MODERN-DAY EXODUS: Students desiring to spend Easter Sunday with family or friends took advantage of Sunday's one-day recess to travel home yesterday. The Greyhound Bus Terminal reported extra sections were added to the schedules to handle the above-normal traffic.

Lily Symbolizes Easter

By DONNAN BEESON

For the Chinese, the peony is the king of flowers and the symbol of spring. But for the people in their churches on Easter Day, the fragrant lily is the symbol of purity and the welcome harbinger of spring.

With blossoms shaped like Gabriel's trumpet, the lillies are an integral part of the Easter season. Every florist's shop is filled with them, many homes have a plant of their own, and they fill the chancels of every church.

But to many, this is secondary to the celebration of the holiday. Fashion parades, egg rolls, baby chicks and rabbits take precedence over the lily and the more serious side of season.

CHURCHGOERS ENJOY the flowers and the music and the sermon for the day, but from time to time, look about them to observe the new spring clothes that people are wearing. It has long been the custom for people to wear their newest clothes on Easter. Mrs. Jones' purple hat with a 20-inch brim can easily become the center of attention.

Quite different from our parades and contests featured in the rotogravure section of the paper, are the parades held in countries where the Greek Orthodox Church is strong.

Early Saturday night, the worshippers gather for the beginning of many elaborate rituals. Then, at midnight, led by their priests dressed in richly adorned vestments, carrying images and lighted candles, they go out into the night in search of Christ.

IT IS ALMOST dawn when the people return to their homes to eat Easter bread with white cheese and honey and many colored eggs. The rest of the day is spent visiting neighbors and friends, where they all exchange colored eggs.

Easter Service to Start at 6

The Rev. P. Barrett Rudd, associate director of the University Christian Association, will speak 11 a.m. Chapel Service tomorrow on "With Fear and Joy" at the community Easter Sunrise Service, at 6 a.m. tomorrow on the steps of Old Main.

In case of bad weather, the service will be held in Schwab.

A 90-VOICE CHOIR will sing the choral hymn "At the Name of Jesus" accompanied by a 9-piece brass ensemble under the direction of James W. Beach, assistant director of the Chapel Choirs.

The Rev. Luther H. Harshbarger, University chaplain, will deliver the Easter sermon at the in Schwab. The service will be televised over WFBG-TV Altoona, from 11 a.m. to noon.

THE EASTER SERVICE will follow the order of the Communion service according to the Anglican tradition. The musical settings to be used have been composed by George E. Ceiga, University organist, in which he utilizes a brass choir plus the organ and chorus.

Dr. Leonard Raver, Chapel organist, will play a prelude recital beginning at 10:45 a.m.

The Rev. William Watson, associate director of the Wesley Foundation, will speak on "The Dying and Rising of Christ" at the protestant service of worship at 9 a.m. tomorrow in the Helen Eakin Eisenhower Chapel.

The service has been adapted from forms of worship used in the medieval European Christian Church. It will begin with the congregation waiting outside the church for the doors to be opened by a "messenger." In medieval times, the doors of the church were opened with impressive challenge and ceremony.

THE SECOND PART of the service, after the congregation has come into the church, will be an ancient litany used for the observance of Ash Wednesday. It is a service of confession to express penitence and humility before the Lord.

The last part of the service will be recalling the events of Easter as recorded in the scripture and a sermon interpreting these events.

Renovated Carnegie Will Become General Communications Center

Carnegie, long a campus landmark and a former home of The Daily Collegian, is reverberating to the tune of a new face-lifting.

WALTER H. WIEGAND, director of the physical plant, said that Carnegie is being converted to a general communications building as part of the Arts and Humanities building project. He added that the General State Authority has taken charge of the project.

Reconstruction is nothing new to Carnegie—the brick and stone edifice is merely undergoing the latest in an historical series of renovations dating as far back as the 1930's.

The building was constructed with money donated by Andrew Carnegie, then a trustee of the college, and was dedicated in 1904. It served as a library until the '30's, when the General State Authority allocated money for the construction of a large library. Carnegie was occupied shortly after by the School of Journalism, the School of Music and the Army ROTC. The Daily Collegian moved its offices at that time from Old Main to the basement of Carnegie where it remained until this year's move to the basement of Sackett.

As a prelude to the recent innovation, the journalism offices in Carnegie were moved from the first floor of the building to the second floor.

THE RECENT conversions being made at Carnegie include increasing space for television and motion picture studios, radio broadcasting and photography laboratories.

No definite date has been announced for the completion of the project.

BOGGED DOWN WITH BLUE-BOOKS ALREADY?
It's about the fact we're already getting bogged down with the bluebooks. Sorta looks like we'll all be putting in a few all-nighters in the next couple of weeks. If you want a cheerer-upper, take a look at some of the sharp things Ethel's gotten in for Spring!

GAY UMBRELLAS
These pagoda shaped umbrellas have a light flower design on a fresh white acetate background. They are also available in several pastel shades to help combat this dreary weather we've been having. (Incidentally, they make great Easter presents too.)

FROSTED PASTELS IN NECKLACES
What could be more appropriate than soft pinks, mint greens, and lively oranges to accent your new spring suit or dress. At Ethel Messer's you'll find just the right necklace for your outfit in either matinee length or rope type. To complete the picture — why not get the matching frosted earrings?

LOST YOUR MATRIC OR PEN LATELY?
Tired of stuffing your pockets or carrying a monstrous pocket-book? Ethel has brand new burlap and leather bags that are the perfect size for running from class to class, or just plain hubbing it.

YUP... IT'S EASTER WEEK-END
If you've forgotten someone, don't worry, you still have time to run down this afternoon and buy a card. Ethel has many beautiful cards left. O yes, while you're there, make sure you see the cute little hand painted Easter eggs. They're a bit out of the ordinary, as they were imported from Czechoslovakia.
