

Survey Officials Advisory Boards Named; To Meet Today Sophomores Get Largest

Members of the HRB-Singer fallout shelter survey teams and University officials will meet this afternoon to discuss the details of the forthcoming survey of campus buildings, Stanley H. Campbell, vice president for business and finance, said yesterday.

The starting date for the survey and the procedure to be followed will be explained at the meeting, Campbell said.

HRB-Singer, an engineering consultant firm, is conducting the survey in 10 counties including Centre County. The survey has been completed in Centre County with the exception of the University.

THE SURVEY teams have examined buildings in the county to determine if there is sufficient protection from fallout and how many persons in the area could be accommodated, he said.

The same procedure will probably be followed for the University, Campbell added.

Campbell said that the survey is the first phase of a nation-wide Civil Defense program. The University, in cooperating in this survey, is just "keeping up with the federal program and taking its responsibilities for protecting students," he said.

Efforts are being made to plan proper facilities for students and to cope with foreseeable dangers involved in the event of a nuclear attack, Campbell explained.

A booklet on nuclear fallout and protection is now being distributed by the government.

The booklet contains pertinent information on the overall Civil Defense program for this country and on methods people can use to protect themselves from fallout. Students may obtain a copy of the booklet at the State College Post Office.

THE PURPOSE of a planned Civil Defense program for the University is to keep panic at a minimum in the event of an emergency, Campbell said.

It is assumed that if a nuclear attack was launched on this country, there would be enough time to follow an organized plan in seeking protection, he said.

The fallout in this area would probably come from major metropolitan centers that would be hit, he said.

New junior, sophomore and freshman class advisory boards were chosen this week. Ralph Wise, sophomore class president, appointed the largest board with 33 members.

AFTERMATH OF A PLANE CRASH

On October 29, 1960, sixteen college athletes met death in a chartered plane. The night was foggy - the flight non-scheduled. In this week's Post, you'll read how the survivors have tried to mend their broken lives. And why some of them blame the football coach, the Board of Regents - and even the college president.

Nina

Poggi Bonci is the name of an Italian village.

Poggi Bonci is also the name of a section of anatomy on our two year old daughter. Most delicately I refer to the area devoted to sitting on, which coincidentally is in the same proximity reserved for her rare spankings.

Be as it may, she is probably the only child in town with an American made Poggi Bonci.

While Tito Gobi was the name of a famed tenor, to Nina this is her stomach (which has been known to sing, too).

While we admit to playful plagiarism, the words fanny and tummy are so trite, that we felt impelled to endow our child with at least two unique possessions.

She has others.

As of yet we haven't reconciled ourselves to the fact that in the near future when she is three and enrolled in a nursery we must have a heart-to-heart talk with her and explain why she must give up the Poggi Bonci and Tito Gobi for a fanny and tummy respectively.

If not, can you envision a harried teacher emoting on the phone that Nina claims to have a pain in her Tito Gobi and would like to sit down and rest her Poggi Bonci.

It's happened already

We suspended sorority composites this week that we may devote more time for those thoughtful ones who are investing in a portrait for him (or her) for Valentine's Day. You could be a recipient. Just don't question her movements at this time. If you're lucky, she's been here. If not, then better luck next time.

Parties Plan to Advise USG

By JOAN MEHAN

Political party chairmen are currently formulating plans to work with the USG Congress and to begin compiling a slate of candidates for the spring elections of student government officers.

During the recent elections, the student body approved the use of political parties in future Congress elections. Parties were not active during the winter elections.

The University, Campus and Liberal parties are contacting Congressmen to determine their interests in political parties. All the chairmen said that they have Congressmen committed to their parties.

SINCE THE representatives did not run on party platforms, the parties plan on acting in an advisory capacity.

"University party will caucus before each Congress meeting, beginning next week," Elliott Newman, party chairman, said. "We will not hold a caucus tonight because a room was not available in the Hetzel Union building."

The party plans to do research for the representatives and to advise them since many of the Congressmen haven't had much experience, Newman said.

"CAMPUS PARTY hasn't decided definitely to hold caucuses before USG meetings," Thomas Loman, spokesman for the party, said. "Our steering committee is considering the idea," he added.

The committee will decide at its meeting next week, Loman said.

"Liberal party will do everything possible to help USG," Whiton Paine, party chairman said.

The party does not plan on caucusing before USG meetings, Paine said. However, the party will make suggestions to Congressmen, he added.

ALL THE PARTIES are looking for candidates for the spring elections for president, vice president, and secretary-treasurer of USG.

"Liberal party intends to back a slate of candidates if we can find a good one," Paine said.

The chairmen all voiced approval of the new Congress and said they felt that the body had gotten off to a good start.
