FIVE CENTS

UP IN THE AIR—Penn State's George Edwards gets a free ride from Rutgers' Mike Leta before being thrown to the mat in last night's quarter-final round in the Eastern Intercollegiate Wrestling Association Tournament at Rec Hall. Edwards lost the 137-pound match, 7-3.

Defense Sets Reserve Plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon acted yesterday to set up a pool of Reservists tagged for quick emergency call. The purpose is to help reduce in the future hardships and difficulties such as beset men mobilized for the Berlin crisis.

Men so tagged would be used to fill understrength Reserve or National Guard units summoned to active service in any emergencies.

Just how many men would be placed in the pool is impossible to say now, a Defense Department spokesman said, since each service is working out its own program.

THE PROJECT is an outgrowth of complaints registered when 155,000 Reservists and National Guardsmen were summoned to duty last fall. Some of them said they were called up unfairly because of family responsibilities, critical jobs, and other reasons they considered entitled them to deferment.

Most of the complaints came from among the 28,000 Army Ready Reservists who were summoned to fill below-strength units. The Army said part of this resulted because the Reservists did not keep the service informed of changes in their family or job status.

THE POOL will be set up along lines laid down by Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara in telling a congressional committee Jan. 19 that the plan was being considered.

Preferably, he said, the pool would consist of men who had only six months of full-time training before entering the Reserve.

"These persons," he said, "would be carefully screened to eliminate all those not available for immediate recall for reasons of occupation, family status, etc."

The Defense Department said those selected will then be notified that they have been tagged for priority call to active duty.

THE UNITS CALLED to duty starting last October are expected for the most part to be released well before next October, probably in midsummer.

Students or teachers in the Ready Reserve who are not members of organized units may be granted a delay in any future call until the completion of the school quarter or the semester in which they are studying or teaching when they get their orders to duty.

Seven Nittanies Beaten In EIWA Quarter-Finals

By DEAN BILICK
Assistant Sports Editor

There is no joy in University Park today. Penn State's once-mighty grapplers have struck out.

The knockout blow was delivered with deft swiftness by seven different "pitchers" and the speed at which the Lions went down was the main topic of conversation last night at the 58th annual EIWA's held at Rec Hall.

For State the story is a nightmare, but to the better than 3,300 fans who sat in on the second session of the tournament, it was as real as the snow that covered the slumbering Nittany Mountains all night.

THE COLD FACTS are that Ron Pifer is the only Lion still in the running for an eastern title, that State lost seven men in the quarter-finals, and that not even the most avid Lehigh or Pittsburgh fan expected such a poor Lion showing.

While State fans sat in gloom, Lehigh, Pitt and Rutgers' backers roared their approval. In fact the three schools threaten to make a win over Navy's Fred Crawford runaway of this, the showcase of eastern wrestling.

The favored Engineers go into today's semi-finals with 22 points. Pitt trails with 19 and the surprising Scarlet are next with 16. LEHIGH'S HOPES for defense of its crown lie in the hands of seven men who won double victories yesterday afternoon and evening. Pitt also has seven survivors and Rutgers is just one behind with six.

The semi-finals will start at 12 noon with the preliminary consolation also taking place during the afternoon. The finals and the consolation finals for third place will start at 7:30.

The team points going into today's bouts are Lehigh 22, Pitt 19, Rutgers 16, Syracuse 13, Navy 13, State 11, Army 11, Yale 6, Cornell 4, F & M 4, Harvard 4, Penn 3, Columbia 3, Brown 2, Princeton 1 and Temple 1.

UNBEATEN DICK MARTIN of Pitt headed into the final two rounds of competition at 123 looking for his second EIWA crown. The Pitt senior, who has never lost in dual meet competition, scored a fall in the preliminaries and then settled for a 5-0 win over Navy's Fred Crawford in the quarter-finals.

Martin's stiffest competition should come from either Bob Hogan of Rutgers or Bill Merriam of Lehigh.

Merriam advanced to the quarter-finals by topping State's Denny Slattery in one of the wildest bouts of the evening. The two hooked-up in an overtime duel that had most of the fans hanging on the edge of their seats.

The second-seeded Engineers jumped to a 3-0 second period lead before Slattery began to work. The Lion grappler countered with a second period escape and added another in the early

Second Snowstorm Within 4 Days Deposits Several Inches on State

The second snowstorm to batter Pennsylvania within four days was expected to diminish early this morning after leaving 2 or 3 inches of snow in this area.

