

Panthers to Probe Tough W. Va. Line

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Scoring against West Virginia's unscored-on football team is as simple as telling the losing coach on Monday how the game should have been played Saturday.

Just ask John Michelosen, whose Pitt team has the chore tomorrow of trying to become the first in four games to score against the unbeaten Mountaineers.

How does Pitt plan to end the trend?

"By crossing the last white line," Michelosen said yesterday.

The coach might have been having a little joke, but he takes the West Virginia streak seriously.

"I THINK it's very valid, absolutely," he said, discounting some criticism that the Mountaineers haven't played anyone of real strength.

"They undoubtedly are a very good defensive ball club. No matter who you play, if you don't let them score, you're good."

In their first three games, the Gene Corum-coached Mounties whipped Vanderbilt 26-0, Virginia Tech 14-0 and Boston University 7-0.

"We'll follow our regular game plan which calls for an equal amount of rushing and passing," Michelosen said of the offense, which has featured much more running than passing in Pitt's two victories.

"But once the game gets going, one probably will be featured over the other. One always is, depending on the game."

THE PANTHERS (2-1) have gained 750 yards rushing and 323 yards passing while throwing only 26 passes in three games. However, against California last Saturday they scored three of their four touchdowns through the air.

West Virginia, on the other hand, has allowed 400 yards on the ground and 147 in the air.

Michelosen doesn't look for much of a passing attack from Pitt's old neighboring rivals, which could be a break for Pitt's weak pass defense.

"Their quarterback, Jerry Yost, is not real outstanding as a passer," he explained. "But he's adequate and has been coming through pretty well."

Publication Gridders to Clash

Barring injuries in grueling practice sessions, the Collegian Cowards and the La Vie Losers will make gridiron history when they clash in mortal combat at 2 p.m. Sunday near Sackett.

Thousands of spectators are expected to jam the Mall and surrounding area to view the first annual pigskin classic. Swarms of distinguished newspaper writers and television commentators have already begun to arrive at University Park to cover the battle between the campus publication giants.

Joel Myers, Collegian weather forecaster, has promised a cool fall day—ideal for football. Myers is not playing, however.

Leading the star-studded array of the Coward's "yellow" journalists will be co-captains Ann "Boss Lady" Palmer at halfback and Herb "The Treat" Witmer at quarterback. Coach "Kunk" Kunkleman has completed selection of the remaining members of her fearless squad. Other starters will include Dave "Gazelle" Bolbach at end, the intrepid Jane Silverstein at fullback, Cathy "Sunshine" Baumer in the center slot and Joltin Jean Ruhl on the line.

These stalwarts will be backed by the Coward's Scardy-Cat second unit, composed of nimble-footed Joan Mehan at halfback, Phil "Addressograph" Guest at end and Kay "Behind the Times" Mills on the line.

Cowards' cheerleaders for the epic struggle will be Saralee "Short Yell Beer" Orton and Donna "The Beast" Beeson. Chief water girl position has been awarded to Joan "All Wet" Hartman, reporter, because she asked first.

Bobby "Wait 'til Later" Coulter, La Vie coach, said that he is predicting a loss because his team does not want the responsibility of cleaning the mammoth Tumblechurn Trophy which goes to the winner of the gala contest.

Starting for the Losers will be "Heaving" Howie Goldstein at quarterback, Jim "Wingfoot" Welch at halfback, Sandy "No Nickname" Whiteley at fullback, "Cruiser" Keith Evans at center, Sandy "No Name Either" Schall at guard and Bill "Rickets" Bower at end.
