Beta Theta Pi, Werner Expects Sigma Pi Reach Poor Showing IM Swim Final In IC4A Meet

By KEN DENLINGER

By DENNIS KNECHT

Four evenly matched teams entered the water at Glennland Pool last night in the semi-final round of IM swimming. Sigma Pi and Beta Theta Pi emerged victorious. "We expected to have two close matches," IM director Dutch Sykes said, "and we certainly got them."

Penn State track coach Chick Werner had an optimistic attitude — but not for Penn State — when his team left yesterday for New York City and IC4A track and field championships at Madison Square Garden today.

Depth proved to be the deciding factor in Sigma Pi's 24-17 win over Phi Delta Theta. The Phi Deltas, paced by Charlie Yartz, took three of the five first places, but Sigma Pi still managed to win. Yartz won the freestyle in 31.7 seconds and the breaststroke in 39.3. Alan Jozak took the diving with 14.6 points.

"I think Villanova's chances are excellent," the veteran mentor said earlier this week, avoiding the question concerning his team's chances. Then he added, "I'll tell you this. I bet Steve Moorhead, Howie Deardorff, Gerry Norman and Jerry Wettstone will be the only Penn State men to place, and maybe not even all of them."

ALL THE RACES in Beta Theta Pi's 24 1/2-16 1/2 win over Tau Kappa Epsilon were extremely close. Beta scored with Lee Smith, 39.3 in the backstroke, and Herm Weber, 39.7 in the breaststroke.

THE LION thinclads will finish a season tonight that has been anything but successful. They defeated only one team, Purdue, and finished second to Michigan in a triangular meet.

TKE's lone triumph was recorded by Jack Borgerding who won the freestyle in 32.8.

In dual meets the thinclads lost to Navy, 56 3/4-43 1/4, and to Ohio State, 81-63.

Beta Theta Pi clinched the meet when Greg Weiss scored a slim 20.15-19.6 victory over Fred Good in the diving competition.

Among the ten best rated athletes entered in each event of the IC4A, according to this season's best performances, Wettstone ranks third in the high jump, Howie Deardorff holds fourth in the 1000-yard run, Norman ranks fifth in the two-mile and Moorhead ranks sixth in the mile run.

Pitt, Lehigh Coaches Expect Semi-Finals 'To Tell the Tale'

By JOHN MORRIS

Assistant Sports Editor

Strange as it sounds, the coaches of the two leading contenders for the EIWA championship—Lehigh and Pitt—agree that the team title will be decided by two matches.

To make it even more incongruous, neither of the matches in question is in tonight's championship round.

Pitt coach Rex Peery put it this way: "The whole thing might be decided in our two matches with Lehigh in the semi-finals."

IF PEERY'S prediction holds true, the center of attention will be on the matches between Pitt's

Jim Harrison and Lehigh's Dave Angell in the 167-pound class and the 191-pound battle between Pitt's Tom Jeffries and Chuck Moore of Lehigh.

Lehigh coach Gerry Leeman agreed that those two matches were important for both teams. "They will tell the tale," he said.

Both Peery and Leeman expressed surprise that Penn State advanced only one man (Ron Pifer) to the semi-final round.

"I thought Penn State would be right in there," Leeman commented, "but now it looks like a two-team fight."

PEERY AGREED that Penn State had been a disappointment, but the veteran Pitt coach thought that Rutgers and Army still had a chance for the title.

Lehigh and Pitt both advanced seven men into the semi-final round while Rutgers has six and Army and Navy four.

Army coach Leroy Alitz didn't hesitate to pick a winner in the tournament.

"I expect Lehigh to win," Alitz said. "They have too much strength for Pitt and we just don't have enough boys in the semi-finals to beat them."

LION MENTOR Charlie Speidel took the Lions' downfall with a touch of humor.

When told that Peery and Leeman were surprised that the Lions had done so poorly, Speidel said, "We were kind of surprised too, but some days it just doesn't pay to get out of bed."

Rutgers has been the surprise leader of the tournament so far, advancing six men into the semis and ranking third in team scoring with 16 points.