Snow may continue into this afternoon in the eastern part of the state, and accumulations there could exceed 6 inches.

Another storm that is expected to develop in Texas tonight may bring more snow or rain to the Commonwealth tomorrow night or Monday.

The storm that brought the snow to the Commonwealth began to weaken yesterday afternoon in Ohio, as a new and more energetic system developed in the southeastern states. It is this secondary development that was expected to produce the heavy snowfall in eastern Pennsylvania last night and this morning.

Heavy snow with accumulations in excess of four inches were also indicated for New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland and southeastern New York.

Mostly cloudy skies and cold weather are expected here today and tonight. Rather cold temperatures should continue.

A high of 35 is forecast for this afternoon, and a low of 26 is indicated for tonight.

Tomorrow should be mostly cloudy and cold with a chance of snow late in the day or at night.

Arnold Resigns, Gets National Post

Christian K. Arnold, staff assistant to President Eric A. Walker, resigned yesterday to accept a position as associate director of the Association of State Universities and Land-Grant Colleges.

Arnold will assume his duties at the educational organization's office in Washington, D.C., April 1.

Commenting on his resignation, Arnold said: "Although it is always difficult to leave a place where you have commitments and friends, I think that the opportunity will be a good one. This position will give me the chance to work with land-grant colleges and universities on a national level.

"The work will be somewhat similar to the work I have been doing here, except that it will be dealing with 68 institutions instead of one."

Since Arnold joined the president's staff in 1956, he has also served on the faculty as associate professor of journalism and as a consultant to the Ordnance Research Laboratory.

From 1953 to 1956, Arnold served as technical editor in the Ordnance Research Lab, preparing research reports for publication. For the last five summers he has served as the director of the University's Technical Report Writing Workshop.

His successor has not yet been named, Wilmer E. Kenworthy, executive assistant to the president,

The USG Congress referred to committee Thursday a proposal to provide students with vacation bus service to major cities.

USG President Dennis Foianini, who presented the proposal, asked the Congress to endorse the service. It could be run by the USG President if Congress provides the financial support needed to charter the buses, he said.

Fred Good, fraternity area representative, proposed that the plan be referred to committee until more information could be obtained.

WILLIAM F. FULLER, USG adviser, said, "I think the plan is good, but more information is needed before it can be efficiently carried out."

"The plan could be run by USG with little or no loss of money," Edward Kotchi, head of the Transportation Committee under former SGA President Richard Haber, said.

Kotchi has been working on a bus service plan for almost a year. There is no official Transportation Committee under the Foianini administration.

By an 18-6 vote, the Congress defeated a proposal to issue another invitation to President Eric

A. Walker to speak before the body. Anne Morris and Jon Geiger, North Halls representatives, presented the proposal.

ON FEB. 15 Congress issued an invitation to Walker to speak at one of its meetings. In his reply, Walker said that Robert G. Bernreuter, special assistant to the president for student affairs, would be more qualified to speak on matters of interest to student government.

Walker said that Bernreuter would be happy to speak before the Congress. In the reply, however, Walker did not specifically refuse the invitation.

The second invitation proposal stressed that the Congress would be happy if Bernreuter would accompany Walker.

"I think that Dr. Walker quite clearly has declined the invitation," Allison Woodall, South Halls representative, said. "It would be discourteous to invite him again."

MISS MORRIS said, "I want to make it clear to all of you that the purpose of this invitation is not to put Dr. Walker on the spot, but to make him aware of the new student government."

The issuance of another invitation to Walker would be "rather spiteful," Foianini said. "We are obviously being antagonistic if we send another invitation," he said.

After the motion was defeated, Foianini said he would send an invitation to Bernreuter to speak before the Congress.

19 to Graduate With Honors

Nineteen seniors will graduate with honors at the winter term commencement exercises at 2:30 p.m., March 18 in Recreation Hall.

Only one senior, Eve Hewes, arts and letters, will graduate with highest distinction. Those designated for highest distinction have attained an All-University average of 3.80 to 4.00.

Seven seniors with an All-University average of 3.60 to 3.79 will graduate with high distinction. They are Roberta Beatty, arts and letters; Nancy Bradney, journalism; Bonnie Evans, secondary education; Judith Heimbach, elementary and kindergarten education; William McCullough, elec-
