Johnson's Talk Switched To Tuesday Afternoon

Rusk Cited In Criticism

By ELLIE AURAND

Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson's speech has been switched to 4:15 p.m. Tuesday to accommodate changes in the vice president's schedule, Robert Barraclough, Business Administration Career Day chairman said last night.

The vice president requested the change because of "pressing business" in Washington which necessitates his presence, Barraclough said.

No topic for Johnson's talk has yet been announced. An administrative aide said that the vice president will probably discuss "American trade policies," Barraclough said.

JOHNSON'S SPEECH will be broadcast by WMAJ, WDFM and WFBG-TV, Channel 10. Barraclough said that it is not yet definite whether or not the broadcasts will be "live" or on tape.

Johnson will not be available for discussion or interview because he will arrive at the University Park airport at 4 p.m. and will leave immediately following his address, Barraclough said.

All Business Administration students who have not previously received a ticket for the speech at a club meeting may pick up a ticket at 8 a.m. today in 120 Boucke.

IF ANY TICKETS remain, they will be distributed to the public Monday at the Hetzel Union desk, Barraclough added.

Seats in Schwab will be reserved for ticket-holders until 4 p.m., when the doors will be

Ed Policy Committee to Conduct Study of Term System Next Fall

The Senate Committee on Educational Policy will undertake its study of the term system at the end of the summer term, Joseph J. Schanz, chairman, said last night.

The committee will make the study as a result of the resolution passed at the Senate meeting Tuesday.

"WE WILL BE examining only the educational aspects of the term system because our committee has no power to regulate the type of calendar which shall be used by the University. This is an administrative decision," Schanz said.

If the committee feels that any of the aspects of the term system are undermining educational performances, it will study these areas and make a broad policy recommendation to the Senate for consideration and action, he said.

"The Committee on Educational Policy already considered such a study necessary," Schanz said. He smaller crowd is expected in the afternoon than was expected for the talk at 8 p.m.

Rev. Clifford A. Nelson, assistant coordinator of religious affairs, will offer the invocation before Johnson's speech. Ossian MacKenzie, dean of the College of Business Administration, will give the welcoming address. President Eric A. Walker will introduce Johnson.

FOLLOWING Johnson's speech, Barraclough will present him with a miniature lion shrine.

The Career Day program will open at 2 p.m. with seven panel discussions in Boucke. The panels will include discussions on accounting, economics, marketing and management. Finance, investment, insurance, real estate and transportation will also be discussed.

The purpose of Career Day, as stated in the Career Day program, is to "explore the opportunities for service in the major fields of commerce, industry, labor and government."

It provides an opportunity to "learn from leaders of American industry, who have achieved high levels of responsibility, the qualities of character and education essential for successful business and public service."

Barraclough said that Johnson's speech would not be moved to Recreation Hall because there will not be sufficient time to print extra tickets. He added that a

USG May Pay to Move Talk

By WINNIE BOYLE and ROCHELLE MICHAELS

If the "proper arrangements" can be made, the USG Congress will foot the bill to move Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson's speech Tuesday from Schwab to Recreation Hall.

The Congress approved the $300 to $500 expenditure last night after considering background information, supplied by Robert Barraclough, chairman of the Business Administration Career Day. Dennis Folanini, USG president, presented the proposal on behalf of Allison Woodall (South Halls) who was called home for an emergency.

FOIANINI TERMED this a "kind of safe bill" because there are many drawbacks to moving the lecture to Rec Hall. Barraclough said that in addition to the financial aspects the following problems remain to be solved:

• Tuesday afternoon's physical education classes in Rec Hall would have to be cancelled.

• Security arrangements for the Vice President would have to be changed for the new location.

• Not enough tickets and programs have been printed for the additional audience.

• Because of the hour (4:15 p.m.) scheduled for the lecture, Rec Hall might not be filled which would give Johnson a poor reception.

• Television arrangements would have to be changed.

In discussing the bill, John Witmer (fraternity) questioned whether the USG treasury could afford the expenditure. Folanini said the treasury now has over $7,000 and a $10,000 U.S. Savings Bond.

A second measure passed by Congress last night established a bus service "to provide safe, convenient and economical transportation" for students and staff members between the University and major Pennsylvania cities during vacations.

The Transportation Agency will charter buses in accordance with the number of tickets sold. One volunteer student on each bus attitude toward "our constitutional system, our sovereignty, our security, our independence."

THE FORMER MAJOR general was invited to testify in an inquiry into the whys and wherefores of his exit from the Army. He resigned after being admonished for allegedly trying to sway the votes of troops in his 24th Division in Germany in the 1960 U.S. election.

He had placed an editorial in the official division paper calling the men's attention to an index of the voting records of Congress members. This index was prepared by Americans for Constitutional Action.

Walker said he had no doubt the late Dag Hammarskjold, U.N. secretary-general, was in the "Red classification." He described the U.N. action against the Tshombe regime in the Katanga as "vicious and outrageous."

WALKER SAID it makes no sense for the Kennedy administration offer to join with the Soviet Union in developing peaceful space ventures.

Rostow is head of the policy planning council in the state department.

Walker said Rostow had been in control of the operating part of the CIA since 1954. A CIA spokesman said Rostow has never been employed by the agency.

BULLETIN

Justice Felix Frankfurter collapsed at his desk in Washington yesterday and was rushed by ambulance to a hospital.

There was no immediate report on Frankfurter's condition. An aide said, however, that he had not suffered a heart attack as he did three years ago. Frankfurter is 79 years old.
