Gymnasts Host Middies Tonight

By JOHN MORRIS

Assistant Sports Editor

A "hungry" brood of Lions go on the prowl tonight when Penn State's gymnastics team hosts a Navy invasion.

The Nittanians, still bridleing from a lop-sided defeat at Annapolis last year, meet the defending Eastern champion Middies at 8 p.m. in Rec Hall.

State carries a 2-0 record into the meet, the same mark the Nittanians had when they met Navy last year. But, aside from State's record, this should be entirely different from last season's debacle.

Navy, always tough on its home grounds, humiliated the Lions, 68 1/2-37 1/2, last year and then went on to win eastern honors. The Lions seem determined not to let it happen again.

"THE TEAM IS READY for Navy," coach Gene Wettstone said. "These boys are really hungry."

Navy (3-1) won't be any pushover for Wettstone's crew. In fact, the Middies are probably the Nittanians toughest test of the season so far.

The Lions opened their season with a win over Springfield, 64-32, and followed that victory with a decision over Temple last week, 61 1/2-34 1/2.

Navy has also defeated Temple (54-42) and Springfield (62-34). The Middies' other win came against West Chester (69 1/2-26 1/2), but they dropped a 40 1/2-55 1/2 decision to powerful Syracuse.

This meet will provide the first real competition for captain Greg Weiss and his sterling sidekick Tommy Seward.

SO FAR THIS SEASON Weiss is undefeated on the parallel bars and side horse and Seward has swept the horizontal bar and free exercise.

The Lion stars haven't been pressed yet this year, but Navy will field a strong team on both the p-bars and horizontal bar.

"The rope climb used to be Navy's strongest event," Wettstone said. "Now that it has been dropped, the parallel bars and horizontal bar are their best."

Art Day, Roger Tetrault and Ed Hutcheson are the Middies' top three men on the horizontal bar. Day, the only Middie to compete in more than one event, will also challenge Seward in the free exercise.

Navy's p-bars team is made up of veteran Cecil Tune, Bill Bowen and Pete Koch. Tune is probably the Middies' best man in the event, but Bowen has shown steady improvement.

THE MIDDIES MIGHT also challenge State on the still rings. Navy captain Jim Sloat, Dale Pearson, and former Penn State freshman Larry Silver will compete in the event against Nittany stars Larry Yohn and Bud Williams.

Wettstone will probably start the same lineup he used against Temple last week.

Bill Schlegel and Gene Harlacher back up Seward in the free exercise. Harlacher and Ray Cherry join Weiss on the side horse. Yohn, Williams and Jay Braude represent the Nittanians on the rings.

F. P. Storza, Dave Heilbrun and Lew Capetola give the Lions a steadily improving long horse vault team. Harlacher, Seward and Weiss will go on the p-bars and John Brunning replaces Harlacher in the trio for the horizontal bar.

Penn State's freshman gymnastics team will try to bounce back from its opening meet loss to Temple last week when the Frosh journey to Annapolis, Md., this afternoon to meet the Naval Academy Plebes.

Wettstone expects improvement in his squad's performance against the Middies. "Having gained experience last week against Temple, I feel that the team will produce better results today against Navy," the veteran coach said.

Jim Culhane, Carl Jenkins, and Pete McCormick expected to supply the bulk of State's scoring.

Lion Swordsmen Debut Today

By IRA MILLER

Penn State opens its first fencing season since 1951 against Johns Hopkins in Baltimore, Md., this afternoon, and coach Dick Klima is just itching for a successful debut.

"If those foil men of ours can just come through with a few points we might be able to pull it off," the Lion coach said. Foil is State's weakest weapon and some help from this area would take some of the pressure off what Klima calls "real good epee and sabre teams."

"WE'RE NOT GOING to play a slow, methodical game," Klima said. "We've got to go out there with a lot of determination. We're either going to win in a hurry or lose in a hurry. We'll be pressing all the time," he continued.

"They don't know a thing about us. We know, however, that they usually produce good fencers and we can't beat good fencers by playing a waiting game."

"We've got to beat them on guts as they've had a lot more experience. If these guys get fired up, we can blast through and win," the Lion mentor continued.

"We can't afford to try to look fancy. We'll be pressing all the time. We're not trying to please the crowd," the fiery coach said, "we're going in with the intention of winning."

JOHNS HOPKINS is riding a three-meet losing streak and a loss today would end all hopes of a winning season for them. Since beating Lehigh, 17-10, in their opener, Dick Oles' Blue Jays have fallen before Lafayette, 14-13, Stevens Tech, 15-12, and Penn, 18-9.

Charles Twyman, Blue Jay captain, will lead Hopkins in the epee competition. He'll be backed-up by Tom Ahern and Tom McNamara against a Lion trio of Dave Lewis, Bob Oliver and Steve Serepa.

THE FOIL competition, State's weakest area, may tell the tale of the match. Lions Art Fuller, Joe Bubiak and Ron Buszko meet Dick Bockman, Hugh Loebner and Vaughn Smith.

In the sabre dueling, State's well-balanced trio of Charles Poole, Earl LaKier and Larry Chamberlain is expected to meet stiff opposition from Bob Carroll, Dan Davidson and Tom Koehler. "In practice, we've looked good," said Klima. "But in competition, who knows?"
