

CLOCK BEING REWOUND? No, it isn't, but the Old Main tower, made of Indiana limestone, is being renovated. Steeplejacks are removing the old mortar and will later recaulk the tower. As a final step, the tower will be given a silicon coat to protect it from moisture.

Cuban Exiles Claim 20 Killed in Raid

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — An exile group reported yesterday it had raided the northern coast of Cuba early Monday, killing 20 persons. There was immediate speculation as to whether the action affected touchy negotiations for release of last year's invasion prisoners.

The exile organization, which calls itself Alpha 66, said the raid was made at 12:20 a.m. on the port of Isabella de Sagua, 150 miles east of Havana.

It said the principal objective was a camp of Cuban militiamen and Soviet military men protected by numerous trenches and powerful lights.

An Alpha 66 report on the action, termed a "war communique," said in part:

"THE BATTLE ended at 2:12 a.m. in the railroad yards of the city. A warehouse of military supplies and four other strategic points were destroyed, many weapons and some flags of the enemy were captured.

"No fewer than 20 enemy were killed."

A spokesman said the dead included Russians but gave no exact figures.

Some members of the attacking force were wounded, it was said, but all got away safely.

THIS REPORT and other developments added confusion to what already was a cloudy situation concerning prospects for release of 1,113 Cubans captured during the abortive Bay of Pigs invasion in April 1961.

Thousands of Cuban exiles in Florida waited anxiously but with hopes mounting hourly for word concerning the progress of talks between New York lawyer James B. Donovan and Cuban Prime Minister Fidel Castro.

In Havana, Donovan was told to stand by yesterday to meet Castro in what could be final talks.

The meeting of the U.S. negotiator and Castro had been postponed yesterday.

There are conflicting reports on the success of the current negotiations. One source in Washington said 'late yesterday, "This thing is not wrapped up by far."

DONOVAN HAS emphasized that he is acting in a private capacity for relatives of the prisoners. Attorney-General Robert F. Kennedy has denied reports that he assigned Donovan to the negotiator's role. This report had appeared in The New York World-Telegram and Sun.

Sources in Washington report that the United States government has agreed to underwrite part of the payment required for the release of Cuban invasion prisoners. The sources say the United States is willing to underwrite the shipment of about $13 million worth of medicine and food to Cuba.

On Capital Hill it was learned today that about $3 million already appropriated by Congress could be used for the government part of payments. An argument was reported over whether an additional $10 million could come from funds of the Central Intelligence Agency or whether Congress should be asked to appropriate it directly.

The Miami News said it had learned that if a rescue airlift by Pan American World Airways planes was begun by today, the aircraft would land under maximum security at the Homestead Air Force Base, with the public barred from the vicinity.

Should the landings take place at a less-guarded airport, officials have said, as many as 150,000 persons could be expected, creating scenes of wild excitement.

Political Series Draws to Close With Scranton Campaign Speech

Rep. William W. Scranton, Republican candidate for governor, will present his views on several political topics at a campaign lecture at 12:30 p.m. today in Schwab.

Scranton will be the last of a series of four political candidates, two for the governorship of Pennsylvania and two for U.S. Senator, to lecture at the University in response to an invitation from University officials.

During several campaign speeches, Scranton, 44, representative to Congress from Pennsylvania's Tenth District, has outlined a program to combat unemployment, and speed-up industrial development in Pennsylvania.

Scranton has said that in Allegheny County alone 67 industries have gone to New York and other states because they do not have confidence in Pennsylvania's government.

One reason for this, Scranton has reported in previous speeches, is that the people in industry feel very strongly that the Pennsylvania government has not been very friendly towards them even though the business tax situation in the state has improved.

To remedy this situation, Scranton proposes to expand the Pennsylvania Industrial Development Act and seek more help through the Federal Redevelopment Act.

In the field of education Scranton has proposed that if changes must be made in the school systems to meet the rising academic standards of today, no laws or customs will prevent him from making the necessary changes.

A graduate of Yale University Law School, Scranton was associated with the law firm of O'Malley, Harris, Harris, Warren and Scranton.

In 1959 Scranton served as a special assistant to Christian Herter, secretary of state in the Eisenhower administration.

He defeated the Democratic candidate for congressman, Stanley Prokop in 1960, and has represented the Tenth District for the past two years.

University Seeks Head for Physics

The search for a permanent head of the Department of Physics is still in progress, Ferdinand Brickwedde, dean of the College of Chemistry and Physics, said Tuesday.

Brickwedde said John J. Gibbons, professor of physics and acting head of the department, was contacting "good" men suggested by the faculty to see if they are available.

Although faculty members are not being overlooked, Gibbons has been traveling to other institutions, Brickwedde said, in the quest for a replacement for John A. Sauer, who resigned the post effective July 1.

The faculty of the physics department has been asked to suggest five nominees to President Eric A. Walker. Brickwedde said he is hopeful of completing the list soon.

10 Pollock Candidates Discuss Sources of Students' Opinion

By ROCHELLE MICHAELS and JOAN HARTMAN

The question of what the inactive Student Opinion Bureau should be used for, if anything, was discussed last night by candidates for the Undergraduate Student Government from Pollock area.

In private interviews, the candidates responded to the question, "What, if any, is the difference between the purpose of the Student Opinion Bureau's surveys and the basic responsibility of every congressman to know the views of his constituents?" Excerpts from the candidates' answers follow.

Karen Fay: "The Student Opinion Bureau's job is redundant and unnecessary because it is the responsibility of every congressman to know what the students in his area think and follow their views."

Susan Hackman: "The Student Opinion Bureau has a definite purpose because it is impossible and impractical for congressmen to talk to each individual in his constituency and get an unbiased opinion."

Janet Jeffries: "It is very difficult to find out the opinion of every individual student, so student government would be much more effective with the Student Opinion Bureau in operation."

Jay Levy: "The Student Opinion Bureau is a good idea and should be tried out. Once the results have been tabulated, a congressman can then go back to his area and find out the opinions of his constituents."

Margaret McDowell: "I think it would be a good idea to try using the Student Opinion Bureau for an upcoming issue in USG and see how it works."

Jeffrey McFarland: "I don't think a congressman can know all the opinions of his constituents. Therefore, the Student Opinion Bureau is a good thing to have."

Blake Murphy: "It would be a benefit to USG if opinion polls were taken all over campus and then publicized, so USG could receive recognition for its actions."

Thomas Musumeci: "The Student Opinion Bureau and a congressman can work together to get a fair representation of the student's views."

Kathleen Renne: "Personal contact by a congressman is better and more exact than opinions expressed in a telephone conversation."

Mark Saltzman: "I think they are both essential. The results of the bureau's survey should be compared with what the congressman thinks his constituents think."

Two women and two men will be elected from the Pollock area.

USG CANDIDATES—Ten of the candidates running for office from the Pollock area in next week's Undergraduate Student Government elections discussed the Student Opinion Bureau last night.
