WHIRLWIND TOUR: Democratic organization gubernatorial candidate Richardson Dilworth spent yesterday morning and afternoon in State College and Bellefonte. Shown here discussing the day's itinerary and the local issues are, from the left, Senator Jo Hays, D-Centre, Dilworth, and his wife, Ann, Dilworth repeatedly called the University THE state university during the day's activities.

University, Student Aid Get Dilworth's Support

By MEL AXILBUND

The phrase "Penn State is THE state university" was frequently on the lips of Richardson Dilworth yesterday as he brought his Democratic organization-backed gubernatorial campaign into Centre County.

DURING THE video-taping of a Folio 15 segment for WFBG-TV, Altoona, a question and answer session on radio station WMAJ, an informal series of discussions over coffee at the Nittany Lion Inn and at a press conference in Bellefonte, Dilworth used that phrase to make clear his view of the University's status.

Discussing state-aid to higher educational institutions in some depth, Dilworth also announced support of direct assistance to students.

"I favor a system of competitive full-tuition scholarships for five per cent of the state's high school graduates," he said.

In addition to this, Dilworth said he would support a $2 million revolving loan fund. Funds to carry out this program, as well as the expansion of higher educational opportunities generally, and improvements in a multitude of other state projects will not require additional taxes, he said.

THE NATURAL expansion of tax revenues as the salaries of the state's citizens climb, and the closing of loopholes in the existing taxes should, Dilworth said, provide the funds the Commonwealth will require.

"My six years experience on the University's Board of Trustees has convinced me that it has got to play the key role in the expansion of our higher education facilities," Dilworth said.

The expansion recommendations of the Governor's Commission on Higher Education drew approval from Dilworth. The proposals of the commission call for state assistance in the expansion of the university, and state-owned or state-aided colleges and universities. The commission also cites necessary expansion of the various private colleges throughout the state, which would come primarily through their own efforts.

When asked whether he would push the University's part of the program through a possibly uncooperative legislature more forcefully than the other parts, Dilworth said he would not.

"I expect to get the whole program through," he said.

Dilworth pointed to the tuition level, which he said should be kept down, as an example of the results of the treatment the University has received from the Republican party.

THE TRUSTEES, he said hiked tuition levels in order to maintain a "quality" faculty after funds for total support were not forthcoming.

The funds were inadequate, Dilworth said, because Governors Leader and Lawrence could not get through the Republican controlled state senate monies to cover what should have been done earlier and was now required.

NSA Representative To Speak to USG

By WINNIE BOYLE

To clear the air concerning the various aspects of the United States National Student Association, Eugene Zagat, NSA representative will appear before the Undergraduate Student Government Congress Thursday night.

A bill proposing affiliation with the national organization was presented to Congress this week by Murray Winderman, West, and Ann Tyson, West. After limited discussion on the proposal it was postponed until the congressmen could further investigate the pros and cons of joining NSA.

USG President Dean Wharton, said yesterday, that Zagat will meet with the USG executive branch Thursday afternoon. Wharton added that he may contact several administrators, who are known to oppose affiliation with the organization, and ask them also to appear before Congress.

In the presentation of the bill some of the benefits of affiliating the NSA were

- Student Government Information Service.
- Student Discount Service.

• A low-cost, non-profit educational travel program.

• The right to apply for all-expense scholarships to the regional, national and international student relations seminars.

The passage of the pending bill would include adoption of the NSA Constitution and Preamble, acceptance of the NSA By-Laws and adoption of the regional constitution.

It would also include payment of national dues, payment of regional dues, and the pledge to fulfill obligations such as sending delegates to the national convention.

Wharton also announced yesterday several appointments on which he will ask Congress' approval Thursday. They are Robert Polishook, junior in pre-med from Havertown, Float Parade and Homecoming Weekend chairman; Phillip Cozadd, sophomore in industrial engineering from Warren, Ohio, and Susan Starbird, junior in physics from Portland, Oregon, student members of the Senate Subcommittee on Calendar and Class Schedule.

Troops Combat Venezuelan Revolt

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP) — President Romulo Betancourt's government rushed loyal troops into Carupano yesterday and sent warplanes menacingly overhead to combat a revolt by 450 marines and military policemen at that coastal city.

An official source said 50 of the rebels quickly deserted and that the rebel garrison—reported to have staged the uprising under the direction of two commissioned officers—was left with only a sergeant in charge.

The Defense Ministry said the rest "will soon be dominated." Radio Caracas announced the air force called on the marines to surrender or face bombing of their barracks.

Interior Minister Carlos Andres Perez told reporters the warplanes had flown over Carupano on observation flights. He denied a rebel declaration, broadcast from Carupano, that the planes machine-gunned the city.

THE MINISTER said all was normal elsewhere. There had been an unofficial report that rebels seized the fishing village of Rio Caribe, 16 miles from Carupano. A dispatch from Maracaibo, the center of Venezuela's oil industry, said the revolt news had no noticeable effect on that city and activities in the surrounding oil fields were normal.

The uprising was pictured here as having a Red tinge, though political philosophy in Venezuela's armed forces often leans to the right.

A government source said the rebels, seizing the Carupano radio station, broadcast attacks against Betancourt "such as the Communist party uses, accusing him of servility to imperialism."

THE REVOLT leaders were identified by this source as Navy

Cmdr. Jesus Molina Villegas and a Capt. Testamack.

Molina was described as the brother of a navy officer under arrest on a charge of subversive activities.

Administration sources said peasants blocked highways around Carupano—a fishing, trading and manufacturing center of 16,500—to hold the rebels in check until loyal forces could close in.

Other peasants were reported to have armed themselves and converged on the city to help in its recapture.

The rebels cut communication lines at Carupano at the outset of the rebellion soon after midnight. They seized the city radio station before dawn and began broadcasting calls for others to join in their effort to oust the government.

STERED A BIT left of the middle road, Betancourt's administration pleases neither extreme rightists nor the Communist leadership of this relatively rich South American nation. Red-inspired disturbances have cropped up periodically in recent months.

Betancourt has blamed much of the rightist opposition on followers of ex-dictator Marcos Perez Jimenez, a wealthy refugee in the United States. Perez has denied he is involved.

15 Seniors Receive Special Awards

Fifteen seniors were selected highest honor awarded by the senior class executive committee, David Grubbs, senior class president said last night.

The seniors, designated as "Men of the Lion" and "Women of the Lion" were recognized at the Senior Ball last night for "their contributions to the class and to the University as members of the class of 1962," Grubbs said.

John Black and Patricia Dyer were named "class donors," the class, Grubbs said. Selected as "Men of the Lion" were Duane Alexander, Earl-Gershonow, George Hancy, Robert Harrison, Ervin Hill, Herbert Nurick, Richard Pigossi, Philip Steinhauer, Gregor Weiss and John Witmer.

Named as "Women of the Lion" were Joan Cavanagh, Barbara Hackman and Barbara Johnson.

Each of the seniors received a miniature replica of the Nittany Lion Shrine at the ball.

KITE FLYING TIME: Two engineers prepare to test out their box kite near West Halls in the gusty breezes which prevailed yesterday. Richard Schwarz, junior in electrical engineering from Mt. Lebanon, held the kite while William Yoder, junior in engineering science from York, keeps a tight hold on the string.

The lawn in front of Old Main was also reported to have served as a kite-launching version of Cape Canaveral. Latest forecasts indicate continued good kite flying weather. No forecasts can be made of the success of other kite builders, however.
