

Liston, Palermo Linked in NY Boxing Probe

NEW YORK (AP) — A New York boxer testified yesterday there was a recent link between Frank (Blinky) Palermo, a racketeer and fight manager, and the camp of newly-crowned heavyweight champion Sonny Liston.

Cortez Stewart, a 28-year-old heavyweight, told a state legislative committee that Palermo was one of the men who tried to hire him to work as a sparring partner for Liston this year before the latter's title fight with champion Floyd Patterson.

Liston was refused a license by the New York State Athletic Commission for his alleged affiliations with unsavory characters, including Palermo. Because of this, the Liston-Patterson fight was shifted from New York to Chicago. The commission had called a meeting to discuss whether to recognize Liston as champion when it was told to hold off by Assemblyman Haywood Plumadore, chairman of the legislative committee.

Plumadore instructed committee counsel to offer Liston and his managers of record an opportunity to appear at public hearing to "comment on, affirm or deny" the testimony.

The committee was appointed on April 6 to investigate boxing in the state following the uproar caused by the death of welterweight champion Benny (Kid) Paret in a title fight with Emile Griffith at Madison Square Garden. The committee is charged with determining if there is an underworld influence in boxing; if so, how to rid the sport of such elements; or, whether to outlaw boxing in the state.
