

Elections to Fill 2 Seats

By ROCHELLE MICHAELS
Special elections to fill the two vacant seats on the USG Congress will be held simultaneously with the April 25 to 27 All-University elections. Elections Commission chairman Allen Feingold said Sunday night.

Jon Unger (Nittany Halls) and Richard Miller (West Halls) resigned from Congress last term because they moved from their constituencies. Unger was constitutionally required to resign; Miller resigned before he moved.

A constitutional amendment passed by Congress last Thursday requires that all vacancies be announced by the USG vice president immediately and special elections be held within two weeks to fill the seats.

The scheduled elections are actually three weeks from passage of this amendment. However, official announcement of the vacancies will not be until tomorrow's USG meeting, two weeks before the April 25 elections, President Dennis Foianini said yesterday.

Foianini said he interpreted the constitutional provision for immediate announcement of vacancies to mean announcement at the meeting following occurrence of the vacancy. Since the amendment was only passed last week, he continued, tomorrow night would be within the required time period.

Commenting on upcoming appointments, Foianini said he hoped to name some of the members of the USG Supreme Court "soon." He said he only expects to appoint three of its members at present, but declined to say exactly when he would announce them.

The USG constitution passed in January provides for a Supreme Court of five members to serve terms of one to two years, as specified at the time of appointment.

All appointments must be approved by Congress.

The Supreme Court is granted power to rule on all questions of constitutionality and to hear appeals from lower courts and student tribunals according to the constitution.

Foianini also mentioned that he hoped to announce his appointment for chairman of the newly-created Transportation Agency at tomorrow night's meeting. He said he had a person in mind for the position, but did not want to make any announcement yet.

The Transportation Agency was created by Congress last Thursday to run an economical bus service to major Pennsylvania cities for students during University vacations. The measure was proposed by Foianini.

Liberal Party Platform Distribution 'Frowned On' by Election Chairman

Allen Feingold, Elections Commission chairman, said last night that he "frowned" on the early distribution of party aims and platforms by Liberal party. The platforms were distributed Sunday night at final registration meeting of the party. He said he had no knowledge of the party's intentions beforehand.

THE ISSUE will be brought up before the Undergraduate Student Congress tomorrow night, he said, and it will decide whether it is legal to campaign with party platforms previous to the official date set for campaigning.

Campaigning for the USG elections is scheduled to begin midnight Sunday.

The Liberal party steering committee has been contacted, he said. They are stopping distribution and attempting to get back the copies they have distributed, he added.

COMMENTING ON the special elections to fill the vacancies in the USG Congress, Feingold said that parties will be permitted to nominate candidates to fill the seats.

Both Michael Dzwonik, University party chairman, and Dennis Eisman, Campus party chairman, said they are planning to run candidates from their parties for these positions.

Karen Fay, Liberal party chairman, was not available for comment, but Feingold said Liberal party was aware of the additional positions available.

FEINGOLD ALSO clarified the policy concerning the new party fund established by University party. He said the money which will be donated by party members to a campaign fund may be used at the discretion of the University party executive board pending a limit which may be set by USG tomorrow night.

The policy, as it is now, allows candidates for USG offices to spend $15 apiece on their respective campaign. Nothing has been stated as to what the parties could spend on campaigning.

Good to Vie for Title

Barbara Jean Elser, junior in elementary and kindergarten education from Springfield, will leave tomorrow for Los Angeles, Calif., where she will compete for the national title of "Little General."

The competition will be held as a part of the Arnold Air Society-Angel Flight Conclave. Miss Elser won the area competition in Pittsburgh last month.

Bernreuter Speaks to Students At DOC Dean's List Dinner

It is excellent to see excellence at work, Robert G. Bernreuter, dean of admissions and registrar, said Sunday when he addressed students in the Division of Counseling and their guests at the annual DOC dean's list banquet at the Nittany Lion Inn.

"It is not enough to have potential," Bernreuter said, "for one must use the ability which accompanies it. These students have used their potential to the ultimate."

Bernreuter also commented that the dean's list students had done better than was predicted according to the estimated All-University average given to them as freshmen during counseling.

"The University never predicts that any students will make dean's list," Bernreuter said, "because superior scholastic achievement is an individual matter with the students, and cannot be estimated accurately."

Thirty of the 72 students who have made the dean's list since last year's spring semester attended the dinner.

Donald H. Ford, director of the Division of Counseling, said there has been a marked increase in the number of students on the dean's list this year. He attributed this increase to the improved quality of students all over the University and to the adoption of the four-term system.

Both Ford and Bernreuter spoke at an annual dinner sponsored by the DOC Student Council and staff.

Emmett to Speak In Priestley Series

Paul H. Emmett, professor of chemistry at Johns Hopkins University, will speak at 8 p.m. in 119 Osmond on "Catalytic Action on Metals" in the second of the week-long Priestley series of lectures in chemistry.

"Catalysis" is the theme of this thirty-sixth annual series sponsored by Phi Lambda Upsilon, professional chemistry honorary fraternity.

LAST NIGHT, Emmett spoke on "Physical and Chemical Absorption in the Study of Catalysis." Tomorrow he will discuss "Catalytic Action on Nonmetals."

On Thursday afternoon, he will speak on "Catalytic Synthesis of Ammonia," and Friday night, "The Use of Isotopes as Tracers in Studying the Mechanisms of Catalytic Reactions."

The lectures, which are open to the public, are being given at 8 p.m. in 119 Osmond, with the exception of Thursday, when the talk will be given at 4:30 p.m.

Patty Matich of AXO

Perhaps it's merely good luck or just the nature of things but we do come across many beautiful women in our work (work?). And often we've been asked for our definition of a beautiful woman. So it seemed appropriate at this time to say that Capucine in Walk On The Wild Side currently at a local theatre is my definition of a remarkably beautiful woman.

Something delightful to the eyes of local vintage is not only Patty Matich but Mary Alice McDonald, a Zeta Tau Alpha pledge seen at the SPE formal this weekend.

And Harry Belafonte whom some of you have already seen on campus is incognito under the name of Kent Pope of Omega Phi Psi.

Through the Looking Glass

with Gabbi

"And then the rains came." They sure have and still are. Do you find the weather as unpredictable as I do? You leave for an 8 o'clock class with the sun shining but during the course of the day, the sun decides to go away and the rains come. Do you get that soggy feeling on you way back from class? Well, all I can say is — get used to it. That's Penn State weather for you!

But, when it is raining (a usual condition), don't forget your umbrella. You don't have one? Ethel Messer's does. Stop in today.

MORE UMBRELLAS

But, a different kind. Ethel has umbrellas that hide the sun (when it's out). For picnics, barbecues, etc. They are very large and have different colored designs. Only $7.95.

OOPS!!

So you slipped on the soap again. Or did you drop it? Now, don't curse because I have the perfect thing for you — soap tied to a string. Wear it around your neck in the shower and no more problems. And only $2.00.

CARDS, CARDS, AND MORE CARDS

Besides Ethel's regular selection of cards — anniversary, birthday, get-well, general — she has so many beautiful Easter cards. Foreign ones too. Get them now while the selection is good and send them to your friends and relatives.

Must run!
