Van Zandt Claims Voters Dissatisfied With Clark

By AL BUTKUS

Republican senatorial candidate James E. Van Zandt pointed out last night that he and his Democratic opponent, U.S. Sen. Joseph S. Clark, are so far apart on nearly every political issue that the voters of Pennsylvania will have no trouble deciding who to vote for in the November election.

Van Zandt spoke in Schwab to a group of approximately 400 students, faculty members and area residents.

VAN ZANDT, 63, of Altoona, said that since Sen. Clark has been in office, he has failed the voters of Pennsylvania in two ways.

Van Zandt claimed that the people of Pennsylvania are dissatisfied with the record of his opponent. They do not look on him as the kind of representative the people and even his fellow Democrats want. One reason, Van Zandt said, is because Clark is in favor of expanding the powers of the United Nations.

Clark has supported recognition of Red China in the U.N. In addition, Van Zandt said, Clark has voted against bills which Pennsylvania citizens favor and has let the industries of Pennsylvania die.

THE ALTOONA Congressman said that the people of Pennsylvania are moderate in their views on many bills. Sen. Clark has, however, favored the socialistic side of domestic proposals because he is a national officer of the Americans for Democratic Action, a left-wing organization, Van Zandt added.

In order to improve the American system of government, Van Zandt said, people must fight the socialistic scheming of his opponent by supporting free enterprise and individualism, which he favors.

VAN ZANDT said that his party advocates progressive leadership and is not afraid to change as the American public changes.

The Republican party favors federal aid to Pennsylvania. That aid should be geared primarily to the wants of education, senior citizens and medical care for the people, he said.

Van Zandt, congressman from the 20th district of Pennsylvania, said that it has been the Republican party that has upheld foreign policy consistent with the Monroe Doctrine. Democratic administrations have not followed this doctrine, he added.

Lions Battle Owls In Crucial Contest

By JOHN MORRIS
Sports Editor

HOUSTON, Texas, Oct. 5—The Penn State football team worked out under the lights in Rice Stadium tonight in preparation for tomorrow night's clash with the upset-minded Rice Owls.

The Nittanies, 2-0, with victories over Navy and Air Force, tangle with Jess Neely's Owls in what promises to be one of the season's toughest tests for Rip Engle's fourth-ranked squad.

State is given a slight edge in the contest, but Neely's youngsters are higher than the flags that flutter around the perimeter of this beautiful stadium.

RICE TIED powerful LSU, 6-6, in the Owls' opener last week and promise to throw everything but the water bucket in an attempt to knock over the Nittanies.

Warm and quite humid tropical air covers Texas, and temperatures should be in the low or middle 70's during tonight's game at Houston. Humidity should be very high, and a shower is possible.

Led by slick-slinging Walt McReynolds, the Owls almost passed the Tigers silly last week in Baton Rouge and will probably fill the warm Houston air with pigskin tomorrow night.

The Lions are expected to counter with a passing attack of their own, directed by quarterback Pete Liske.

This is the Lions' first jaunt into the Southwest since a losing effort against Texas Christian in 1954 and the Nittanies are shooting for a victory that could put them on the top of the national rankings.

APPROXIMATELY 40,000 people are expected to attend the game. Kickoff is slated for 10 p.m. (EDST).

The Lions have been hampered by injuries to several key players, including All-American halfback Roger Kochman and starting center Joe Galardi, but everybody should be ready to go tomorrow night.

The Nittanies may have to be at full strength if they are to stop McReynolds' passing.

The Rice sophomore completed 13 of 23 passes against LSU last week and the Owls will probably make heavy use of the aerial game against the Lions.

WHILE STATE expects a busy night defending against McReynolds' passing, the Owls can expect much of the same from Liske and Reddy unit quarterback Ron Coates.

Liske has completed 18 of 27 passes for 217 yards and four touchdowns in the Lions' first two games. Coates has hit on eight of 13 for 143 yards.

There may be two new faces in the State lineup.

Big Dave Hayes has been running at fullback with the first unit and may replace Buddy Torres in the Lion backfield. The other change would have Terry Monaghan replacing Gerry Farkas at tackle.

THE REST of the Penn State lineup will remain the same with Kochman and Junior Powell as the halfbacks, Liske at quarterback, Dave Robinson and Dick Anderson at end, Chuck Sieminski at the other tackle spot, Joe Blasenstein and Harrison Rosdahl at guard and Galardi at center.

Robinson, an All-American end candidate for the Lions, will be up against one of the nation's top terminals—Rice co-captain Gene Raesz.

Sieminski will also have his work cut out for him against Rice tackle John Mims, a 6-3, 246-pound behemoth who started on defense in the tie with LSU.

THE LIONS will outweigh Rice in the line, but the Owls have a typical Southwestern Conference team—lean, mean and tough.

