

Nazi to Visit Lewisburg

LEWISBURG, Pa. (AP) — The Lewisburg Borough Council advised Norman Lincoln Rockwell, self-proclaimed leader of the American Nazi Party, yesterday in a telegram to Rockwell's Arlington, Va., headquarters to put off a scheduled appearance in the town tomorrow.

Rockwell said last night he plans to speak here tomorrow regardless of the Town Council's suggestion that he not appear there.

"I'll be there," Rockwell said when asked if he still planned to go after receiving the wire from the council saying they could not guarantee his personal safety.

"I'll SPEAK at 2 p.m. unless forcibly prevented or locked up," he said. He declined to say "for obvious reasons" when he planned to arrive there or what method of transportation he would use.

Rockwell said he sent a telegram to the town Council, telling them he appreciated their concern for his safety but adding: "I am coming to Lewisburg to make use of my constitutional rights to speak, a right which Lewisburg has already granted to communists and other enemies of America."

"I will cooperate in every way with law enforcement officials to prevent or minimize and incident. I will speak alone without signs, uniform or insignia and do not believe the people of Lewisburg will tolerate any lynch mob activity."

ROCKWELL SAID he also told the Council that he would "place my entire group throughout any crowd which may appear and they will put anyone who commits an act of violence or riot under citizens arrest" and deliver them to local authorities.

Rockwell had been invited to appear at Bucknell University. Then the university Student Forum cancelled the appearance.

Seth D. Ryan, 23, of Arlington, Va., was arrested in Sunbury, near here, on Wednesday for distributing handbills protesting the cancellation of Rockwell's appearance.

Educators Discuss Latin Countries

By SARAH ORTON

Three Latin-American educators agreed yesterday that, in their countries, opinion about Cuba and Castro's government is divided three ways.

The educators, Galo Beleran from Ecuador, Carlos Morales and Javier Ruiz, both of Guatemala, are among the 25 Latin-American teachers studying American education methods in the University's Latin-American project.

Beleran and Morales said that there are those in their countries who strongly support Castro, those who hate him and those who are indifferent to the entire problem.

RUIZ ADDED a fourth group—those who have never heard of Castro. He said that because almost 72 per cent of the people in Guatemala are illiterate, there is a large percentage who are not even aware of Cuba's existence.

Ruiz said he felt that the action of the Organization of American States in expelling Cuba from participation was a "bad measure."

Beleran emphasized the fact that people in Ecuador are free to think the way they wish and to express their opinions about the situation since Ecuador is a democratic republic.

THE LATIN-AMERICANS also explained the operation of universities in their countries and the prevalence of student strikes.

Beleran and Morales said that in their countries, the universities are autonomous, although largely government-supported. Students have a voice in the operation of the university, they said, by having representatives on the council which governs the university.

Amateur Radio Operators Ready for CD Program

Members of the Amateur Radio Emergency Corps (AREC) on campus and in Centre County are among those ready to go into action in case of any Civil Defense emergency.

The amateur radio operators have a special license from the Federal Communications Commission and are organized to aid in a national or local emergency at any time.

An overall Civil Defense program is being planned for the University and the County which will encompass this radio communications system.

IN THE EVENT of an emergency the licensed operators in the county could disseminate Civil Defense information over the 640 and 1240 Conelrad frequencies, Gilbert Crossley, associate professor of electrical engineering and Centre County radio officer, said yesterday.

Conelrad is the short term for an emergency broadcasting system officially designated as the "Plan for CONTROL of ELEctromagnetic RADIations."

The system was devised jointly by the broadcasting industry and the government to get official information to the American people in the event of an attack without providing electronic navigational aid to enemy bombers or missiles, Crossley said.

In addition to the 27 operators working with the county Civil Defense program 68 students on campus hold amateur broadcasting licenses. These students are not an official part of the program but could be called on if needed, he said.

SINCE AMATEUR radio equipment is not allowed in the residence halls, he said, the students have their own radio center which is located behind the University Power Plant at Burrowes and College Aves.
