

Maryland Netmen Hand State Second Straight Setback, 7-2

By KEN DENLINGER

Having tasted defeat for the first time this year at North Carolina, the Maryland tennis team came to Penn State yesterday looking for their sixth win in seven starts. They weren't disappointed.

The Terps sent the Lions reeling to their second straight defeat by copping seven of nine matches on the varsity courts in back of the skating rink.

Featuring a team composed mainly of sophomores, the Terps previously beat Lafayette and Syracuse by, 9-0, scores, Virginia, 6-3, North Carolina State, 8-1, and Wake Forest, 6-0, before bowing to North Carolina, 7-2.

"These sophomores have progressed very well for us so far this year," coach Doyle Royal said. "If they keep up this pace we'll have a good season."

COMBINING a powerful service with a good baseline attack, captain Jim Baker defeated the Terps' Barry Cleveland in the number one position, 6-2, 6-2. This makes Baker the only State netter with a winning record. Previously he defeated Pitt's Joe Brown and lost to Army's Rich Oehrlein.

Senior Al Citrenbaum defeated the Lions' Whit Gray in the number two spot by a 7-5, 6-1 count.

Two sophomores battled in the number three position with Maryland's Gene Gerber besting State's Alan Isaacman, 6-1, 6-2.

Maryland's only returning letterman Chuck Shapiro beat sophomore Csaba Balazs in the number four spot, 6-2, 6-2.

three sets. Seitchik beat Lou Dobies in the first set, 6-3, but lost the remaining sets by scores of 6-2, 6-0.

Bruce Derman was beaten by Terp sophomore Tom Marcellino, 6-1, 6-2, in the number six position.

State managed to salvage one of the three doubles matches when Isaacman and Seitchik defeated Citrenbaum and Gerber, 7-5, 3-6, 6-2. The win marked only the second doubles victory for the netters so far this year. Gray and Balazs defeated Pitt's Ralph Mason and Pete Nycum, 6-4, 6-3 in the season opener.

BAKER AND BALAZS were beaten by Cleveland and Dobies,

"We were beaten by a very fine team," State coach Sherm Fogg said. "I thought Baker played well for us."

Beard Hopes to Top 14' With Glass Vaulting Pole

By DENNIS KNECHT

When John Uelses became the first man to break the magic 16' pole vaulting barrier Feb. 2 this year, a lot of controversy was stirred up about the type of pole he used.

The ex-Quántico Marine set his mark with a fiberglass pole which was claimed to give him an advantage because of the extra spring it gives.

Saturday in the Ohio Relay meet at Columbus, Penn State's Ron Beard, using the same type of pole, became the second man in State's history to vault 14'. The mark was set in 1958 by Ogie Norris.

BEARD IS NOT certain that he vaulted the extra height just because he used the fiberglass pole, although it probably helped him. He barely missed clearing 14' with a conventional aluminum pole as a sophomore, but had a run of bad luck since.

Last year the Lion senior broke his ankle playing intramural football and missed the indoor season. The ankle healed for the spring season but Beard had a rough time getting started. This year's indoor season wasn't very profitable for him either, but now he may be ready.

"I was disappointed I didn't make 14' with the aluminum pole," Beard said. "At first I didn't like the idea of a fiberglass pole. I thought it would take too long to change my style and a lot of vaulters can't make the change. But now I hope to reach 14' 8"."

Using a fiberglass pole requires more of a hesitation just before leaving the ground. With a steel or aluminum pole the vaulter has to jump off the ground and count on his strength and forward motion to lift him across the bar. But with a glass pole, he hesitates until the pole bends and then lets the spring of the pole carry him up and across the bar.

COACH CHICK WERNER said that Beard cleared 14'4" in the relays, but the pole came through and knocked off the bar.

"I have a bad habit of letting go of the pole too late," Beard said. "I did the same thing at Navy after I cleared 14'."
