-story room planned for band rehearsals and other uses, he said.

Another unit, which will be used primarily by the departments of art and theatre arts, will also have a large general purpose classroom with a capacity of 470, smaller classrooms, seminar rooms and rooms for art studios and offices.

The third unit will be a circular 1-story building, with four triangular-shaped classrooms with sloping floors, each with a seating capacity of 400. A central preparation room will enable visual aids to be used and will include equipment for reverse projection of films and other teaching materials.

FINAL PLANS ON two other projects — the south wing of Recreation Hall and an addition to the Electrical Building — are scheduled to be submitted to the GSA in February, Wiegand said.

Pre-final plans on both projects have been revised and architects are now correcting and completing the final plans and specifications, he said.

Three other GSA projects are in the construction phase. Final painting is being done on the horticulture research building and electrical fixtures are being installed, he said. The project is expected to be completed before the contract completion date of May 25.