While on the alert against Rice's highly touted passing attack, Engle is just as concerned over the hot and humid weather.

Spy Accusation Hurlled At U.S. Aide by Soviets

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet Union charged the assistant U.S. naval attaché, Cmdr. Raymond D. Smith, with spying and ordered him to get out of the country.

Smith was accused by officials of espionage "through observation of military objects" during a recent visit to Leningrad.

"That is how he was caught," the Soviet newspaper said.

Smith declined comment and began packing his bags to leave Moscow Monday with his wife, Ellen, and their three children.

In Washington, the State Department rejected the Soviet allegations and accused the Russians of "roughing up" Smith and using "strong-arm stuff" in holding him for several hours in "gross violation of diplomatic immunity."

U.S. Minister-Counselor John M. McSweeney, while also rejecting the Soviet Foreign Office charges said "as usual in these cases we are complying with the ministry's wishes" that Smith leave.

American officials said the Kremlin's action appeared to be in retaliation for the U.S. expulsion earlier this week of members of the Soviet delegation to the United Nations caught trying to buy defense secrets from an American sailor.

SMITH, who arrived in Moscow last June, was seized and questioned by Soviet security agents Tuesday. The Soviet government paper Izvestia published two pictures which claimed to show Smith photographing warships in Leningrad. The same pictures published in the newspaper and used as the basis of the accusation were also displayed on television.

One showed Smith surrounded by five men and a woman—apparently Russians. The bespectaled naval officer wore a light raincoat, with a camera hung around his neck. One of the Russians appeared to be grabbing his arm and leading him off. In the background were what looked like superstructures of ships.

THE OTHER photograph showed a jumble of objects allegedly found in Smith's possession. Izvestia said they included maps, drawings, notes, binoculars, a miniature tape recorder and a miniature camera.

McSweeney denied Smith went to Leningrad on an espionage mission and, when asked about the "special apparatus" the Russians claimed the attaché carried, commented: "I suppose a pair of good eyes would qualify for that."

USG, Class Posts

Campaigning to Begin Monday

Posters, banners and name tags will appear in full force next week as campaigning for the Undergraduate Student Government elections officially opens at 8 a.m. Monday.

Campaigning for the USG Congress and the freshman and sophomore class presidencies will continue until the close of elections for these offices at 5:30 p.m., Oct. 17. No signs may be posted or persons contacted for the purpose of securing votes until the official start of campaigning Monday.

George Jackson, USG Elections Commission chairman, listed the following campaign rules:

• There is no limit to the size of posters or other campaign materials, but each candidate must remain within the expense limit of the office for which he is running. Limits are $10 for class presidential candidates and $6 for candidates for USG Congress.

• Donations and gifts to a candidate for his campaign must be included in his campaign expenses. A State College merchant must price the donated items; this price must be submitted to the Elections Commission chairman.

• Campaigning is not permitted in the dining halls but may be conducted in the halls and lines outside the eating areas.

• Persons campaigning in the residence areas must be approved by the proper authorities (for instance, counselors, hostesses or fraternity presidents). Permission must also be granted by these authorities before posters may be placed in residence areas.

• All other campus and downtown buildings may be used for campaigning provided that the candidate does not interfere with the normal University functions and regulations or town ordinances.

• Last term transcripts of all candidates except freshmen must be turned in by 5 p.m. Monday to the Hetzel Union desk. Failure to do so will result in docking of votes.

• All candidates must turn in a list of their activities by 12 noon today and a picture by 10 a.m. tomorrow at the HUB desk.

• At the close of elections, before votes are counted, each candidate must submit to the Elections Commission chairman a record of his expenses and a sample copy of all publicity material used. Failure to comply with this rule will result in disqualification or docking of votes.

Copies of the Elections Code and an information sheet may also be picked up at the HUB desk.

Any question of campaign legality by a candidate will be answered by Jackson at AD 8-2682.

High Humidity Seen for Area; Weekend Showers Predicted

The heavily moisture-laden air that covers Pennsylvania is not expected to show much movement during the weekend. Humidity will therefore remain high and showers are possible at any time.

Skies should be mostly cloudy today and partly cloudy tomorrow. Fog is likely tonight.

Today's high temperature will be about 72 degrees, and an unseasonably warm reading of 75 is forecast for tomorrow.

A LOW OF 50 degrees is indicated for tonight.

The precipitation area that sent several inches of rain splashing down on the Commonwealth

Thursday moved into New England yesterday.

More than two inches of rain was measured at the University weather station, and some sections of central Pennsylvania reported up to four inches of precipitation.

Any rain that occurs during the next few days should be in the form of showers.

HURRICANE Daisy shifted course Thursday night and now appears to offer little threat to the coastal areas of the United States. Moving slightly east of north, Daisy is expected to bring her 100 mile-an-hour winds near the island of Bermuda tonight.
