

Lipp Opposes Standardization

Creation of a "push button" system matching women's judicial penalties with infractions could result in students becoming IBM numbers, Dorothy J. Lipp, dean of women, said recently.

Dean Lipp said she opposes attempts to establish uniformity in decisions of women's judicial boards.

Most judicial cases concern different people with different backgrounds, Dean Lipp said. Infractions may appear to be the same on the surface but really involve different circumstances, she added.

SOME PENALTIES are recommended for judicial infractions but these are only recommendations, Dean Lipp said. They are contained in a 11-page outline, "Women's Judicial Systems."

"We have delegated the authority to make decisions to the Association of Women Students judicial boards. We reserve only the right of review."

She has never reversed a decision yet, she added.

The only automatic judicial penalties given are Saturday withdrawals of privileges when women exceed 15 late minutes a month. Women receiving this penalty are required to sign in with their senior residents at 7 p.m. and may neither leave the building nor entertain a date in the lounge that evening.

IF A WOMAN forgets to sign in and is notified by a staff member, she receives an automatic 15 late minutes.

"We have made these penalties automatic because they are minor and would overcrowd judicial calendars."

Review of the judicial system is a continuous process within

United States might have to withdraw its aid from some countries to prove it means business. The United States might have to concentrate its assistance on two or three countries, neglecting others, he added.

Sevareid said that during recent travels, he has found some of his earlier ideas were wrong. These changes in his philosophy have given him a rough time, he added. He said he has antagonized some friends with liberal tendencies and finds the right wingers in Congress want to hand him "adoption papers."

During his lecture, Sevareid discussed areas of public misconceptions which need clarification:

• Contrary to popular thought, nature seems to have no specific intention of preserving America.

• Both left and right-wing political groups feel that everything wrong in the world is correctable by U.S. actions. Whenever events turn against U.S. interests, these extreme groups think the fault lies in Washington.

• Setbacks are actually intrinsic to the U.S. role as a major power. Instead of tearing ourselves apart with self-criticism, we must learn to live with the setbacks. We must remember who we are and remember that Americans, more than Marxists, set off attempts for equality in the world.

'Bells' to Open New AWS Officers To Assume Duties On Thursday

The Penn State Thespians' production, "Bells Are Ringing," will open at 8 p.m. Thursday in Schwab. Performances will be held nightly through Saturday, and there will be a matinee at 2 p.m. Saturday.

Tickets are on sale now at the Hetzel Union desk. Prices for the evening performances are $1.50 and $1.25 for the matinee. Tickets will also be sold at the door.

The musical comedy concerns an employee of an answering service who can't resist involving herself in the problems of the firm's clients.

Carolyn Fishbein, sophomore in art education from Baltimore, Md. is cast as Ella Peterson, the part Judy Holliday previously played.

ALLAN JUST, freshman in chemistry and physics from Hicksville, N.Y., will portray Jeffrey Moss, a New York playwright who eventually falls in love with Ella.

Nancy Alinkoff, senior in secondary education from Kingston, is portraying Sue, the owner of the answering service.

Janis Somerville, president-elect, and four other Association of Women Students officers will be installed at the AWS Senate meeting tomorrow.

Miss Somerville, junior in arts and letters from Muncy, was elected Thursday, defeating Judy Allen, sophomore in chemistry from Pittsburgh.

Asked about the election results, Miss Somerville said "I'm aware of the responsibility that accompanies my position. With the assistance of the other members of the executive council, I'll be doing my best to coordinate the views of all the women students into one working organization."

MISS ALLEN said, "AWS couldn't have a more capable president. I wish her all possible luck in the future."

Also elected to the new AWS executive council were Barbara Feil, first vice president; Lynn McTavish, second vice president; Vicki Caplan, secretary; and Carole Kersh, treasurer.

Forty-three per cent of the undergraduate women students on campus went to the polls to elect the five officers.

NANCY BARNHART, new president of the Women's Recreation Association, is looking forward to a year of broadened activities for WRA.

"It is my hope that during the coming year the Women's Recreation Association will be broadened to meet the growing demands and expanding interests of the Penn State undergraduate women," Miss Barnhart said.

"We encourage both the skilled and the unskilled to participate in all our club and intramural activities."

LESSON 8 - Becoming a specialist

Experienced girl watchers, for whom routine watching has lost some of its excitement, often become specialists. (This is definitely not recommended for beginners. However, it may be practiced as a change-of-pace by more advanced students.) They may spend an entire field trip concentrating on one part of a girl. This tends to step up activity, since it does not require that the whole girl be beautiful. For example, if you decide to specialize in knees, you watch only beautiful knees. (The doorman above appears to be an ankle specialist.) Whatever your watching specialty, make sure your smoking specialty is Pall Mall's natural mildness—it's so good to your taste.
