BARRY GOLDWATER

JUDITH ANDERSON

WILLIAM STEINBERG

Music, dancing, drama and lecturers of recognized stature avail themselves to the University at different times throughout the year under the sponsorship of the University's Artists' and Lecture Series.

Each program is open to all full-time undergraduate and graduate students. Tickets may be obtained several days before the event to students who present their matriculation cards at the Hetzel Union desk.

IN THE PAST, such well-known people as Robert Frost, Dave Brubeck, Isaac Stern, e. e. cummings and Rise Stevens have appeared here. The Philadelphia Orchestra, the Cleveland Symphony, the Baltimore Symphony and the Pittsburgh Symphony Orchestra have also performed. This year, the Pittsburgh orchestra will return April 7. Others on the schedule include John Browning, pianist, Oct. 6; John Canaday, art critic, Oct. 12; New York Pro Musica, Oct. 19; "The Matchmaker," (two performances), Oct. 27; and Judith Anderson in "Medea," Nov. 9 and 10.

MUSIC FROM SOUTH INDIA will be featured on Nov. 28 when Sangeeta Madras appear. A series of instrumentalists follow on the program with Janoa Starker, cellist, and Gyorgy Sebok, pianist, Jan. 12; and Ruggerio Ricci, violinist, Jan. 17.

Stephen Spender, poet, is scheduled for Jan. 25; The Jose Limon Dance Company, Feb. 3; "The Turn of the Screw," with Patricia Neway, Feb. 8 and 9.

On Feb. 16, Phyllis Curtin, soprano, will give a concert, followed by the Netherland Chamber Orchestra on Feb. 23. "America Dances" with Ruth St. Denis and Melissa Hayden will be presented March 3.

Sen. Barry Goldwater will speak on April 5, and on April 19, Justice William O. Douglas, associate justice of the Supreme Court is scheduled.

The final performances on April 25 and 26 will feature folksinger Joan Baez.

Mrs. Nina C. Brown, administrative assistant for the Artists' Series, said she feels this project aspect of college is one of the most important. She also asked that when students pick up tickets, they use them or give them to someone else.

"There is such a shortage of space that we can't afford to have students not using their tickets," Mrs. Brown said.

Huttons Claim Grad Every 25 Years

Every 25 years a member of the Hutton family has graduated from the University and this tradition was continued in June as three generations of Penn Staters gathered to see the youngest close his college career with honors. Maurice Hutton, '62, of Weedsport, N.Y., received his bachelor's degree in engineering science as his father and grandfather watched. Frank Hutton, Sr., '12, of Salisbury, Md., has been employed in the Maryland state agriculture department since his retirement from the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Soil Conservation Service.

Honor Societies Reward Achievement

Hat societies, honor societies and professional fraternities are organized to promote high standards at the University by recognizing students outstanding in scholarship, leadership, service and extra-curricular activities.

THE GRAY OR BLACK HATS with symbols on the front worn by members of hat societies are a familiar sight during Orientation Week, at football games and other University events.

Delphi, the sophomore men's hat society, recognizes freshmen outstanding in activities. No more than 15 men with the 2.4 All-University average requirement may be tapped each spring or fall.

Cwens, the sophomore women's hat society, taps outstanding freshman women with a 2.5 All-University average and at least two major activities. No more than 10 per cent of the freshman class can be tapped.

Other men's hat societies are Druids, Blue Key and Androcles, which recognize juniors; and Parmi Nous and Skull and Bones, which recognize seniors.

OUTSTANDING upper class women are recognized by Chimes, junior women's hat society, and Scrolls, senior women's hat society.

Student achievement is also recognized by various honor societies. Phi Eta Sigma, men's honor society, and Alpha Lambda Delta, women's honor society, recognize outstanding freshman scholarship.

Membership in Mostar Board, national senior women's honor society, Lion's Paw, senior men's honor society, or Omicron Delta Kappa, junior and senior men's national leadership honor society, is among the highest honors attainable at the University.
