

Donations Comprise Fund

The class of 1962 gift fund is the first in recent years to be collected entirely from class members. Its total of about $4,350 is also the largest amount to be collected by a graduating class since donations were first requested in 1958, David Grubbs, senior class president, said yesterday.

However, the present junior and sophomore classes have already collected more than this amount and the freshman class has collected $3,052, Grubbs said. The junior class total at this time is $6,536 and the sophomore class total is $5,401.

FROM 1958 until this year, the University Board of Trustees donated money to the class gift funds but it has discontinued doing this, Grubbs said. Before 1958, the class gift fund came entirely from a Board of Trustees donation, he added. The class of 1957 received $11,058 as their gift.

The class of 1958 proposed establishing a University AM radio station as their class gift but the Board of Trustees did not appropriate funds for it and no class gift was given.

The class of 1959 collected $623 from its members and received three times this amount from the University. In 1960, the senior class collected $1,366 from its members and the University gave it twice this amount.

An amount equal to the $2,627 collected by the class of 1961 was given to the class by the University.

The LAST CLASS to finance a revolving student loan fund as its class gift was the class of 1943, Grubbs said. The class of 1962 advisory board is now considering such a loan as its class gift.

The class of 1959 donated its class gift fund to Pattee Library. Such a donation is also being considered by the class of 1962 advisory board.

Disciplinary Procedure, Rules Called Vague by WDFM Panel

A panel of students discussing and practical definitions, John discipline last night on WDFM-WMAJ radio, decided that the major weaknesses of the student disciplinary system lie in the vagueness of regulations and judiciary procedure.

Weld, editor of La Critique, said.

The panel agreed that many students are not aware of their rights when appearing before the Senate Sub-Committee on Discipline.

The panel, appearing on "This Is the Subject," consisted of representatives of the La Critique staff, the editorial staff of The Daily Collegian and Bruce Harrison, a senior in electrical engineering from Philadelphia.

They proposed that a student be given written notification of his rights. This notification should include:

- A statement, given 7 to 10 days previous to his hearing of the charges against him.
- A listing of the evidence against him.
- A description of procedure before and after his hearing, including a notice that he may bring in Rules for student conduct outside counsel, confront witnesses should be clearly and fully formulated and should have realistic a Collegian reporter to be present.

Committees Formed—

If the converters are installed, portable radios would also be able to pick up the FM signal. Bruce Harrison, TIM representative, said.

Allison Woodall, South Halls representative, proposed that a committee be formed to "work for the repeal of the Pennsylvania sales tax on text books, and to contact other colleges and universities in the state to seek their support."

"This proposal is within our scope since we are representatives of the students and are speaking for the University as a whole," Miss Woodall said.

Foianini said that there is a bill to repeal the sales tax on text books before the state legislature now.

GEORGE GORDON, North Halls representative, moved that the USG support the Liberal Arts faculty in working toward the elimination of ROTC as a compulsory requirement for graduation.

Foianini said that the Department of Defense no longer considers compulsory ROTC vital to national defense and that there is a great deal of disinterest among students concerning compulsory ROTC.

Murray Winderman, West Halls representative, proposed that a committee be established to devise procedural rules, that a special meeting be devoted to discussion of these rules and that no other meeting time be devoted to discussion of the rules.

Miss Woodall dissented on the grounds that "the motion will bog us down when at some time it would be expedient to discuss the rules during a regular meeting."

Sign-out Error Causes Report

The University reported Lynne Loeffler, sophomore in arts and letters from Kennett Square, as a missing person to state and local police officials as the result of an error she made in a sign-out form. Col. William Pelton, director of security, said yesterday.

He said Miss Loeffler corrected the mistake Monday when she contacted University officials. Another error was made, he said, when the police were not notified that the case had been cleared up.

Guyaux? Cito? Journ School Needs Help

If you happen to be from Edna Collieries, Fitz Henry or one of 36 other Pennsylvania towns listed below, you can be of some help to the School of Journalism.

Even if you're not, but know the correct pronunciation of any of the town names, you can still be of assistance.

The School of Journalism is compiling a list of the pronunciations of all the "place" names in Pennsylvania and have come up against a deadend with these 38 towns. Not even the Bell Telephone Co. has been able to solve the dilemma.

If you are sure you know the correct pronunciation of any of the following towns, contact Warren Bodow at UN 5-6597.

- The towns are Benicoll, Loupux, Brumfieldville, Hancock, Soppitt, Amsbry, Ceaderville, Anselma, Bela, Almaden, Belsena, Banian Junction, Platea, Guyaux, Cito, Charmain, Fannettsburg, Greenvillage, Chartiers, Garards Fort, Khedive, Entriken, Chewton, Camenton, Amasa, Naginey, Connaughton, Kushequa, Altonah, Didier, Cairnbrook, Gahagan, Laboratory, Plank a, Gouldsboro, Baggaley, Edna Collieries and Fitz Henry.

Witmer was elected president pro tempore of the Congress. He had held the same office in the last SGA Assembly. He defeated Gordon, 21 votes to 8.

The Congress postponed the election of the Rules Committee chairman until a later meeting.

The Congress also appropriated $50 for the installation of a second telephone at the main desk of the HUB for the use of the student body. William F. Fuller, manager of the HUB said that he would order the telephone this morning.

Randy Carter, proposer of the plan, said that he had spoken to the telephone company and they had informed him that the telephone could be installed this afternoon.
