

Ray Charles to Present Campus Concert Sept. 30

Ray Charles, well-known jazz and pop music singer, will present a concert Sunday, Sept. 30, in Recreation Hall. It will be his second appearance on campus within the last two years under the sponsorship of the Penn State Jazz Club.

Charles appeared on campus in the spring of 1961. At that time his singing style sparked a giant controversy as to whether he was a jazz or "rock 'n roll" singer.

CHARLES IS a talented pianist, saxophone player and composer-arranger in addition to being one of the most successful singers in show business today. He will bring his entire organization, which includes a six-piece combo and a female quartet, with him for the concert.

The 30-year-old musician has been earning his living as a musician for over half his life, working professionally since he was orphaned at 15. He has been totally blind since the age of six.

Tickets for the concert are on sale now at the Jazz Club booth in the Hetzel Union basement.

The Charles concert is the Jazz Club's first event of this school year. Last year the club claimed one of the largest memberships of any organization on campus with over 3,000 members. The club sponsored many concerts featuring such jazz greats as Horace Silver, Art Farmer, Dave Brubeck and Stan Kenton.

IN ADDITION, the Jazz Club sponsors several workshops each year for local jazz talent. These workshops bring together some of this area's top jazz talent in informal musical get-togethers.

Jazz Club members also have access to the club's record collection in the HUB. Members receive discounts on concert tickets and records purchased at local record stores.

Memberships in Jazz Club will be available throughout this week and Monday of next week in the HUB.

Noll Given Research Grant

Research on weed control at the University will be aided with a $300 grant from the Diamond Alkali Co. of Cleveland, Ohio.

The grant, which is a renewal of a similar grant received last year, will support work conducted by Charles J. Noll, associate professor of olericulture.

Campus Hopefuls to Try Out

For new students interested in drama or music, the campus organizations catering to these interests are holding tryouts this week.

Four chapel choirs of mixed voices sing for chapel services and present special concerts each term. Tryouts will be held during the next three days. Students should report to 212 Helen Eakin Eisenhower Chapel any time from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. or from 1:30 to 4:30 p.m. today or tomorrow. Tryouts will be held from 9:30 a.m. until noon on Friday.

COMPOSED OF 120 women, the Women's Chorus presents an annual spring concert and, in conjunction with the Men's Glee Club, presents a midwinter concert. Auditions are being held by appointment from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. today and tomorrow. Interested women should sign up on the bulletin board outside 104 Armory for an appointment.

The Men's Glee Club is a 70-voice ensemble. Each spring the club makes a tour. Throughout the year it presents concerts on campus. Tryouts are being held from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. until Friday. Men may sign on the list outside 109 Armory for an appointment. Auditions will also be held from 7 to 10 p.m. Monday in 109 Armory.

A group which presents concerts featuring a variety of types of music is the Penn State Singers. The Singers schedule two formal appearances each year on campus and also make frequent out-of-town appearances.

THE USUAL membership of the group is 20 to 25 men and women. For the fall term, however, the Singers will be enlarged to 48 voices for a special performance with the University Symphony Orchestra on Dec. 1. Interested students should see Raymond H. Brown, 201 Carnegie, for an appointment.

Open to all students, The University Symphony Orchestra is holding tryouts from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. until Friday. Interested students should sign the list in 114 Armory for appointments.

MALE STUDENTS have an opportunity to join the marching unit of the Penn State Blue Band, while all students may join the concert unit of the band. Students should sign the list outside the door of the Band Office, 100 Armory, for specific audition times. Tryouts will be held until Friday.

Students interested in the art of reading aloud are given opportunities to participate in numerous programs on campus, in the town, and in the state and national interpretative reading festivals through the University Readers. Interested students should see Mrs. Russel B. Nesbitt, 311 Sparks.

Previous experience is not necessary to join the Penn State Players or the Thespians. Each year the two drama groups present classic drama and contemporary musical comedy productions. Regularly scheduled auditions, open to all students, are conducted before each show.

Further information about these two organizations may be obtained from the theatre arts office in Schwab.
