

Armory Demolition Slated For Willard Extension

By STEVE CIMBALA

The Armory, campus center for music education and a landmark since its construction in 1889, is scheduled to be razed to provide space for an addition to Willard, Walter H. Wiegand, director of physical plant, said yesterday. Sketch plans for the Willard extension have been approved by the University Board of Trustees, Wiegand said, and architects are now drawing up final plans for the project.

When final plans are approved, he said, funds will be allocated for construction of the addition. The Armory will have to be razed because it is located on the site of the proposed new wing, he said.

WIEGAND SAID that plans are now being made to shift the music department to another location.

Located between Old Main and Willard on the west side of the Mall, the Armory has a history of versatility matched by few campus buildings.

In the past, the red brick and sandstone structure has served as a center for military science, physical education, women's recreation, library reference and assemblies.

ORIGINAL construction of the building was promoted by the need for a campus military science building, but the structure was also used to supplement the college's physical education facilities.

An innovation in its time, the building contained advances, such as an improved ventilating system, that foreshadowed building improvements on other campuses.

The structure served in its dual physical education-military science capacity until 1929, when the men's physical education facilities were shifted to the newly-constructed Recreation Building. The Armory retained its status as a center for women's recreation, however.

IN 1959, the offices of the military science department were moved to the new Wagner Building at the east end of campus, and the building was temporarily threatened with abandonment.

New tenants were found in 1961, however, when the offices of the music department temporarily shifted from Carnegie to the Armory.

When the music education headquarters are shifted to a permanent location, the 18th century structure will be vacant for the first time in its 73-year history.

University Theater to Present Annual Curtain Raiser Tonight

"The Proper Lilies," a one-act comedy, will be presented by the University Theater at its annual Curtain Raiser at 7 tonight in Schwab. The event is open to the public.

After the play, the audience will be invited to remain for refreshments and a guided tour of the Theater Arts Production Studio.

The University Theater is an outgrowth of the Players, which is now an honorary association for students who work in the University Theater. It combines the

WHAT TO WEAR TILL THE DOCTOR COMES

Now that you have enrolled and paid your fees and bought your books and found your way around campus and learned to hate your roommate, it is time to turn to the most important aspect of college life. I refer, of course, to clothes.

What does Dame Fashion decree for the coming school year? (Incidentally, Dame Fashion is not, as many people believe, a fictitious character. She was a real Englishwoman who lived in Elizabethan times and, indeed, England is forever in her debt. During the invasion of the Spanish Armada, Dame Fashion—not yet a Dame but a mere, unlettered country lass named Moll Flanders—during the invasion, I say, of the Spanish Armada, this dauntless girl stood on the white cliffs of Dover and turned the tide of battle by rallying the drooping morale of the British fleet with this stirring poem of her own composition:

*Don't be gullest,
Men of Britain,
Swing your collars,
We ain't quittin'.
Smash the Spanish,
Sink their boats,
Make 'em vanish,
Like a horse makes out.
For Good Queen Bess,
Dear sirs, you gotta
Make a mess
Of that Armada.
You won't fail!
Knock 'em flat!
Then we'll drink ale
And stuff like that.*

As a reward for these inspirational verses Queen Elizabeth dubbed her a Dame, made her Poet Laureate, and gave her the Western Hemisphere except Duluth. But this was not the extent of Dame Fashion's service to Queen and country. In 1589 she invented the laying hen, and she was awarded a lifetime pass to Chavez Ravine. But she was not to end her days in glory. In 1591, alas, she was arrested for overtime jousting and imprisoned for thirty years in a butt of malmsey. This later became known as Guy Fawkes Day.)

But I digress. Let us get back to campus fashions. Certain to be the rage again this year is the cardigan (which, curiously enough, was named after Lord Cardigan, who commanded the English fleet against the Spanish Armada. The sweater is only one product of this remarkable Briton's imagination. He also invented the glottal stop, the gerund, and the eyelid, without which winking, as we know it today, would not be possible.)

But I digress. The cardigan, I say, will be back, which is, I believe, cause for rejoicing. Why? Because the cardigan has nice big pockets in which to carry your Marlboro Cigarettes—and that, good friends, is ample reason for celebration as all of you will agree who have enjoyed Marlboro's fine, comfortable, mellow flavor and Marlboro's filter. So why don't you slip into your cardigan and tie yourself to your tobaccocon for some good Marlboros? They come in soft pack or flip-top box. Cardigans come in pink for girls and blue for boys. © 1962 Max Shubman

Cardigans or pullovers—it's a matter of taste... And so is Marlboro a matter of taste—the best taste that can possibly be achieved by experienced growers and blenders—by science, diligence, and tender loving care. Try a pack.

The Penn State Skin Diving Club is one of the most recently chartered organizations on campus and promises to be one of the most active.

The founders of the club and all its present officers are upperclassmen, many of whom will be graduating (they hope) in June. This leaves a tremendous opportunity for Freshman and Sophomore men and women with the interest and ability to take over the leadership of the club.

Interested parties are invited to attend the next meeting of the club. Films and slides from some previous trips and activities will be shown.
