

AWS to Submit Constitution in Spring

The Association of Women Students' constitution should be ready for consideration by the Senate Committee on Student Affairs by next term, Jeanette Berry, AWS adviser, said recently.

The constitution, ratified by the AWS Senate last term, is presently being reviewed by the dean of women's staff, she said.

The constitution will not be submitted to the Senate committee until after the Intercollegiate Association of Women Students' eastern regional conference to be held here during the winter term recess.

"The conference may give us some ideas for improving the constitution," Dorothy J. Lipp, dean of women, said recently. "We are now in the final stages of experimenting with government structures and want to submit the best constitution possible."

The possibility of a student judicial system included in the Undergraduate Student Government's constitution also induced review of the AWS draft, Dean Lipp said.

Recently, a USG constitution was approved by the Senate Committee on Student Affairs without any provisions for the campus-wide judicial system which was requested. Had USG been granted control of all student judiciaries, AWS would have had to revise its system of central and local judicial boards, Dean Lipp said.

The main points of the proposed AWS constitution are:

- A governing hierarchy of a Senate, executive committee, community councils, the community council's board and judicial bodies.

- The Senate consists of the executive committee, the president and treasurer of each community council, a central judicial delegate and other personnel.
- The executive committee includes the president, first and second vice presidents, secretary, treasurer and public relations chairman.
- Community councils legislate on local concerns.
- The community councils board coordinates individual community council activities.
- Central judicial rules on inter-community, off-campus and "unusually complex" cases or cases referred to it by local boards or the dean of women's office.
- Local judicial boards hear local cases.

Bixby Says Corps Offers Opportunity for Teachers

Opportunity for overseas teaching experience declines sharply once a student has graduated and gets a job in this country, Dr. Paul W. Bixby, director of the Philippine Peace Corps training group here, said recently.

At a talk sponsored by the Education Student Council, Bixby said the Peace Corps offers many opportunities to students recently graduated from college.

He said that once a student has graduated, particularly an education student, he will get a job, and establish himself in a community.

OPPORTUNITIES TO teach overseas are then limited for the individual. The Peace Corps will need about 3,000 teachers by next summer in 25 or 30 countries. No prior teaching experience is necessary, all travel expenses are paid and each volunteer is given an allowance which covers general living expenses, Bixby said.

Philippines originally requested 300 volunteers, and the University has been training them in several groups since last summer. The third group of 48 volunteers arrived here last Wednesday.

ALTHOUGH TEACHERS may be needed in other countries, he said, the Peace Corps only goes where it is invited. The Philippine government has said to "keep the volunteers coming" and the Corps is trying to supply as many as they want.

Freshman Class Board About 75 more Freshman Class Advisory Board applications are now available at the Hetzel Union desk. All applications will be due this Friday.

Bach Society Sets 'Singers' Style

The Penn State Singers have an honorable ancestry — they are patterned after the "collegium musicum," a society of performing musicians formed by Bach in the early 1700's, Raymond H. Brown, director of the group, explained.

The group, founded in 1957 by Brown, is composed of 21 students. Madrigals, motets and ballads sung in French, Portuguese, German, Italian, Spanish and English are part of their repertoire.

A madrigal is a lyric, usually a love song, sung in three or more parts. A motet is a choral composition based upon a sacred text. Ballads are usually simple folk songs which have been passed from one generation to another by word of mouth. All these evolved during the Middle Ages. Later forms of the motet sometimes substitute for the Protestant chorale. "Eventually I hope we become accomplished enough to sing Bach cantatas. However, we like to delve into all periods and styles, so long as the music is good," Brown said.

Each year the Singers go on tour, primarily to other campuses, although the groups have sung in Altoona and other towns near State College. Last year the Singers presented the opera "Dido and Aeneas" at their spring concert.

Most of their singing is done "a capello" (without accompaniment). However, in their next concert Feb. 16, Leonard Raver, chapel organist, a string and a brass ensemble will accompany them in some numbers.

Seniors May File For Fellowships

Graduating seniors interested in one of the seven National Defense Graduate Fellowships awarded to the University must have their applications completed and returned in at 101 Willard by Feb. 20, E. G. Van Ormer, assistant dean of the graduate school, said yesterday.

A list of similar fellowships offered at 157 other colleges and universities throughout the country is also available at the graduate school office, he added.

The fellowships are also available to graduate students who will not have completed more than one-half year of study by the fall term of 1962, he said.

Career Displays Purpose Defined At ICCB Meeting

The primary aim of the Career Day exhibits to be displayed in the Hetzel Union Building during the spring term is to acquaint undergraduates with the various opportunities available for employment after graduation, Ervin Hill, ICCB chairman said recently.

REPRESENTATIVES from approximately 40 firms will participate in the project, Hill said. Displays will be set up on the first and ground floor of the HUB May 1 and 2, and students will have the opportunity to ask any questions on various fields of work at that time, he explained.

In other business, the board made final plans for writing and distributing of questionnaires on the four term plan.

Howard Needleman, president of Business Administration Student Council, and David Muns, president of Division of Counseling Council, were asked to contact administration and faculty members requesting that an adviser be named for the board.

BARBARA JOHNSON, president of Education Student Council, reported that the present board's constitution is still in effect, but should be revised to meet new conditions which have arisen under the four term plan.

Miss Johnson also reported that the board's project to have a checking system installed at Pattee Library would have to await the decision of Ralph W. McComb, University librarian.
